SCHOOL BOARD AFFIRMS STAND ON ECONOMIES

Displaced Employes to Be Absorbed.

The ten members of the school board who voted for the $5,000,000 economy program reiterated their firm stand yesterday despite a protest campaign started against the economy program. A formal statement "to the public," signed by James B. McCahey, president of the board, and nine other trustees was made public.

For the first time the board members disclosed that in facing the necessity of trimming school expenditures they had their choice of three alternatives: Eliminating fads and frills, making heavy cuts in the salaries of every school employé, or further shortening the school term.

Salaries Already Cut.

Shortening the term below nine months would have been in violation of the law. The teachers have already received a 15 per cent cut in their basic salary schedules. Therefore, the fads and frills had to go, according to the trustees.

The school board's statement of its position follows:

"The school board of the city of Chicago was confronted in the school year 1933 with an empty treasury, no credit, and a deficit of between $10,000,000 and $11,000,000. This deficit would still exist even though all outstanding and unpaid taxes were collected in full.

"The schools have been kept going through cooperation of other branches of the city government. A total of $26,835,000 has been loaned to the school board from the city's aggregate of funds. The amount of this loan had been growing each year until the limit was reached a few months ago. The city could not advance any more money to the schools.

Name Economy Committee.

"The only way the deficit for this year could be eliminated and school credit restored would be by savings effected within the school system.

"In order to keep our public schools open for the benefit of the 500,000 school children of the city of Chicago, the members of the board of education proceeded in the same manner as directors of any large private corporation confronted with similar problems, and appointed an economy committee to investigate and report on all possible savings.

"This committee, fortified by the personal knowledge of its members, by the records of the board of education, and by information gathered from within and without the public school system, made certain recommendations. It decided that if the schools were to be saved elimination of activities that could be spared rather than further reductions in salaries of teachers was necessary to build up a healthy morale and restore efficiency.

"The members of the board of education adopted those recommendations and assumed full responsibility for their action. We are confident that the action taken will give the school children of Chicago the maximum educational opportunity under existing conditions.

No Impairment of System.

"We assure the citizens of Chicago and the parents of the children attending its public schools that nothing has happened and nothing will happen which will impair the educational opportunities of the children.

"To those in the employ of the board of education who are anxious and concerned because of the many misleading and unauthorized statements which have been broadcast we point out that the resolutions passed by the board effecting these economies contain the following provision:

"'In cases where the position of members of the teaching staff and civil service employés are affected by the changes herein ordered, the executive officers shall make proper provision for the transfer of the persons affected to other appropriate activities wherever possible, it being the intention of this board that members of the teaching staff and civil service employés shall be retained in employment as far as possible.'

BALBO FLYERS TAKE OFF FOR EAST AT DAWN

City Says Farewell as Heroes Parade.

Only my blood speaks to you in my veins,
And there is such confusion in my powers
As doth appear among the buzzing, pleased multitude
Where every something, being blent together,
Turns to a wild of nothing, save of joy,
Express'd and not express'd.
SHAKESPEARE.

BY JAMES O'DONNELL BENNETT.

So spoke Chicago along a sunlit mile and three-quarters yesterday afternoon to Balbo and his ninety-six.

Up the sunlit avenue that fronts the lake they ride, and close ranked thousands give them hail and farewell. Farewell it is because—weather permitting—the city's and the Exposition's honor guests take flight from us for New York and for Italy at 6 o'clock this morning.

Again, as for three days past, the long roll of cheers when they appear.

Again the roar of "Viva Italia! Viva Balbo!"

Colossal and Yet Intimate.

But there is a huge fact in this outdoor reception that is not a duplication.

For now hundreds of thousands of Chicagolanders are seeing the man of the hour face to face and nearby. The outpouring and the demonstration exultantly blend the colossal and the intimate.

Not a man, woman or child in the multitude that lines both sides of the avenue for fourteen blocks but could, by stepping a few paces from the curb, shake hands with Italo Balbo.

It is half an hour of what the people most love when they honor an illustrious man.

Cluverius' Thrilling Epigram.

Just before the start of the progress up the avenue from Logan monument to Tribune Tower Rear Admiral Wat T. Cluverius, U. S. N., utters the keynote of this glamorous day and of the Homeric flight which the day crowns.

Standing straight and strong at the banquet board in Hotel Stevens tower the commandant of the Ninth naval district says in a sailor's ringing tones:

Success is a journey, not a destination.
Italy cannot stand still.
She will move on.

With those words as slogan starts the mighty outdoor reception that knows no distinctions of race, or creed, or age, or social status.

Two thirty o'clock.

From Eighth street on the south to the river on the north the people are standing from 10 to 15 deep along each side of Michigan avenue.

Thousands of Children.

Not only sidewalks are filled. At some points the police have permitted compact oblongs of humanity to stand five deep in the center of the avenue. Those oblongs are mostly children. Policemen watch them with the solicitude of nursemaids.

Lustrous-eyed, volatile Italian children most of them are, and, strangely enough, not so often calling out shrill vivas as patty-caking their applause. This is mannerliness.

Swarthy parish priests and white-bonneted teaching sisters from parochial schools are in charge of many of the juveniles.

Low-hung clouds which look a little ominous are slashed with the red, white and blue and the green, white and red of the banners of the republic and the kingdom. They fly from windows, from towers, from spires.

They Pass a City's Splendors.

Past the great lake front caravansaries, past the bronze and marble statues in Grant park, past rushing fountains, past the balconies of the high sitting Cliff Dwellers club and the athletic clubs; past libraries, past the Art institute's guardian lions—their pedestals loaded with people and boys astride their backs—past the long, swaying blue and gold gonfalons of the institute, past porticos and colonnades of marble, past windows crowd-

Let the Boobs Look, Judge's Idea on Nudes

Superior Judge Joseph B. David yesterday shooed out of court a petition for an injunction to prevent "lewd and lascivious dances and exhibitions" at the Streets of Paris, bizarre attraction at A Century of Progress. During the hearing Bailiff Dave Eichner employed two gavels with the skill of a kettle drummer to maintain order.

As the case was called Attorney Jay J. McCarthy advanced to announce that he represented Attorney Mary Belle Spencer, who filed the proceedings. Attorney J. B. Martineau, representing the Streets of Paris, and Attorney Thomas H. Slusser, representing A Century of Progress, presented a demurrer.

"Nothing but a Pair of Fans."

"Your honor," Attorney McCarthy began, "this is an action to abate a nuisance which is corrupting public morals by lewd and lascivious exhibitions. We will show that one woman dances with nothing but a pair of fans about her and that in other exhibits women twist and turn about without wearing even a fig leaf. It's disgraceful."

"Honi soit qui mal y pense," Judge David broke in. Which is French for "evil to him who evil thinks."

Attorney McCarthy suggested that the judge witness the performances to see whether one would not think them evil.

Judge Wants Good Beer.

"I've never been there and I don't want to go," Judge David declared. "The Streets of Paris could starve to death for all of me. I go where there is a good glass of beer."

"But such dancing!" Attorney McCarthy put in.

"Dancing," the judge roared. "They've been dancing for years. In the woods they call themselves nymphs, in Canada Doukhobors, and on roofs nudists. This court holds no brief for the prurient and the ignorant. Let them walk out if they wish."

He Can, but He Won't.

"But lewdness and our youth!" McCarthy resumed.

"You don't want me to discuss lewdness," said the judge. "I can, but I won't. Lots of people in this community would like to put pants on horses."

"But art classes with nude models," said Attorney McCarthy.

"The human form is a beautiful thing," the judge retorted. "If the officials of A Century of Progress want to encourage art or if a woman wiggles about with a fan it is not the business of this court.

"The demurrer admits what you wish to present as evidence. Despite your being shocked the other side asks, 'What of it?' I agree. The statute under which you act is purely of a criminal nature designed to afford a way of action against houses of assignation. If you wish to end what you term lewdness the proper procedure is to go to the state's attorney and have the officials of the concession and of the Fair arrested."

Attorney McCarthy asked if Judge David would care to have Sally Rand, the fan dancer, and Dorothy Kibbee, one of the models in a Streets of Paris concession, testify before him. Both were subpœnaed Monday night at the concession by Miss Spencer.

The judge declared he had spoken and asked the attorneys to leave the bar.

Lawyer Makes Last Effort.

Attorney McCarthy made a final effort in asking the judge to consider the effect of such exhibitions on thousands of visitors to the Fair.

"If you ask me they are just a lot of boobs to come to see a woman wiggle with a fan or without fig leaves," the judge said. "But we have the boobs and we have a right to cater to them."

Bailiff Eichner brought both gavels into play. And the judge waved the litigants out of court as a farmer's wife shoos chickens from her doorstep.

1:30 Curfew Stirs Protest at World Fair

Curfew was rung at A Century of Progress at 1:30 o'clock this morning.

Enforcing the order of Maj. Lenox R. Lohr, general manager of the Fair, to put the lid on the capers of sun dodgers who have made a bohemia of the Fair grounds after midnight, Charles H. Thurman, director of public safety at the Fair, took the first step by closing the entrance gates promptly at 11:30 o'clock last night.

Then he dispatched agents to the various concessions whose patrons go home only when the daylight begins to hurt their eyes.

First Stop Is Old Mexico.

To Old Mexico went one of the agents.

"It's time to close," he announced.

When the startled manager realized that the order was really being put into effect he made the announcement to his guests and asked them to leave by 1:30. Most of them complied willingly.

In the Streets of Paris Thurman's agent met a different spirit.

"This is the time we make our money," he was told. "We can't close."

"But we have orders to close all the concessions by 1:30," the agent explained.

"Then enforce the order. ...e us. Get rid of the patrons. Tell them to go home. But we will not turn our customers out—especially while they are still spending money. Paris is going to stay open—unless maybe the police come. Then, of course——"

Tex Guinan Carries On.

Tex Guinan's assistants at the Pirate Ship night club bluntly announced that they had been notified of the order Monday, but felt the notice was too short. There, too, the revelry continued long beyond the curfew hour.

Some of the concession managers pointed out that their contracts with A Century of Progress contained no clause setting a closing time, but only a provision that they abide by Fair regulations.

"But such a rule—taking away our opportunity to make a living—that is unfair," many protested.

"Whoever heard of closing the doors of a night club at 11:30 and putting out the patrons at 1:30?" asked Andrew Rebori, director of Paris, Inc.

Some of the concessionaires talked of seeking a restraining order in court if it is impossible to reach an agreement with the Fair officials.

BULLETIN.

IRKUTSK, Siberia, July 19 (Wednesday).—(AP)—Wiley Post, American globe circling aviator, hopped off for Blagovyeschensk, Siberia, nearly 1,000 miles east of here, at 7 a. m. today (11 p. m. Tuesday Chicago time).

IRKUTSK, Siberia, July 19 [Wednesday].—(AP)—Heavy rain and fog early today delayed a take-off by Wiley Post, American aviator on an around-the-world flight, for his next stop, Khabarovsk, Siberia, 1,400 miles east of here.

The Oklahoman, who landed here at 3:35 p. m. Moscow time (7:35 a. m. Chicago daylight saving time) yesterday after a flight from Novo-Sibirsk, Siberia, had intended to take off for Khabarovsk at 11 o'clock last night (3 p. m. Tuesday Chicago time). The heavy weather prevented him doing so.

The time of his departure was indefinite.

16 Hours Ahead of Record.

When he descended at this city in south central Siberia, near the southern end of Lake Baikal, Post was 16 hours and 34 minutes ahead of the record set by Harold Gatty and himself in 1931.

With his partner two years ago Post reached Irkutsk from New York in 91 hours and 59 minutes but flying alone on his present attempt he covered the distance in 75 hours and 25 minutes.

Post hopped off from Novo-Sibirsk at 9:02 a. m. yesterday, Moscow time, having rested but two hours and 35 minutes after completing a difficult journey of 1,818 miles from Moscow in which he was twice forced to land in unknown areas because of bad weather.

When he got to Irkutsk the daring airman had accomplished more than half the distance of his projected globe circling flight.

Gets Good Night's Rest.

Having declined all opportunities for sleep since he left Moscow at 5:12 p. m. Monday [9:12 a. m. Chicago time], Post obtained a good night's rest at Irkutsk. Khabarovsk, Post's next scheduled stop, is near the Pacific coast. Jimmie Mattern, Texas airman who was making an attempt to fly alone around the world, hopped off from Khabarovsk on June 14 for the last time before his disaster which stranded him in northeast Siberia near the Anadyr river.

U. S. Girl Feeds Flyer.

Miss Fay Gillis, Post's flight representative at Novo-Sibirsk, fed the flyer with fruit and bouillon as he reclined on a couch of the airport. Later she gave the following account of their conversation and what she learned of his experiences en route:

"Wiley landed twice before arriving here, because he lost the way, and almost missed Novo-Sibirsk because he was still floundering about in cloudy and rainy weather when he got here. Only a lucky guess on his part, which helped him come down at the local airpot, saved him, for the fog was pretty bad.

"En route here, Post flew at an altitude of 21,000 feet for two hours because of the adverse conditions, and nearly passed out. He lost the railway somewhere and decided to come down.

Meets Peasants at Roadside.

"He landed on a field beside a road, and he wasn't there long before two peasants came by in a horse-driven cart. He could not understand them and they couldn't understand him, but he finally made them understand that he wanted to go to Novo-Sibirsk.

"Thereupon, one said Novo-Sibirsk was 180 miles westward, and the other maintained positively that Novo-Sibirsk was 840 miles to the east.

"They finally agreed that Novo-Sibirsk was east and not west, but they did not reconcile their difference as to distance. His second landing was near Tartarsk."

ALABAMA AND ARKANSAS JOIN REPEAL PARADE

March of Repeal

Two more states—Arkansas and Alabama—voted yesterday for repeal of the 18th amendment. They were the first southern and supposedly dry states to vote. Eighteen states now have voted for repeal and in thirteen of these states conventions have ratified the 21st amendment, which takes the 18th out of the federal constitution. Thirty-six states are needed.

Tennessee will vote on Thursday and Oregon on Friday.

Birmingham, Ala., July 18.—(AP)—On the basis of half the returns from today's election Alabama was voting nearly two to one for repeal of the 18th amendment. Dry leaders concede repealists will carry the state.

Tabulations from 1,159 out of 2,137 ballot boxes in the state gave for repeal 73,986, against 44,530. These include returns from 66 of the 67 counties.

Republican Boosts Drys.

Republicans generally were urging their followers to vote dry, because prohibition repeal is "a Democratic measure." Judge O. D. Street, Republican national executive committeeman, declared that if "President Roosevelt wants it, this should be sufficient proof it is no Republican measure and that no Republican has any business voting for it."

On the other hand, Senator John H. Bankhead and practically the entire delegation from the state in congress, solidly Democratic, threw their influence behind repeal, urging it as part of that party's platform and a means of returning to the doctrine of state rights.

Alabama last had a referendum on prohibition in 1909. The voters then rejected a proposal to put state prohibition in their constitution, the vote being about 3 to 2. Votes that made the state dry were cast by legislators.

Arkansas Goes for Repeal.

Little Rock, Ark., July 18.—(AP)—By a ratio of more than 3 to 2 on the basis of tabulations of two-thirds of the estimated total vote cast Arkansas went on record today in favor of repealing the eighteenth amendment.

Returns from 1,051 precincts out of 2,046 in the state gave for repeal 54,829 and against repeal 34,778. Most of the heavier voting precincts had reported and more than two-thirds of the votes cast have been tabulated.

H. K. Toney, speaker of the Arkansas house, from Pine Bluff, said he had been called into conference here tomorrow with Gov. Futrell and others. He will urge an immediate special legislative session to legalize beer under a tax for the benefit of the state's schools.

May Be Legal Puzzle.

An unusual situation existed in at least two counties, Lonoke and Saline, tonight where dry candidates for delegates to the state repeal convention next month were shown in early returns to be leading but the county vote on the direct question of repeal gave wet majorities.

Under the law setting up machinery for today's repeal referendum, however, the convention is bound as a unit to cast the state's vote for or against repeal in accordance with the statewide result of the voting. Drys say there might be a court test if they get enough delegates.

Can't Control Wife.

Upper Hill township in Prairie county was the first unit to report today. It went 44 for repeal, 1 against, with all eligible voters having appeared before 10:30 a. m.

The lone dry vote was cast by Mrs. B. C. Purvis, wife of a judge of election. Mr. Purvis apologized, asserting that he "hadn't been able to do anything with her."

Slovaktown, near Stuttgart, voted 100 per cent for repeal. There were 170 votes cast. One citizen there had expressed himself as in favor of prohibition, but he either stayed at home or changed his mind.

Polls were open from 8 a. m. to 6:30 p. m.

Predicts U. S. Victory by Nov. 7.

Washington, D. C., July 18.—(AP)—Rufus S. Lusk of the Washington Crusaders, an organization opposed to the eighteenth amendment, said in a statement tonight that "Kid Prohibition is out on his feet and will take the count—a good, long count—on Nov. 7, when Florida, Ohio, North Carolina, South Carolina, and Pennsylvania vote for repeal."

"I suggest to Bishop Cannon (of the Southern Methodist church) that it's about time he threw the towel and sponge into the ring," he said, adding:

"Today's elections mean more than the end of prohibition—that was a foregone conclusion last November. They mean that the American people are through with the Scott McBrides and the Clarence True Wilsons and all those other self-styled righteous 'moral' leaders who have been telling them just what they can and cannot do."

Oklahoma to Vote Later.

Oklahoma City, Okla., July 18.—(AP)—Gov. William H. Murray today signed the legislative resolution setting up machinery for a state-wide vote on repeal of the 18th amendment, thus assuring a vote after Dec. 5. Unless a special election is called, the vote would be at the state primary next July.

Calls Beer Law Invalid.

Rockford, Ill., July 18.—[Special.]—Plans of the wets to knock out the Illinois beer regulation law went awry today when County Judge George T. Liddell declared the act invalid. It had been hoped he would uphold it so that the case could be taken to the Supreme court for a decision that would be state-wide in its effect. The Liddell decision has no such result and the state cannot appeal from it.

The court's ruling was that the legislature erred in granting to the commissioners of Winnebago county and of other counties the power to set up violation of their local ordinances as a violation of law.

Basis for Decision.

In this instance, the court held, the midnight closing regulation affecting beer dispensers outside the city of Rockford carried a penalty with it by a decision of the commissioners which they have no right to establish.

He also held that this provision, by discriminating between city and rural dispensers, lacked the uniformity required by the basic law.

Judge Liddell granted a motion to quash an information against Alex Griffith, a roadhouse keeper. He was the victim selected for a test case by his associates in the Winnebago County Beverage association. A new test probably will be sought soon.

EX-CONVICT IS IDENTIFIED AS LUER KIDNAPER

St. Louis, Mo., July 18.—(AP)—A charge of violating the national extortion act was filed tonight against Percy M. Fitzgerald, an ex-convict known as "the Dice Box Kid," after he was identified as one of the kidnapers of August Luer, aged Alton, Ill., banker.

Identification was made, police said, by the wife of the banker, who came from Alton late today.

Fitzgerald was arrested last night at Madison, Ill., at the request of department of justice agents after Mrs. Luer had picked out his photograph from a group of pictures as resembling one of the two men, accompanied by a woman, who had seized her husband a week ago Monday night at their home in Alton.

The 77 year old banker, dirty and unkempt, was released early Sunday morning near Collinsville, Ill., and since has been resting at the home of a son, Herman Luer.

Hard Working Thieves Steal 60 Feet of Track

Special agents for the Rock Island railroad reported to the police last night that hardworking burglars had torn up and hauled away the rails from sixty feet of switch track at 95th street and East End avenue. All the spike and fish plates and a switch stand also were taken by the thieves.

PUT HARRIMAN BEHIND BARS IN BELLEVUE WARD

Returns Dripping Wet After Second Escape.

New York, July 18.—[Special.]—Barred windows and guards surrounded Joseph W. Harriman tonight for the first time since he was indicted for misapplying funds of the defunct Harriman National bank.

He had returned late in the afternoon, in clothes that were dripping wet, to the Regent Nursing home, from which he made his second escape on Monday.

United States marshals lost no time in taking him into custody and haling him before Federal Judge Francis G. Caffey, who earlier in the day had forfeited the banker's $25,000 bail and issued a warrant for his arrest.

In less than two hours after Mr. Harriman's return—a denouement almost as melodramatic as the conclusion of his first disappearance when he attempted to stab himself—Judge Coffey had committed him to the psychopathic ward at Bellevue hospital for observation.

Sanity Hearing to Resume.

Tomorrow morning Judge Caffey will hear arguments for and against immediate resumption of the sanity hearing that the banker's second flight brought to a sudden halt. The probabilities were that the hearing would not be resumed immediately.

Where Mr. Harriman spent the thirty-odd hours while he was absent from the private sanitarium, where he has been confined since his indictment last March, remained a mystery which he was unwilling or unable to dispel. His account of his movements was vague and contradictory.

Louis Manzione, taxicab driver, whom Mr. Harriman hailed when he decided to go home, said he had found the missing banker at 7[illegible] street and the Hudson river about 4 p. m. Mr. Harriman, the driver said, was carrying his Panama hat in one hand and the gray jacket of his suit in the other.

Taken for a Bum.

Describing his once wealthy fare as "wet and slimy looking," Manzione said he at first "took him for a bum" and was reluctant to enter his cab. The banker's cultured voice won the chauffeur, however, and he stopped.

"Step on it," Manzione quoted Mr. Harriman as having said. "I just fell into the river off 71st street."

Manzione said Mr. Harriman gave him two addresses, one of them on East 65th street, before directing him to drive to the nursing home.

Since Mr. Harriman fled on Monday morning deck hands on ferryboats had told of thwarting his attempts at suicide, taxicab drivers had told of driving him thither and yon and ticket agents had recalled selling railroad tickets for various points to elderly men answering his description.

According to Robert Thayer, one of Mr. Harriman's lawyers, the elderly banker, who had been reading the newspapers in his absence, was indignant at all this. He insisted that he had not been to any of the places where he had been reported seen.

"He says he hasn't been on any ferry boats or in any lunch counters," Mr. Thayer reported after talking with his client. "He says he spent nearly all his time in Central park and that he hasn't had anything to eat."

The lawyer said also that Mr. Harriman had denied telling the taxi driver who brought him home that he had fallen in the river. His clothes got wet from sleeping in the park, the lawyer said Mr. Harriman had told him.

Pair Seized with Stolen Beer Turned Over to U. S.

George Campisi, 23 years old, 942 Milton avenue, and Anthony Priola, 18 years old, 1032 North Franklin street, who were arrested on Saturday when they were driving a truck loaded with beer which they had stolen from in front of the Blatz Brewing company's office at 1500 Holt street, were turned over to department of justice agents yesterday. The men will be prosecuted for stealing from interstate shipments. The truck had been driven from Milwaukee en route to the World's Fair.

Evanston Beer Law Goes Into Effect Next Tuesday

Enforcement of Evanston's new beer ordinance, limiting drinking to home consumption, will start next Tuesday, Police Chief William O. Freeman announced yesterday. Some 200 dealers now handling beer were notified that they must have their city licenses by that time. The Evanston city council approved 14 licenses at its meeting Monday evening. Only bottled beer may be sold under the new regulations and that only for consumption off the premises where it is sold.

7 HOLDUPS IN ROW; ROBBERS USE CAR OF WINKLER AID

At 2 o'clock yesterday four men riding in a smart automobile held up Harry Harvey, 6931 West 31st street, a driver, and got $10 at Halsted and Altgeld streets.

In the next hour and a half six other drivers were robbed on the north and northwest sides by the same men in the same car. The victims and their losses were Robert Larson, 3940 Nottingham avenue, $60; Stanley Basek, 1815 Thomas street, $30; Sam Weber, 2600 North Kimball avenue, $40; Morris Schraiberg, 2903 North Sacramento avenue, $40; Armand Kolb, 2711 North Kedzie avenue, $125, and George Toglitsch, 3119 Elston avenue, $23.

About 6 p. m., four hours after the first robbery, a man identifying himself as Ben Goldblatt, who is known as paymaster for Gus Winkler's north side gang, telephoned Desk Sergt. Herman Rischke of the Sheffield avenue station. Goldblatt said his car had been stolen at noon from Diversey parkway and Pine Grove avenue. The license number he gave was the same as that on the bandit car. Goldblatt was ordered to come to the police station to explain why he did not report the theft of his car until six hours after it was stolen. Benny promised he'd call, but at midnight had not yet appeared.

RUMOR PERSISTS THAT O'CONNELL HAS BEEN FREED

Albany, N. Y., July 18.—[Special.]—Rumors were flying about Albany this afternoon that John J. [Butch] O'Connell has already been released by his kidnapers—or that he will be returned to his family within the next few hours if he is not secretly sheltered at home already.

This is not the first time that wild rumors have been credited here since July 7, when the 24 year old nephew of Dan and Ed O'Connell, the Democratic bosses of this part of the state, was snatched away and held for $250,000 ransom. But it is obvious that something has happened to restore the confidence of Dan O'Connell.

Dan has been the center of interest all along. The two telephone calls and four letters that have been the only known communications from the kidnapers all went to him. Late yesterday he came into Albany from his summer house in the Helderberg mountains south of here, and his friends say he was a changed man. He went to the Elks' club last night and laughed and joked as if he had no worries at all, and he is reported to have said that he never doubted that his nephew would be returned unharmed.

LOCOMOTIVE ON C., B. & Q. LIMITED BLOWS UP; 3 DIE

Omaha, Neb., July 18.—(AP)—Charles H. Utter, engineer, and K. Z. Zimmerman, fireman, on the crack Burlington route flyer, the Ak-Sar-Ben, were killed here tonight when the engine Utter was piloting blew up with terrific force just as the train was pulling into the combined Union station and Burlington station here tonight.

Utter lived in Creston, Ia., and Zimmerman in Lincoln, Neb. James McRae, a station redcap, was severely scalded and died in a hospital.

A covered areaway connects the two station buildings and Utter was just bringing the engine under it after the turn from Lincoln when the explosion occurred. The cause was unknown.

The body of Zimmerman was picked up along the tracks about a hundred yards from the wrecked engine. The body of Utter lay alongside it.

The boiler of the engine, point of the blast, was blown about 25 feet. Witnesses said there was a "terrific flash" and a deafening roar when the boiler exploded.

JOHNSON SEEKS TO WIN PUBLIC TO INDUSTRY RULE

Calls In Publicity Experts of Liberty Loan Days.

BY JOHN BOETTIGER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 18.—[Special.]—Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, task master for industry, is building up a great agency of propaganda, aimed to marshal public sentiment behind the industrial control administration.

It was learned today that all the tricks and publicity maneuvers which were brought into play during the war to sell Liberty bonds, to popularize the draft, to conserve food and similar wartime measures are to be employed in the present drive.

The men in charge of the new propaganda bureau are in large part the same men who spurred the wartime drives. They have been hurriedly summoned from peacetime pursuits, almost drafted, in some instances, with pressure being put upon their present employers to release them for the government service.

It is called the nearest thing that America has ever seen approaching the propaganda organization set up by the communist party and the Russian soviet government.

The purpose behind the creation of the publicity agency ostensibly is to put over the mammoth general program which Gen. Johnson is expected to announce in a day or two for all of American industry.

Expect Severe Criticism.

The general is also aware, and admitted it today, that the time is coming when his program may be subjected to severe criticism, and while he did not say so, it was made plain in other quarters that he is anxious to put up an appeal to public patriotism, to entrench himself as firmly as possible before the shooting begins.

The general declined to discuss the details of his new plan, but it was learned that he is drafting a so-called "master" code, in which minimum wages and maximum hours of work will be fixed for all industries in various groupings. He indicated that he would attempt to include "the white collar" employés within the terms of his master code, fixing minimum wages for them, and prescribing how many hours they should be worked every week.

Gen. Johnson is organizing his propaganda machine to bring pressure upon industries and business organizations, through public opinion, to accept the terms of the code and put them into effect voluntarily, pending submission of separate codes for each industry.

Campaign "Ace" to Head Staff.

There will be banners, window stickers, minute men speakers, radio talks, moving picture stunts, massmeetings, all aimed to result in what members of the Johnson staff have called a mass uprising in support of their industrial control plan.

At present there is no nominal head of the promotion staff, but it was learned that the "ace" press promoter of the administration, Charles Michelson, veteran Washington newspaper man, who handled the press relations of the Roosevelt election campaign, has been summoned to organize the publicity department, and Gen. Johnson has obtained the services of several high pressure aces of the wartime staff.

Charles F. Horner of Kansas City, who headed the speakers' bureau of the Liberty loan drives, already has caused much preliminary work to be done.

Artists have designed emblems, flags, window stickers and the like intended to be awarded to industries, stores and even to consumers who actively support the N. R. A. The dodgers carry a fierce eagle with wings spread, and below is lettered "N. R. A. Producer," for factory use, "N. R. A. Products Sold Here," for retail stores, "N. R. A. Consumer," for home display.

Engages Spellbinders.

Louis Alber of Cleveland, who in peace time has been Mr. Horner's associate in a Redpath enterprise, supplying speakers on all subjects, and was Horner's assistant during the war, is in charge of the speakers' bureau of Gen. Johnson's propaganda staff. He has already hired a number of spellbinders, who will be sent to key spots over the country to carry the message of N. R. A.

Frank R. Wilson, who was director of publicity for the third, fourth, and fifth Liberty loan drives, was drafted from his moving picture business in New York to handle the newspaper releases coincident with the drive.

The man who assisted Wilson during the war, Albert St. Clair, now handling publicity for the American Electric Railway association, is being urged to join the Johnson staff.

General Press Bureau.

Buttressing this emergency organization is an extensive permanent group formed to supply to the press information concerning the codes and the general activities of Gen. Johnson.

This is headed for the present by Boaz Long, whose chief propagandizing efforts in the past seem to have been confined to the state department under the Wilson administration. The burden of the labor here, however, is borne by William V. Lawson, an experienced newspaper man. Others in the publicity department include Bruce McNamee, specializing in radio and moving picture publicity; Heber Blankenhorn, veteran New York newspaper man, and several other newspaper men who obtained posts through political helpmates.

There are also on the publicity pay roll three messengers, four girl stenographers and a file clerk.

Two codes will be brought up for public hearings tomorrow, two more on Thursday, and still another two next Monday. Gen. Johnson said the week would be a "six ring circus."

PLAN A 1,500 ACRE PARK IN DUNES OF NORTHERN ILLINOIS

Plans for the creation of a 1,500 acre park on the flat lands along Lake Michigan, north of Waukegan, were announced yesterday at Springfield by C. F. Thompson, assistant director of conservation. The work would be carried out by men from the civilian conservation corps provided by the federal government.

A company from the corps, comprising 212 men, is to be put to work in the area building roads, removing underbrush and cleaning up the park, which is to be operated by a group of citizens as the Dunes of Illinois association.

The land in question consists of a series of low sand ridges covered with heather, scrub oak and small pines, and interspersed with marshes. It runs from a half mile to a mile eastward from the high bluff which parellels the lake at that point, and is owned by private parties. An agreement has been reached with the property owners, Mr. Thompson said, for the use of the land as a park for at least five years.

Admission will be charged, the proceeds to be used first for maintenance and payment of taxes on the land. One-third of what remains will go to the landowners and the remainder into a state fund, from which it is hoped in time to purchase the land and make it a permanent state park.

Absent Minded Husband Provokes a Divorce Suit

Charles Doebler was so absent minded, it was charged yesterday in a bill for divorce filed in the Superior court by Attorney Norman Becker for Mrs. Alida Doebler, 7757 South Marshfield avenue, that after absences from home lasting several days, he would merely apologize for being late to supper on the day of his return. Mrs. Doebler left him on Dec. 24, 1928. A short time later, she charges, she met Doebler on the street and spoke to him, whereupon he declared that he did not know her and threatened to have her arrested for flirting with him.

Holdup Men Halt Couple in Auto and Seize $900

Three bandits yesterday took $900 from Miss Clara Lauferski, 25 years old, 5937 Justine street, a cashier for the Mutual Life Insurance company, 7914 South Halsted street, and Bart Rizzo, 38 years old, 7934 South May street, an inspector for the company, after forcing their automobile to the curb in front of 7539 South Halsted street. Miss Lauferski and Rizzo were taking the money to an American Express agency branch.

SAMMONS FINDS IT'S STILL EASY TO QUIT A JAIL

Killer Free in Chicago on $20,000 Bond.

Extreme care was taken in the business of bringing James (Fur) Sammons, ex-convict, public enemy, and killer, to Chicago from Kansas City, where he was arrested last week. When he arrived Sunday eight stalwart policemen with ready pistols took him to the county jail and locked him inside.

But not very safely. Yesterday Sammons walked out of the jail and is now somewhere in Chicago without a single guard to see that he doesn't go back to his old habits of holding up and shooting at honest folk.

He got out by the simple expedient of furnishing $20,000 bonds.

Charged with Assault to Kill.

The charge against Sammons and the one which he was brought back to face is assault to kill. He is alleged to have been one of a band of robbers who shot and killed two guards during an $85,000 holdup of the plant of the International Harvester company in 1926. He has been tried and acquitted of robbery, but the state revived other charges after they had been stricken off with leave to reinstate.

It was felt by State's Attorney Courtney that the bail was fixed at an amount sufficient to hold Sammons until his trial is called. But the ex-convict produced bondsmen, Nicholas and Chastine Alex of 2664 Wentworth avenue, and Vaseleka Alexopolous, 2154 Montrose avenue, who scheduled property said to be worth a total of $55,000.

Wanted in Baltimore.

Sammons came back to Chicago voluntarily, waiving extradition, rather than go to Baltimore, Md., where he is under indictment for robbery. Authorities there declared they want to try him and have evidence that was sufficient to convict two of his alleged accomplices. They had already taken steps toward extradition when he was sent back to Chicago.

MOSCOW ORDERS REDS ABROAD TO RIOT ON AUG. 1

RIGA, Latvia, July 18.—The arrests of communist leaders in Riga, Tallin, and Helsingfors reveal that the Third Internationale at Moscow again has become active in attempting to promote trouble abroad.

The arrested agitators possessed copies of a general letter of instructions addressed to communist parties abroad from the executive committee of the comintern. The letter ordered a one day strike, street demonstrations and general disorders on Aug. 1, which Moscow will celebrate as anti-war day.

Large numbers of Reds serving time in Baltic prisons have been ordered to go on a hunger strike on Aug. 1 and to present demands for prison reforms, one of which is for permission to have radios enabling them to listen to Moscow programs. The Baltic authorities are taking steps to prevent disorders. They have announced that new prisoners will not be released or granted bail until Aug. 2.

FIND STOLEN CAR BELIEVED USED IN FACTOR CASE

An abandoned automobile, found yesterday in front of 2420 South 58th avenue, Cicero, was believed by police to have been used by the kidnapers of John [Jake the Barber] Factor in returning him to La Grange last Wednesday night.

The automobile belongs to Lieut. James Killackey, in charge of the vehicle division of the detective bureau, and was stolen from in front of his home on July 7. It had been stripped of accessories when police found it. Before finding the car police had received information that it was stolen for the purpose of returning Factor.

Roosevelt's Son Flies to England for 10 Day Visit

LONDON, July 18.—(AP)—Franklin D. Roosevelt Jr. arrived at Croydon by air from Paris today. He said he probably would stay in England about ten days.

ROOSEVELT'S SON AND GIRL ELUDE REPORTER ARMY

Use Service Elevator to Leave Hotel.

Elliott Roosevelt, 22 year old son of the President, and Miss Ruth Googins of Fort Worth, Tex., whose names have been linked in a reported romance during the last few weeks, last night outsmarted a small army of reporters who were besieging them at a south side hotel.

Young Roosevelt arrived in Chicago by plane yesterday from Nevada, where he was divorced on Monday by Mrs. Elizabeth Donner Roosevelt. On leaving the airport he went to the Flamingo hotel, 5520 South Shore drive, which is a short distance from where Miss Googins is staying.

He met Miss Googins at her hotel about 3 o'clock. Last night about 10:30 Roosevelt and Miss Googins, in a move to get away without meeting the newspaper people, went down a service elevator to the basement of the hotel and crossed through a tunnel to the hotel annex, where they boarded a car and sped away. The automobile is owned by Mr. and Mrs. Albert G. Miller, 1128 East 46th street. Mrs. Miller is Miss Googins' aunt.

Millers Refuse Comment.

Where the party went is not known. The Millers returned to their home about 11 o'clock. They refused to comment on the getaway of Roosevelt and Miss Googins. All they would say was that "Mr. Roosevelt is a marvelous young man."

Young Roosevelt on arrival yesterday met with a barrage of questions about his reported romance and about reports that he and Miss Googins were planning an early marriage. He smiled. "Really, you haven't given me time to ask her yet," he said. Asked if he expected to meet her, he said he would be delighted to do so. He insisted that reports of their contemplated marriage were "all wet," and that his visit to Chicago was really to see the World's Fair with his sister, Mrs. Curtis Dall, who is expected here today.

"If you people will believe me," he began, "I'm in Chicago on a vacation only. I'm going to meet Mrs. Dall. We're going to the Fair and have a good time. I'm staying for a few days, then returning west, and she will return to the east."

He was asked where his mother is at present.

"She's in New Brunswick," he said, "with my wife—pardon me—I mean my former wife."

He smiled at his blunder.

"I'm not going to spend any time answering anything personal," he warned. "If I'm asked, 'Is it so?' I'll say nothing until I get ready to announce it. I'll certainly let all of you know if I ever decide to marry again."

That ended the discussion of the reported romance. Elliott went on to tell of some of the difficulties which his father's position put in the way of a President's son who sets out to earn his own living. While his trip to Chicago is a vacation, he disclosed that he was also looking for a job.

He is now manager of the Gilpin Air corporation, he explained. The company, owned by Mrs. John C. Greenway, a girlhood friend of his mother, operates passenger planes from Los Angeles and San Diego to Agua Caliente, across the Mexican border. California's recent approval of an act legalizing horse racing has cut heavily into the company's traffic, Elliott explained, and the future of the company is undecided.

"As to the status of my job, that's what I'm here to find out," he said. "I want to interview several officials in the airplane industry. While I was in California there were reductions in air mail contracts. Now, if I go with a big airplane corporation, people might accuse them of trying to use improper influence on federal authorities.

Likes Publicity "End."

"I'll have that to contend with in looking around. I like the publicity end of the business. (He went to work for a publicity concern two years ago, after he decided to forgo college and enter business.) But the same situation applies there."

He said when he arrived at the Flamingo hotel that he had had nothing to eat since 3:30 a. m., and wanted to get some food and rest. In a short time, however, he went to Miss Googins' hotel and visited her and her mother, Mrs. J. B. Googins, widow of a packing company executive.

The three had a light lunch sent up to their room and spent the afternoon visiting.

LOTUS BEDS IN GRASS LAKE REGION NOW BLOOM IN PROFUSION

The lotus are blooming this year at Grass lake in the Fox lake region, Lake county, in greater numbers than ever before. John J. O'Connor, veteran resort keeper at Blarney Island in the midst of the lotus bed region, said yesterday that thousands of the blossoms have appeared in the last few days.

The lotus district at Grass lake is one of only three in the world. The other two are in China and Egypt. The Chinese consul at Chicago last year examined the beds at Grass lake and said that the blossoms are identical with those grown in China.

800 CHECKER CAB DRIVERS AGREE ON 15C A MILE

A move to standardize the rates charged by Checker Cab drivers was started yesterday when 800 of the chauffeurs agreed to a flat rate of 5 cents for each one-third mile. Many of these drivers had been charging 5 cents a half mile. There are approximately 800 more Checker drivers who have not yet entered into the agreement.

The new rate is the same as that charged by the Public Taxi Service company. The Yellow Cab company is charging 10 cents for each two-thirds of a mile and this rate plus increasing attendance at the World's Fair, according to Thomas B. Hogan, president, has added materially to the number of paid miles operated.

"Drivers report," said Mr. Hogan, "that they are able to pick up many patrons who are waiting for street cars and buses. However, a large percentage of this business, in my judgment, is wholly due to the World's Fair crowds. Until all of the cabs have been operated several days on this schedule of rates it is impossible for me to make any statement on the effects of the rates."

CITY MERCHANTS TO ORGANIZE FOR FAIR TRADE CODE

Organization of a Chicago District Retail association, eventually embracing from 10,000 to 45,000 merchant-members, was recommended yesterday as the first step in enforcing a fair trade practices code for retail stores under the national recovery act. The recommendation was made by Elmer Wieboldt, chairman of a committee on organization, to 60 Chicago merchants, including representatives of loop and outlying department stores, who met at the Palmer House.

The committee's discussions have not yet touched upon wages or hours to be set by the proposed code, Mr. Wieboldt said. Following the organization of the merchants' association the committee recommended that a recovery board of 51 members be set up, to have executive powers in administering the code.

Meet Again Tomorrow.

Another meeting is to be held tomorrow. Members of the committee which drafted the organization plan were Mr. Wieboldt, Bruce MacLeish of Carson, Pirie, Scott & Co., John M. Nelson of Sears, Roebuck & Co., Elmer Stevens of Charles A. Stevens & Co., and George Madigan of Madigan brothers.

The public must be considered in drawing up a code for the cleaning and dyeing industry, J. R. Ridley of Detroit, president of the National Association of Cleaners and Dyers, declared yesterday. He spoke before members of the Illinois association and delegates from other midwestern states at their convention at the Stevens hotel.

As a representative of the consumers, the National Home Economics Association of America has, by invitation, appointed Dr. Pauline Beery of Pennsylvania State college a member of the industry's code committee, Mr. Ridley said. The committee, with 100 members representing all sections of the country, expects to draft its code by the middle of August.

A number of other trade groups held conferences here yesterday on trade codes. Representatives of the folding paper box trade met at the Stevens hotel. The board of governors of the Wirebound Box Manufacturers met at the Bismarck hotel.

Draft Alternate Code.

The International Plate Printers, Die Stampers and Engravers, a labor organization, met at the Morrison hotel to consider a code to be submitted to the federal administration as an alternative to that of employers in their field.

The American Association of Nurserymen opened a special session on a code for the nursery industry with a discussion by M. Q. MacDonald of Washington, their attorney.

BALBO FLYERS TAKE OFF FROM CHICAGO TODAY

Their escort is a troop of United States cavalry from Camp Whistler on the World's Fair grounds.

'Tis the Italian equivalent of our "Hurrah!"—of our "Three cheers for."

Women of many races vie with the enraptured Italian children in the greeting to Balbo. Nordic stenographers waft kisses to him from office windows.

Women of fashion in the windows of clubs and of hotel dining rooms do the same.

Handkerchiefs are waving. Gaily colored parasols are maneuvered into a kind of salute.

A Modern Ulysses.

To them all—to women of every race and station—this bearded man who thinks so cautiously and acts so audaciously is Penelope's Ulysses come true.

Here is no routine Chicagoan of office or of bank but a Ferarran who puts his plane to bed on the bosom of an inland sea: a wanderer of the skies who on one day is in seven-hilled Rome, on another in diamond cutting Amsterdam, on another in Londonderry of the ancient walls and the heroic siege, on another in fog drenched Reykjavik, on another on the coasts of Canadian provinces, on another in high crowned Montreal of the royal hills, and who at the end of a fortnight charges courteously down upon the metropolis of middle America with his handkissing and his softly breathed "Grazia, signora, molto grazia!"

A cavalier, then, from the clouds.

What the Women Say.

From my car I cannot hear what the women folk are saying as their darkeyed hero rides by.

But THE TRIBUNE has two most alert and sagacious women journalists along the way and in the windows.

From them—Miss Katherine Kelley and Miss Virginia Gardner—I later glean.

"What did they say?" echoes Miss Virginia. "Well, they said, 'My dear, don't you lo-ove his beard!' and 'He's the most exciting man I've ever seen!' and 'I think he's more romantic than Col. Lindbergh ever thought of being,' and 'Did you ever see any one so romantic looking?'—a matron said that—and Narcissa Swift, you know, said, 'He's as thrilling as the old Romans!'"

"But, My Dear, He's Married!"

But Miss Katherine extracts gloom from her notes. What she hears is that this Ulysses, "so romantic looking," is daily cabling his Penelope back home, "and more than once has talked to her by telephone."

"Isn't it silly, Virginia," chaff I.

They are witless words.

For Virginia tosses her proud southern head and drawls in that musical way her people have:

"No, it is—n't! It's—a—love—leh. You're jealous." [She might as well say I am jealous of Vesuvius.]

A good 90 per cent of the Italians in the throng are—or their parents were—from the southern provinces of the kingdom.

They are more demonstrative than their northern compatriots.

"And more patriotic," says a journalist from Rome—I have lost his name—in the crowded press car.

Those Gay Irish.

There is comic relief.

"Hello, lieutenant!" the reporter sings out.

"Viva to you!" sings back Lieut. Egan.

Steady roars of cheers and ceaseless clatter of hand clapping on, and on, and on until Balbo reaches TRIBUNE Tower.

At the Tower the cavalry escort reins up on the east side of the avenue and gives the general and his ninety-six the sabre salute, riding back then to its camp on the Exposition grounds.

Now the speed of the cars in which he, his officers, and his army and navy hosts are riding becomes swift. Their destination is Fort Sheridan, and Sheridan is 28 miles away.

They flash through beflagged Evanston.

And Evanston is sore to the core about that. Its mayor—primed with a speech—and 12,000 of its people are massed in the public square for a good look at the man of the hour.

They get it not.

Such language—O, such language!—you never heard in 'eavenly Evanston before. What will not disappointment do with strong men's tongues! A venerable university pundit comes out frankly and flatly with—

Darn it all!

Back in downtown Chicago the multitude is an hour in dispersing after its half-hour of thrills.

Furled at last are the embroidered white crosses and the golden crowns of the house of Savoy on the banners of Italian societies.

Vivas sink in tired diminuendo.

The oratorical hit of the day—of the three joyful days, indeed—is Rear Admiral Cluverius' speech to the flyers at the luncheon in the Stevens—a smashing hit, partly because it is not oratory.

It is a bullseye, brief and ringing.

Striking home thus: "We of the United States navy and its reserves have now the honor to add our felicitations to those which one hundred and twenty-five million other Americans extend to the great navigator of the air and his undaunted flyers.

They Serve the World.

"They are without peers in the profession of arms and—afloat and ashore—they have our highest esteem. [Prolonged applause from the American officers.]

"They have developed the aviation capacities of a nation so that she may serve herself with the highest efficiency and, in so serving herself, may likewise serve the world.

"With such men at her command, Italy cannot stand still. She will move on, and the crown of high success will be hers.

"For success, your excellency and gentlemen, is action.

"Success is a journey, not a destination. [Renewed applause, rising to cheers.]

"To Gen. Balbo, to his king, and to his prime minister I bring the salutations of the fleet of the United States. Gentlemen, his excellency, Gen. Balbo!"

All Spring to Their Feet.

All—the mayor of Chicago, Maj. Gen. Parker, U. S. army; President Dawes of the Fair, governors and former governors of American commonwealths, princes of ancient Italian houses, and the clergy spring to their feet.

The banquet room, hung with American and Italian flags and fragrant with masses of roses and gladioli, rings with cheers.

Balbo rises. More cheering.

In a light but far-carrying voice he is saying:

"The second Italian squadron of the Atlantic is proud of the hospitality offered to them by the American nation. We will ever remember that our comrades of the United States have opened the air routes of the Atlantic with flights which cannot be forgotten.

"We wish we can soon offer Italian hospitality to an American air squadron."

The Swift Fascist Salute.

Now, amid tumultuous cheering, he gives the Fascist salute and utters the words, "Eja, eja, alala to President Roosevelt, the American people, and the American navy."

Then our officers and civilians file past him at the high table from left to right. He has said, "It is my desire to shake their hands."

To one and all he gives a firm clasp, followed by the swift Fascist salute.

On a few whom he recognizes he bestows a glad, boyish "O-o-h!" a flashing smile, and brief talk.

In his left hand he holds a lighted cigar.

The Unforgettable Epigram.

Informal greeting of his comrades by our people becomes general and there is a responsive fusillade of "Grazia! Grazia! Molto grazia!" over and over again.

It was a charming party the Rear Admiral gave. But long after it is forgotten, long perhaps after he is gone, the world may remember what he said to that brilliant assemblage:

I shall never forget that.

Nor will you.

For he said a glorious thing.

Esto perpetua.

FLIGHT PLANS TOLD

Announcement of the plans of Gen. Balbo for today's flight of his 24 seaplanes to New York, the first stretch of the air armada's return trip to Italy, was made yesterday afternoon at Fort Sheridan, where the officers of the flying fleet were entertained by United States army officials. Lieut. Col. P. E. Sbernordi, air attaché of the Italian embassy in Washington, made the announcement.

The trip to New York, he said, would be by way of Toledo, Cleveland, Buffalo, Oswego, and Albany, and probably would occupy eight hours. The landing is to be made at Jamaica, L. I.

Plan Trip to Washington.

"Four or five days will be spent in New York," said Lieut. Col. Sbernordi, "and the planes will be carefully examined and repaired where necessary. There will be one brief trip, Gen. Balbo and his men flying down to Washington in American army planes to greet President Roosevelt. Some time early next week the fleet will depart for Italy. Gen. Balbo will fly first to Newfoundland and from there either to Ireland or to the Azores, depending on weather conditions."

The Italian officers sped to Fort Sheridan yesterday afternoon after the Michigan avenue parade and arrived at 3:50 p. m. As the car carrying Gen. Balbo arrived on the reservation a salute of nineteen guns was fired.

Proceeding to the parade ground, Gen. Balbo then reviewed the troops of the post, who marched under the command of Maj. D. B. Falk. Surrounding the stands was a crowd of 10,000 people, said to have been the biggest turnout of visitors at Fort Sheridan since the war.

While their officers were at Fort Sheridan the enlisted men of Gen. Balbo's command went to the World's Fair. They were scheduled to take a conducted tour of the Fair, but a majority did solo flights from the conducted party and left to see the sights with girls.

"Liberty is what they wanted when they got shore leave," one of the escorts said, "and that is just what they got. I trust the volunteer guides were able to show them the Exposition."

FIVE REPORTERS FROM ITALY WITH BALBO IN CHICAGO

Five Italian newspapermen have been reporting the activities of Gen. Balbo and his flyers in this country. The correspondents came to New York by steamship and then went to Cartwright, Labrador, where they boarded the Italian planes and came to Chicago with the flyers. The newspapermen, who file their dispatches over the Postal telegraph wires, are Luigi Freddi of the Popolo Italiano, and Mario Massai of the Corriere Della Sera, Milan newspapers; Paolo Monelli of the Gazette Del Popolo, and Mario Bassi of the Stampa, Turin newspapers; and Adone Nosari of the Giornale D'Italia, a Rome newspaper.

Italy to Decorate All of Gen. Balbo's Flyers

ROME, July 18.—(AP)—The Italian government today conferred a special Atlantic decoration on all members of the squadron of Gen. Italo Balbo who crossed the Atlantic to Chicago. The decoration will be presented when the flyers return. It consists of the letter "A" on blue enamel for the pilots and on blue silk for the others.

BALBO TO COME BACK AND SEE MORE OF CHICAGO

Gen. Italo Balbo will return to Chicago. He made the decision, and announced his intention, late yesterday afternoon after a brief visit at the home of Benjamin H. Marshall, architect, at 612 Sheridan road, Wilmette.

When he arrived at the Marshall home Gen. Balbo stepped out of his car with Gen. Pellegrini, pulled his white blouse straight, doffed his cap, and entered, all smiles, despite his wearisome day, parading and reviewing troops. The general and his party passed through a candle lit foyer into a tall greenhouse, around a pool of clear green water, and paused in the living room to admire the views of the lake and the yacht harbor. Cocktails were served, but he preferred a glass of Sauterne.

In the dim light of the Chinese pagoda room, which is carpeted by a satin mattress, Gen. Balbo paused. He spoke in Italian.

"The general says, 'Why do you bring us here when we are but men?'" Consul General Castruccio repeated. There was laughter.

Down in the living room again, he met Mrs. Marshall, Benjamin H. Marshall Jr., and Miss Dorothy Marshall. He spoke again, in Italian.

"The general says, 'I am dismayed that we have not come to your beautiful home before the eve of our departure,'" Consul General Castruccio again interpreted. There was more laughter.

Gen. Balbo shook hands with his hosts, the party turned and filed out to the waiting automobiles. There it was that he stopped to smile and say he would return to Chicago at some later time.

SECRETARY DERN SALUTES BALBO ON FLYING TRIP

Secretary of War George H. Dern arrived in Chicago from Washington, D. C., by plane last evening, for an overnight visit at the home of his son, John Dern, 840 Locust street, Winnetka. He is on his way to Sacramento, Cal., to address a conference of governors.

The war secretary landed at Curtiss-Reynolds airport in Glenview, and proceeded to Winnetka by motor. His wife was with him. Before landing Mr. Dern flew over Fort Sheridan in salute to Gen. Balbo and his flyers.

Secretary Dern expects to take off from Curtiss flying field at 9 o'clock this morning. On Friday he will address the Salt Lake City Chamber of Commerce at Salt Lake City. Saturday he will speak at Boise before the Idaho Chamber of Commerce. On Monday he will address the governors' conference at Sacramento as President Roosevelt's representative.

"I expect also to inspect a few army posts," said Secretary Dern. "I'll look over the post at San Francisco on July 26 while on a visit to that city to talk before the Commonwealth club."

German Paper Apologizes to Balbo; Ban Is Lifted

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, July 18.—The newspaper Deutsche Zeitung, which was suspended yesterday for three months for having published an item referring to Gen. Italo Balbo as a baptized Jew, was permitted to reappear today after the publishers had formally apologized for the "editorial blunder" of their editors. The editor in chief was discharged. It is surmised that he is still confined in a concentration camp since no announcement has been made of his release.

HURT AS AUTO HITS BICYCLE.

Sterling, Ill., July 18.—[Special.]—William Boyer, 27, is in a hospital with a skull fracture, a broken back and ribs. He was knocked off his bicycle by an auto.

POLICE SEIZE UNION RECORDS IN RACKET WAR

Prosecutor Hunts Evidence for Grand Jury.

Books and records of four unions were seized yesterday by detectives of the state's attorney's office on a writ issued by Chief Justice John Prystalski of the Criminal court.

State's Attorney Courtney obtained the court authority upon a petition stating that these unions have refused to coöperate with him in the investigation of racketeering in labor unions and that they are allied with the Trucking and Transportation agency, known as the T-N-T, through which Murray Humphries, public enemy No. 1, exercises a control over the trucking business of the city. The prosecutor's purpose in obtaining the records was to find possible evidence for grand jury action.

The unions named in the subpœnas duces tecum calling for the records are the International Union of Operating Engineers, local No. 150, 332 South La Salle street; the Excavating, Grading and Ashphalt Teamsters and Chauffers union, local No. 731, 184 West Washington street; the Chicago Building Materials Teamsters, Chauffeurs and Helpers union, local No. 786, 639 South Ashland avenue, and the General Teamsters union of Maywood and vicinity, local No. 782, 12 North Fifth avenue, Maywood.

Under Investigation by Raber.

Special Assistant State's Attorney Edwin J. Raber has been conducting a secret investigation of unions for several months. Injunctions have been asked to restrain the state's attorney from carrying on his efforts to drive the crooks out of the unions and one such request for an injunction, now pending before Judge Denis E. Sullivan, who referred it to a master in chancery, was asked by the International Union of Operating Engineers.

The petition for the subpœna was presented to Judge Prystalski yesterday by Assistant State's Attorney Donald Thompson. He declared that the four unions have favored certain contractors, intimidating others who made lower bids than the favored contractors, and calling strikes.

Names Looney as Leader.

He named Marcus "Studdy" Looney, business agent of the excavating teamsters union, as a public enemy, who is well known as a criminal and as a leader in the T-N-T organization of truck owners.

The records seized were taken to the Criminal court and will be examined today. Any important evidence that is found will be presented to the grand jury.

Lindberghs Go Ashore in Newfoundland

Fly Over Labrador

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ST. JOHN'S, Newfoundland, July 18.—Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh flew over the interior of Labrador yesterday in the vicinity of the Northwest river on a sight seeing trip. The couple returned to Cartwright, Labrador, at 7 p. m. They are awaiting suitable weather conditions before taking off for Greenland on Col. Lindbergh's aerial survey. The Italian yacht Alice, which was used as a supply ship by the Italian air armada on its flight to Chicago, is proceeding to Shoal Harbor, Newfoundland, to make preparations for the fleet's return flight.

LINDY'S BACKER OF PARIS FLIGHT DIES AT DENVER

Denver, Colo., July 18.—(AP)—Harry Knight, St. Louis, Mo., one of the financial backers of Col. Charles A. Lindbergh on his flight from New York to Paris, died here tonight with a heart attack.

Mr. Knight was taken ill today at an extensive ranch he owned near Granby, Colo., and was taken to Denver for expert medical attention. He died in a hotel, where he was taken upon his arrival here.

SECOND DIVISION VETS WILL MEET HERE TOMORROW

Full Three Day Program Awaits Them.

Veterans of the 2d division, A. E. F., to the number of at least 3,000, and possibly 5,000, will meet here tomorrow to hold their fifteenth annual convention, which will extend through Saturday. As when last they convened in Chicago in 1926, the veterans will have their headquarters at the Hotel La Salle.

Maj. Gen. Paul B. Malone, commander of the 3d corps area at Baltimore, president of the Second Division association, will arrive at the Union station tomorrow at 8:45 a. m. and will be taken to the city hall to be greeted by Mayor Kelly. He will be met by a reception committee headed by Leonard Cole, 5525 Kimbark avenue, president of the association's Illinois branch.

Full Program for Veterans.

From the time of their arrival a full program faces the veterans. However, it will provide plenty of opportunity for the renewing of war friendships. Such a chance will come tomorrow afternoon and evening. In the evening the group will sail the lake on the steamer Florida.

Unit "get-togethers" will occupy most of Friday, when squads and platoons will meet at the La Salle to spin their old yarns anew. In the afternoon there will be a visit to A Century of Progress. That night the veterans will frolic in the "Hangar," the night club on the La Salle roof.

The business session will be held Saturday morning. It was reported yesterday that Wayne C. Holsworth of Brooklyn, N. Y., the association's first vice president, has a good chance to succeed Maj. Gen. Malone as president.

Banquet to Close Meeting.

The convention will close Saturday night with a banquet at the Hotel Sherman, where Mayor Kelly, Maj. Gen. Frank Parker, Rear Admiral Wat T. Cluverius, and Rufus C. Dawes, president of A Century of Progress, are expected to be guests.

Besides Gen. Malone, distinguished members of the association who will attend the convention include Hanford MacNider, former United States minister to Canada; Maj. Gen. John A. Lejeune, retired commander of the marine corps, and Maj. Gen. Omar T. Bundy.

At the last meeting here three other major generals were also present: James G. Harbord, Preston Brown, and Wendell C. Neville. Gen. Harbord will be kept at his duties as president of the Radio Corporation of America in New York this year. Gen. Brown is stationed in the Philippines and Gen. Neville, formerly of the marine corps, is dead.

HIBERNIANS OPEN 58TH CONVENTION WITH HIGH MASS

The Ancient Order of Hibernians opened its 58th National Convention in the Morrison hotel yesterday with 1,200 delegates and wives in attendance. The first event on the program was the attendance of Pontifical high mass at the Holy Name cathedral. The Rt. Rev. James A. Griffin, bishop of Springfield, preached the sermon.

Mayor Kelly, Rufus Dawes, president of A Century of Progress Exposition, and Emmett Whealan, president of the county board, welcomed the convention. During the afternoon Michael W. Delaney, the president, formally opened the convention and appointed a dozen committees which today will report the progress in benevolent and philanthropic work.

Last chance!

GERMANS FLOCK TO WORLD FAIR FOR DEDICATION

Mixup in Orders Delays Kansas Day Fete.

BY EARL MULLIN.

Throngs of German-Americans of Chicagoland flocked to A Century of Progress yesterday to take part in the ceremonies connected with the dedication of the German-American building at the Fair.

Sharing the honors of the day were thousands of Kansans who visited the Exposition for the celebration of Kansas day. Due to a mistake by officials in charge of events, the Kansas day ceremonies were delayed and a guard of honor which had been expected was not provided. However, the tangle was straightened out and the program went on as scheduled.

These important ceremonies, combined with other special events, raised the attendance for the day considerably above the usual weekday figures. At 11:30 p. m., when the final count of the turnstiles was taken, an attendance of 130,823 was shown. On Monday the final figure was 125,169.

No Official Exhibits.

The German - American building which was dedicated yesterday was originally planned for Poland's exhibit at the Fair, but after the Poles' plans fell through it was taken over by the German group. As pointed out by Miss Marie W. Becker, chairman of the group, which took the building over that their native land might have representation at the Fair, no money from Germany went into the building, nor is there an official exhibit of that country. No German flags were flown over the building yesterday.

Two of the leading guests scheduled to take part in the dedication ceremonies which took place in the afternoon did not appear. They were Dr. Hugo Simon, German consul-general in Chicago, and United States Senator William H. Dieterich. Mayor Edward J. Kelly appeared for the dedication, but he did not wait for the evening program.

Dr. Schmidt Opens Program.

The official program was opened by Dr. Otto L. Schmidt, president of the Illinois Historical society, and Dr. George L. Scherger, professor of history at Armour institute.

At a banquet in the evening Rufus C. Dawes, president of A Century of Progress, spoke of the participation of the German group as the last step in the rounding out of the Fair program.

"It is the duty of every Chicagoan," he said, "to do all in his power to make this Fair a success. Here we have a home for the Germans in Chicago, those people who have had so much to do with the development making this Fair possible. This participation means that all of Chicago is now behind the Fair."

Mixup in Kansas Ceremony.

The Kansas day ceremonies, which were to have been one of the main features of the day, failed to run as scheduled because of a mixup in orders at the Administration building of the Fair.

According to the official program, as made public by the events division, the official party was to be met in the court of honor by troops from Camp Whistler at 4:30 p. m. At that time a stage coach, containing the official party, arrived at the gate. No troops were in sight and the World's Fair guard refused to let the coach go through the entrance. For 35 minutes the coach remained at the gate, while leaders of the Kansas delegation scurried about trying to find some one to admit them.

Finally a couple of Fair policemen were asked to escort the official party to the court of states where the remainder of the program went on as scheduled.

In the Official Coach.

In the official coach when it was denied admittance to the court of honor were Mrs. Charles Balch, president of the Kansas club of Chicago; Col. Stewart Murdock, war time commander of Camp Logan, who was to be speaker of the day; Drusilla Morgan, "Miss Kansas" for the day, and Harry Read, a native Kansan and a former Chicago newspaper man.

Capt. John Riley of the events division disclaimed any knowledge of the announced review of troops and said that the guard had had no instructions to permit the coach to enter. However, the daily program as announced by his division carried both features. It was discovered that the band and a majority of the troops were at Fort Sheridan, taking part in the ceremonies for Gen. Balbo, and none of the officials of the Fair knew of the parts they were supposed to take in the Kansas day celebration.

An Enraged Citizen Spoils Alderman's Beauty Sleep

MONTREAL, July 18.—(AP)—Joseph Schubert, an alderman, answered his telephone at 4 a. m. today to hear a voice say:

"I am one of your constituents. How does it feel to be awakened at 4 a. m.? City water wagons fill up right under my window at all hours of the night. How do you like it?"

Schubert asked the city to do something about the situation.

GUNMEN KILL 1, WOUND TWO FROM SPEEDING AUTO

One man was shot and killed and two others were wounded in a murderous gun attack in front of 1139 Taylor street, last night.

The man slain was Emil Onesto, 40 years old, 940 Polk street, a former saloonkeeper. Those wounded were Frank Laino, 24 years old, 4649 Lexington street, said to be known to police, and Angelo Morzzone, 33, 1145 Taylor street, an innocent bystander. Laino, shot in the side, is in a serious condition in Mother Cabrini hospital. Morzzone was cut on the ear by a slug and required only first aid.

The killers, four in number, rode in an open car past the Taylor street address, which houses a poolroom owned by Mike Cozzi. They circled the block and returned, and this time they opened fire with shotguns on Onesto, who was standing in front. He dropped dead. Morzzone and Laino, who were standing nearby, were both wounded by flying slugs.

Gang Holds Up Currency Exchange and Gets $800

CHURCH FACING GREAT CHANGES, ASSERTS PASTOR

Walther League Warned to Live in Future.

BY THE REV. JOHN EVANS.

Walther leaguers of the Evangelical Lutheran Missouri synod, in convention this week at the Stevens hotel, were told yesterday that the revolution now taking place in American economic and social life will have a widespread effect upon church activities.

The warning was given by the Rev. Dr. Paul Lindeman of St. Paul, who spoke at a fellowship dinner. Five thousand youths are attending the convention. Dr. Lindeman asserted that churches that live in the past "will cease to function." The church's failure to adhere to the progressive spirit, Dr. Lindeman said, has made them suffer great losses. He advocated the extension of the seven day a week church "which will compel the attention of people."

Act Today on Reorganization.

The convention will act today on a reorganization plan presented at yesterday's meeting. The plan which provides for a more unified administration was drawn by a special committee under the direction of Prof. O. P. Kretzmann of Springfield, Mo. It proposes the abandonment of the five present departments on education, hospice, recreation, junior work and music and the creation of two departments to look after these interests.

The new departments will be those of Christian knowledge and Christian service and will be under the direction of the Rev. Erwin Umbach of Chicago, executive secretary of the league.

Pick Winning Orators.

Winners of the first preliminary oratorical contest conducted by the league yesterday were Herbert Ollenburg of Garner, Ia.; Mrs. Melba Wendland of Los Angeles, Cal., and Miss Hilda Heidenreich of Aberdeen, S. D.

The convention will close on Friday.

SWIMS NIAGARA RAPIDS; FIRST TO ACCOMPLISH FEAT

Niagara Falls, N. Y., July 18.—(AP)—Carried into the whirlpool rapids in the lower Niagara river here Monday evening while attempting to swim to the Canadian shore, William Kondrat, 18, of Chatham, N. J., swam the entire length of the rapids and through the whirlpool to safety, and in doing so accomplished a feat that has never been duplicated and which has cost the lives of several noted swimmers who attempted to conquer the dangerous rapids in the past.

Kondrat, who hitch hiked here with a companion to see the falls, had entered the river above the rapids for a swim without knowledge of the dangerous and powerful currents and eddies in the Niagara gorge and was caught and swept into the rapids before he had knowledge of his danger.

In describing his experience today Kondrat, a powerful swimmer, said he believed himself doomed but had continued his struggle until he reached land in the bowl of the huge whirlpool on the Canadian shore. Three times, he said, he was caught in the vortex of the whirlpool and dragged 40 or 50 feet.

U. S. WOMAN IN MALLORCA JAIL NEAR BREAKDOWN

Companions Send Urgent Appeal for Help.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PALMA, Mallorca, July 18.—The four American Monte Cristos in duress here on charges of having attacked a civil guard today directed an urgent appeal to their government's representatives in Spain to press for the immediate release of their girl companion in crime, Mrs. Caroline Lockwood.

The male prisoners are her husband, Clinton Lockwood of Springfield, Mass., Rutherford Fullerton of Columbus, O., Roderick F. Mead of New York City, and Walter Blodgett of Stamford, Conn.

"As a result of her confinement with a mentally weak old Spanish woman, she shows distressing and alarming signals of an approaching breakdown," the prisoners wrote to Ambassador Claude Bowers and Claude I. Dawson, consul general at Barcelona.

Reveal Horrors of Jail.

"For a woman of her youthfulness and temperamental refinement this experience has been unspeakably trying. She is kept from restful sleep nightly by the crazy sleep talking, laughing and screaming of her cellmate. For four days the woman was screaming from toothache and the authorities did nothing until she finally fainted. Caroline administered to her and when the dentist came with insufficient instruments, she helped for the first time in her life as a nurse in what proved to be a sickening operation."

After painting the cruelties of her existence in the squalid cell, they urged the embassy and consulate to forget them and do everything possible to win the release of the girl "on humanitarian grounds."

"She is given fewer privileges than we are," they said. "We can hire male prisoners to do the cleaning required of us, but the jail authorities warned her cellmate not to help her."

Tell of Own Hardships.

The men described their own conditions as fierce.

"We are four in a cell next to a latrine in filthy condition," they said. "The stench is unbelieveable. We fare even worse than other prisoners, some of whom are given agreeable cells on the second floor. There is a shower, but it cannot be used without written permission of the medical authorities, which is impossible to obtain."

A vague hope that the prisoners might be released on bail in two weeks was voiced tonight by Antonia de la Rosa, acting military auditor in the absence of Gonzalo Zarranez, who, after turning down Dawson's petition for bail for the hapless five, went on a vacation.

"Release on bail already was refused by my chief," said de la Rosa, "so I cannot go over his head, but my opinion is that when he returns in two weeks, they will be released on bail. After that preparations of the case will take about six weeks, after which they will be tried before a court martial of five captains and one lieutenant colonel chosen by lot."

Police were called out tonight at the village of Puerto de Pollensa to save Theodore Pratt, an American newspaperman, from bodily hurt at the hands of a mob of Mallorcans who had gotten hold of the July number of the American Mercury.

In this magazine Pratt, who until a few days ago did Puerto de Pollensa notes for the Palma Post, attempted to debunk Mallorca in an article called "Paradise Enjoys a Boom." In this article he cast slurs on the landscape, climate, cleanliness, honesty and food, not to mention sexual morality of Mallorca.

Expatriates Resent Slurs.

American and other foreign residents who did not share Pratt's disillusionment with this Mediterranean haven of the new poor seemed to have spread the word among islanders and Pratt, who is known as El Sandalio [Sandal Wearer], suddenly found himself threatened everywhere he went.

The Palma Post, which is already under fire for its energetic defense of the five Americans in jail, had to let him go. In one of the countless bars of Puerto de Pollensa, a fishing village until invaded by the Montparnasse crowd, he was threatened with public chastisement by a group of Mallorcans and foreigners. He asked for police protection, which he got.

Tonight he found he needed it when a mob of several hundred tried to run him down. Police took him in hand and escorted him to Palma, where he was lodged in a hotel under guard. It is predicted that he will eventually be obliged to leave the island.

U. S. Demands Action.

Washington, D. C., July 18.—(AP)—For the second time, Acting Secretary Phillips today summoned Ambassador Cardenas of Spain to the state department and asked for prompt action in the case of five Americans who have been held in the jail at Palma, Mallorca, for 42 days. Phillips expressed deep concern to the ambassador and made renewed representations about the plight of the five prisoners, who have been denied bail. The ambassador said he would communicate the attitude of the United States to his government.

16 INSULL OFFICIALS PLEAD NOT GUILTY IN FEDERAL COURT

Pleas of not guilty for 16 former officials and directors of the Corporation Securities company, bankrupt Insull investment trust, on charges of using the mails in a scheme to defraud were entered yesterday before Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson.

Two other defendants are Samuel Insull Sr. and his brother, Martin J. Insull, who are fugitives and have never appeared to defend themselves on the indictments. The nineteenth defendant, Harold L. Stuart, president of the Corporation Securities company and of Halsey-Stuart & Co., did not appear. His attorney said he was out of the city, and Judge Wilkerson ordered him to appear on July 31. Charles B. Stuart, vice president of Halsey-Stuart & Co., and of the Corporation Securities company, was absent with the court's consent and his plea was entered by his attorney. The other defendants were in court.

Hearing on the defense motion for a bill of particulars by the government has been set for Sept. 18. The case is expected to go to trial in November.

GOVERNOR WINS ALL BUT TWO FIGHTS ON VETO

Bribe Offer Charged in Michigan Quiz.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Lansing, Mich., July 18.—[Special.]—Michigan's most protracted legislative session ended today, its finale clouded by dissension within ranks of the dominant Democratic party and by formal charge that bribes were offered members in exchange of their votes.

Sine die adjournment was taken at noon after both houses had reached agreement on the form of a concurrent resolution designed to interpret legislative intent as regards sales tax policies.

Although nearly the entire membership of both houses had returned for the formal session in an effort to pass numerous bills over Gov. William A. Comstock's veto, only two vetoes actually were overridden while 14 disapprovals were upheld. The acts which were made law, in spite of the governor, were the graduated chain store tax, repassed almost unanimously by both houses, and a bill to reduce drastically the rate paid to newspapers for tax sale advertising.

The resolution seeking to modify application of the sales tax so as to confine it exclusively to direct retail sales to consumers was approved by both houses after it had gone to conference committee.

Charges Offer of Bribe.

The house committee investigating lobbying heard from Representative Frank J. Berka [Dem., Saginaw] charges that B. E. Henderson, Chicago, vice president of the Household Finance corporation, had offered him $5,000 if he would use his influence to prevent lowering of the small loan interest rate below 2½ per cent monthly. Berka told the committee Henderson telephoned him while the bill was under consideration of a conference committee of which Berka was a member.

"Henderson asked that I join him for a walk," Berka said. "I met him at his hotel and we walked around the capitol grounds. He told me his company had too large an investment in this state to permit passage of the small loan bill which endangered this investment. He said he would give me $1,000 in cash and $4,000 later if I would see that the bill came out at 2½ per cent."

Approached Again, He Says.

Berka said he flatly rejected the offer. He said that at another time he was offered $3,000 by another man, representing cancellation of an obligation he had paid a small loan company in behalf of a kinsman, if he would favor the small loan companies. He also spurned this offer, he said.

The committee decided against further action because Berka was the only legislator who directly made the charges. Representative George Watson [Rep., Capac], who served on the same committee with Berka, told the committee he was made the same offer, but did not know the man who made it.

Gov. Comstock vetoed that act and its friends were unable to muster sufficient strength yesterday to repass it by the necessary two-thirds majority.

The investigating committee decided to continue its work until Jan. 1.

DENIES HE OFFERED BRIBE.

A statement issued by B. E. Henderson, vice president of the Household Finance corporation, yesterday characterized the charges made by Representative Berka as false, melodramatic and ridiculous.

"I was in Lansing several days during the session and appeared before the conference committee while it was considering small loan matters," Mr. Henderson said. "I talked with Representative Berka and several other legislators, but my conversations were entirely proper and ethical and devoted to the merits of the legislation.

"It is significant that this story should be released just when important legislation is due on the matter in question. The details of the story make it ridiculous."

What kind of leaf tobacco is best for pipes..how should pipe tobacco be made

a sensible package 10 cents

TOBACCO to smoke right in a pipe has to be a different kind of leaf tobacco from what is used in cigarettes, and it has to be made by an entirely different process.

OUT in Kentucky there grows a tobacco called White Burley that is found nowhere else in the world.

There is a type of this White Burley tobacco that is best suited for pipe smoking. It is not light and chaffy, at the same time it is not rank or raw. U. S. Type No. 31 is the Government classification for White Burley.

Since no other pipe tobacco has yet been found which seems to equal White Burley, this leaf tobacco is what we use in making Granger Rough Cut. Then the next step after we select the right leaf tobacco is the question of making pipe tobacco out of it.

In making Granger we use a method discovered by Mr. J. N. Wellman back in 1870, because no process has yet been invented that seems to be as good.

White Burley is the best leaf tobacco for pipes, and Wellman's Method is the best way to make pipe tobacco.

Says War on Gen. Feng Is Only a 'Smoke Screen.'

BY JOHN POWELL.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SHANGHAI, July 19 [Wednesday].—A soviet Russian spokesman here today said the recently launched Japanese drive against the city of Dolonor, in Chahar province west of Jehol, has as its real objective the invasion and conquest of Mongolia. The Japanese, it is alleged, purpose to swing the Mongolian tribesmen to support of the Japanese controlled state of Manchukuo.

(Dolonor was captured last week by Gen. Feng Yu-hsiang, the so-called Christian general, from Manchukuan and Japanese troops who had seized the city some weeks ago. Gen. Feng is opposed to the Nanking régime.

See New Crisis with Russia.

The reported objective of the Japanese forces is likely to produce a grave crisis with soviet Russia. Outer Mongolia is a part of the soviet union, while Mongolia proper borders Russian territory for thousands of miles.

The soviet spokesman also charged that Japanese intrigue is responsible for the rebellion among Mohammedans in Sinkiang province, or Chinese Turkestan, which is located west of Mongolia and also borders on the soviet union.

The spokesman reiterated the charge originally made by Moscow that Gen. Feng has received the support of a powerful faction of the Japanese army which is desirous of keeping the Sino-Japanese conflict going.

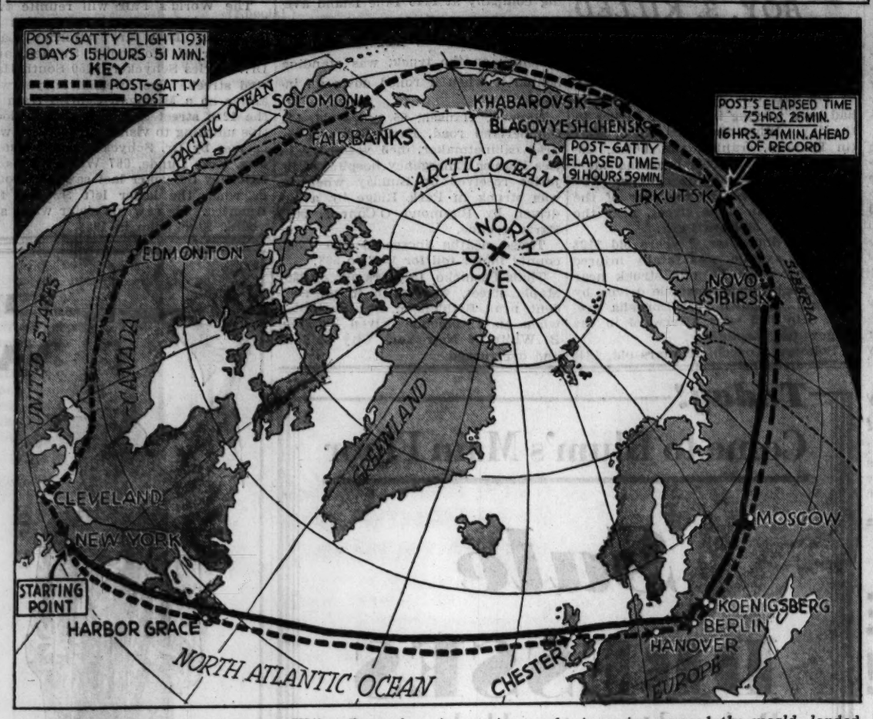
Japs Charge Russian Intrigue.

A Rengo [Japanese] dispatch from Mukden tonight charged equally strongly that Gen. Feng is receiving support from Moscow as well as the Third Internationale at Moscow.

According to Japanese reports, Field Marshal Muto, commander of the Japanese forces in Manchukuo, has ordered a combined Japanese-Manchukuan expedition against Gen. Feng's troops. The Dolonor expedition is composed of 20,000 Manchukuan troops under the command of Gen. Li Shoushen and the Japanese eighth division.

A report from Tientsin said Japanese bombing planes, tanks, armored cars, artillery and other supplies are being transported to Western Jehol province from the Japanese base at Jehol City. This indicates that the campaign is to be much more extensive than the mere dislodging of Gen. Feng's poorly equipped army of 10,000 troops now holding Dolonor.

MORE THAN HALF WAY AROUND THE WORLD



Still ahead of his old record, Wiley Post, American aviator who is racing around the world, landed at Irkutsk, Siberia, at 3:35 p. m. Moscow time yesterday (7:35 a. m. Chicago daylight saving time) on an 890 mile hop from Novo-Sibirsk. Upon descending at Irkutsk the lone flyer had covered more than half the distance around the world. After several hours of sleep, rain and fog delayed his takeoff for Khabarovsk, 1,400 miles to the east. He was 16 hours and 34 minutes ahead of the record set by Harold Gatty and himself in 1931 upon reaching Irkutsk. (Story on page 1.)

SCHOOL BOARD AFFIRMS STAND ON ECONOMIES

Hopes to Absorb All the Displaced Employes.

While the executive officers of the school board continued their work on the details of the economy program, which eliminates junior high schools, closes Crane Junior college, and abolishes numerous supervisory positions, the teachers were organizing a protest.

John Fewkes, a leader of teachers' demonstrations, announced plans for a massmeeting to be held in the Chicago Stadium Friday night to protest against the economy program. Mrs. Walter H. Buhlig, co-chairman of the meeting, issued the following list of speakers: Dean Charles Judd of the University of Chicago school of education; Rabbi Solomon Goldman, Dr. John A. Lapp, Mrs. Hefferan and Mrs. Holland Flagler, president of the Illinois Congress of Parents and Teachers, and Jack Light, president of the student citizens' group. A high school band, orchestra, choir and a chorus of Parent-Teacher organization singers will also take part in the program.

Call Committee Meeting.

A meeting of the voluntary emergency committee, which is headed by Fewkes, was called for this afternoon at the Central Y. M. C. A. to cooperate with the "Save Our Schools" committee. The latter group is headed by Mrs. Flagler. Both organizations are circulating a petition attacking the board's retrenchments.

A letter criticizing the board's action was sent to each trustee by the Chicago Woman's club. The communication was signed by Mrs. Florence C. Hoefels and read as follows:

"The board of managers of the Chicago Woman's club, an organization numbering 1,659 members, wishes to register a vigorous protest against the drastic cuts in the educational budget which cannot fail to affect seriously the education standards of the Chicago public schools, especially as this was done without consulting your educational experts, a method unprecedented in the history of the Chicago public schools.

"It seems to us that the necessary economies could be effected without limiting so seriously the educational opportunities of our children. We believe that the cuts you are making in the educational department are out of all proportion to those in the business administration department."

Want Superintendent in Charge.

The letter advocated placing all business administration in the hands of the superintendent of schools.

A letter protesting the economy program was sent to President Roosevelt by the Rogers Park Civic league, of which Charles West is president.

"Mr. President, Chicago needs your help today—tomorrow may be too late," read the communication in part. "Help us in our struggle to keep our schools for our children. Unless you intervene in our behalf we fear that local officials—crazed by the 'economy' bugaboo—will wreck our schools."

Mayor Announces Cash Pay Day for City Help

Mayor Kelly announced yesterday that city employés will receive a $1,800,000 cash pay day before the end of the week. The pay day, for the last half of March, will leave city workers three and a half months in arrears. The county yesterday began to pay its employés in 1932 tax anticipation warrants. Warrants have been drawn for more than $700,000 to meet pay rolls for last January. The county has never before paid its employés in warrants. Acceptance of the warrants is optional. Most of the employés have signified their intention of accepting them. An employé will receive two warrants, each for a half month's pay.

LITHUANIA BURIES U. S. FLYERS WITH POMP TOMORROW

100,000 to Pay Tribute to Chicagoans.

BY DONALD DAY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

KAUNAS, Lithuania, July 18.—Maurice L. Stafford, acting charge d'affaires of the American legation here, ordered the legation flag flown at half staff today when the Lithuanian cabinet at a special session decided to bring the bodies of the two and Stanley Girenas, to this capital by airplane.

Thus the two Chicago pilots who crashed yesterday near Soldin, Germany, after having flown across the Atlantic ocean, will complete the flight they had planned for the last six years.

State Funeral Thursday.

The coffins of the Lithuanian-American flyers will be decorated with the Lithuanian and the German Nazi flag. The bodies will be accompanied by a sack of mail containing greetings from American-Lithuanian families to their relatives. The mail bag was not damaged when the monoplane Lituanica was wrecked.

The funeral plane is expected to arrive in Kaunas from Germany tomorrow afternoon. The ship will be met by Prime Minister Tubelis, the entire Lithuanian cabinet, and the diplomatic corps, headed by Mr. Stafford. The American charge d'affaires also will attend the state funeral planned for Thursday at the Kaunas cathedral. The bodies will be interred temporarily until a mausoleum can be erected for them.

Kaunas, which had planned to illuminate the city with searchlights upon the arrival of the flyers, today ordered flags flown at half staff from every house in the city. Many foreign houses also unfurled flags in honor of the dead flyers.

President to Attend Burial.

President Smetona, who is vacationing at the seashore resort of Polangen, is expected to arrive in Kaunas for the funeral.

Anticipating a crowd of more than 100,000, the Kaunas police today began to make arrangements to control the ceremony upon the arrival of the funeral plane from Stettin. The coffins will be carried from the airport by Lithuanian army pilots, many of whom served with Capt. Darius, who won his captaincy and stripes by flying for the Lithuanian army.

BOLIVIA TURNS DOWN APPEAL OF LEAGUE TO HALT WAR IN CHACO

GENEVA, July 18.—(AP)—Bolivia delivered a communication to the league of nations today refusing the league's request to have troops adopt a defensive attitude in the Gran Chaco border area, where Bolivia and Paraguay are at war.

The note said such a couse would be tantamount to a cessation of hostilities, which, it said, would give the advantage to Paraguay and endanger the situation of the Bolivian armies.

"While a pacific solution of the conflict has not been reached," the communication said, "the government and the general staff alone are qualified to decide what attitude can be adopted in connection with the state of war declared by Paraguay."

URGES SCHOOLS INFORM PUBLIC OF THEIR WORTH

A campaign to educate citizens on the value of public schools was urged yesterday by Dr. James B. Edmonson, dean of the school of education of the University of Michigan, who addressed a conference of administrative officers of public and private schools at the University of Chicago. Some 200 educators from thirty states are attending.

Recent attacks on public schools, Dean Edmonson said, are due in part to the failure of the schools to interpret themselves adequately to the public. The result has been, he said, that proposals for drastic retrenchment have gained support from uninformed citizens. Educators, he declared, have suddenly discovered that schools can be readily victimized by demagogues and self-seekers. It is apparent, the dean continued, that many citizens need to be informed that schools have a social purpose.

A committee was appointed to draw up a resolution regarding the action of the Chicago school board in cutting school appropriations. The report, it is expected, will condemn the action. It will be presented Friday.

HOLD MEMORIAL SUNDAY FOR AIR CRASH VICTIMS

Public memorial services will be held at 6:30 o'clock Sunday evening in the Lithuanian auditorium at 3133 South Halsted street for Capt. Stephen Darius and Lieut. Stanley T. Girenas, Lithuanian born Chicagoans who lost their lives several days ago when their plane crashed in Germany after their trans-Atlantic flight from New York. They were bound for Kaunas, Lithuania.

Antanas Kaleitis, Lithuanian consul in Chicago and chairman of the flight committee, is in charge of arrangements.

Kleaofas Jurgelonis, Lithuanian-American poet, will be in charge of the memorial services, and B. K. Balutis, Lithuanian minister to the United States, will be the principal speaker. Mrs. Augustina Degutis, 60 years old, 3239 South Halsted street, mother of Capt. Darius, and several relatives of Lieut. Girenas will attend.

HALF MILLION GO BACK TO JOBS IN MONTH OF JUNE

Earnings Also Reported Increased.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 18.—[Special.]—During June 400,000 workers returned to jobs in factories of the United States, 100,000 more found work in nonmanufacturing industries, and employment in agriculture, the railroads and other industries not included in department of labor surveys showed a "significant increase."

Gains of 7 per cent in factory employment and 10.8 per cent in factory pay rolls made June the third consecutive month in which both employment and earnings have increased, the bureau of labor statistics reported today.

Warns Against Overoptimism.

Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins accompanied the report, however, with a warning against overoptimism and speculative production. A gain in a month normally marked by a seasonal decline was "heartening," she declared, but she pointed to the long climb still ahead before the country can regain the 1926 level taken as the base by the bureau in figuring its employment and pay roll indices.

The level of factory employment for the country as a whole was higher in June than in any month during the last year and a quarter, the bureau reported. The increase was scattered over the country, virtually every state sharing in the gains.

Since the bank holiday of last March, employment in United States manufacturing establishments has climbed 14 per cent and pay rolls 29 per cent. Of the 89 manufacturing industries surveyed 79 reported gains more in employment and 80 gains in pay rolls.

Beer Aids Employment.

Through the legalization of beer 95.9 per cent more persons are at work in the beverage industry than in June, 1932, and though new industries such as aircraft and rayon manufacture naturally show a substantial gain over the returns of seven years ago, pay roll gains in the great basic industries of the country, Miss Perkins said, have "not yet reached the size that a healthy economic situation demands."

Even in the cotton goods industry, which consumed more raw cotton in June than in any other month for more than 20 years, the money pay roll for last June was less than two-thirds of that in June, 1926, the secretary said. She lauded the industrial recovery program and urged employers to submit and abide by codes of fair competition. But this, she declared, was not enough.

"We must increase the purchasing power of the 40 million wage earners of the United States," Secretary Perkins declared, "so that they will be able to consume the increased output which is flowing from our factories.

Hits at Production Race.

"In the speculative race to produce as much as possible before wages and hours are fixed by the industrial codes—as appears to be the case in some industries—lies the danger of piling up surplus stocks which may prove a boomerang to business."

According to the bureau of labor statistics report, 13 of the 14 groups into which the 89 manufacturing industries are divided reported gains in June in both employment and pay rolls. The lumber products group with 13 per cent showed the most pronounced employment gain.

Divided by states, the employment gains in manufacturing establishments found Georgia in the lead, with a gain of 13.2 per cent. Other states showing gains of more than 10 per cent were North Carolina, Alabama, Vermont, Rhode Island, and Mississippi.

Central States Figures.

Central states gains were as follows:

	Per cent increase over month interval. Employment.	Pay rolls.
Illinois	5.2	7.0
Indiana	8.6	10.0
Iowa	3.6	3.8
Michigan	7.0	6.3

ICKES OPENS PUBLIC DOMAIN TO ALL AND BARS PRIVATE FENCES

Washington, D. C., July 18.—(AP)—Reversing the policy of his Republican predecessors, Secretary Ickes today ordered private fences removed from the public domain in the west, so that the lands may be opened to every one for grazing purposes.

The interior department, in announcing the secretary's action, said it would require tearing down many miles of fences which had been illegally erected by large cattle interests in Arizona and New Mexico.

Ickes immediately moved to enforce his order, directing the special agent of the department at Santa Fe, N. M., to "take action in accordance with the regulations looking to the removal of all unlawful fences in these states."

The fencing of public lands has been the subject of controversy in the department and congress for many years. The announcement today cited an act of Feb. 25, 1885, making construction and maintenance of such inclosures a criminal offense punishable by fine or imprisonment, as well as a civil offense.

ALIMONY CLUB'S 'FORGOTTEN MAN' GAINS RELEASE

William Grosskopf, 51 years old, the "forgotten man" of the county jail alimony club, was freed yesterday by Circuit Judge Joseph Burke. As a result the club had to hold an election for another sheriff to maintain order at its kangaroo court sessions.

Grosskopf had been in jail for 14 months. He and his first wife, Mrs. Pauling Grosskopf Solon, both remarried after she divorced him in 1926 and got an order for $10 a week for the support of their two children. In May, 1932, the second Mrs. Grosskopf returned to her home in Germany. Mrs. Solon went into court, charged that Grosskopf was planning to follow, and won a writ of ne exeat to prevent his leaving the jurisdiction of Illinois courts.

Grosskopf was unable to post the bond required by the writ, and stayed in jail until yesterday. Attorney Milton H. Nelson, representing the Legal Aid society, brought his condition to the attention of Judge Burke. The judge asked Grosskopf what he had been doing in jail.

"I'm the sheriff of the kangaroo court," replied Grosskopf.

"Maybe I'd better not let you out," said Judge Burke. "What will they do for a sheriff?"

"O, they can elect another one," said the prisoner.

PREVIEW GIVEN OF MOVIE BASED ON CERMAK LIFE

Mayor Kelly and about 25 aldermen had a preview yesterday in the council chambers of "The Man Who Dared," a motion picture based on incidents in the life of the late Mayor Cermak, which will be shown in Chicago next month.

The hero, Jan Novak, is played in adult life by Preston Foster. The picture opens with the arrival of his parents from Bohemia, bearing their infant son in their arms. They reach Chicago as the great fire is raging and go on to the coal mining town of Braidwood, where Mayor Cermak spent his boyhood.

Subsequently the film traces Jan Novak's struggles as a young wood peddler on the west side, his rise in politics and his marriage. The final scenes show his assassination in Florida, where he had gone to invite the President elect to attend the World's Fair.

100 TAX RECEIVER SUITS ARE FILED IN COUNTY COURT

8 More Properties Put in Official Hands.

Eight tax delinquent properties were ordered into receivership yesterday by County Judge Jarecki in the drive to collect back taxes under the Kerner-Skarda act. At the same time County Treasurer McDonough filed petitions in the court to place 100 other properties, owing $243,906, in receivership.

The properties placed in receivership, with taxes due, are:

6019	Winthrop avenue	$4,570
6310	Broadway	3,318
5064	North Winchester avenue	3,336
4933	North Lincoln street	3,156
6960	North Ashland avenue	5,414
1454	Thorndale avenue	3,535
753	North Clark street	6,435
6400	Glenwood avenue	4,629

A total of $17,000 in delinquent taxes was paid by property owners who avoided receiverships. Three suits were dismissed when owners of the properties involved produced receipts showing they had paid their taxes. George W. Kennedy showed he had paid taxes of $4,704 on property at 6201 North Claremont street; Constantine Avergerinos, $3,456 on property at 739 North Clark street, and Lucille A. Brenn, $1,423 on property at 902 Glengyle place.

Assessor J. L. Jacobs reported yesterday on 54,667 complaints against 1931 real estate taxes thus far heard by the board of tax appeals. Of the total 16,563 assessments, or 30 per cent, have been corrected. Of the corrections 7,944 were confirmations of reductions recommended by the assessor's office.

Changes by the board of appeals on its own motion totaled 8,619. There were no changes allowed in 38,104 cases. The board of appeals has still to pass upon approximately 40,000 complaints.

TAXI OPERATOR ARRESTED.

Judge Thomas A. Green in the Traffic court yesterday issued eight warrants for the arrest of James Bennett, 40 years old, colored, 4329 Indiana avenue, operator of four taxicabs. The warrants charge Bennett with altering and duplicating state license plates on his cars.

CLUB WOMEN HELP GIRL WORKERS IN GARMENT STRIKE

Shopgirls on strike at the La Mode Garment company, 711 West Lake street, were joined in picketing the place yesterday by several club women. The girls are protesting against what they describe as starvation wages. Their charges are denied by company officials.

The club women who helped picket were Miss Alice Boynton, member of the Chicago's Woman's club and president of a peace society, and Mrs. Lola M. Lloyd, of Winnetka. Mrs. Lloyd was accompanied by her two daughters. Also present was Mrs. Carl Beck, of the Webster hotel.

Miss Lloyd yesterday carried to the strikers a message of support from Miss Margaret Grace Bondfield, former British minister of labor, who is in Chicago attending the International Congress of Women.

According to the strikers, they work seven days a week, averaging 60 hours, and average from $3.50 to $7 a week in pay. Robert K. Gershenow, president of the La Mode company, denies this. He said the girls work 49 hours a week and earn from $8.50 to $15 a week. The company, he said, has already given the girls a 10 per cent raise and intends to give another one.

TAX COLLECTIONS.

Real estate tax collections yesterday totaled $288,353. A total of $37,872,134 has been collected since enforcement of the Kerner-Skarda act began April 28. The day's real estate tax collections and the uncollected taxes for four years are shown in the following table:

	1928.	1929.
July 18	$ 23,027	$ 73,126
Uncollected	18,659,183	49,280,126
	1930.	1931.
July 18	$ 75,959	$ 116,241
Uncollected	79,583,406	168,543,398

WALLACE WON'T CURTAIL FARM CONTROL PLANS

Insists He'll Continue to Collect Processing Tax.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 18.—[Special.]—The highest prices since 1929 and a wheat crop that may fall short of 500,000,000 bushels are no reason for curtailing or halting the plan for federal control of wheat production, Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace announced today. It would be both "short sighted" and "erroneous," he asserted, to cease the collection of the 30 cents per bushel processing tax which was imposed July 9, on the theory that the revenues were to go to farmers who cut production, thereby bringing the price they received to a pre-war parity with prices of products they must purchase.

Won't Alter U. S. Policy.

The fact that the present wheat prices are above the parity price instead of 30 cents below it does not remove the necessity for control of the wheat farmer from Washington, the secretary explained.

In the meantime, having announced that it will investigate charges of exorbitant bread price increases in 40 communities, including Chicago, the department of justice tonight was trying to find some legal grounds for federal action.

Anti-Trust Laws Useless.

Anti-trust laws, through which the central government usually strikes at price questions, admitted to be useless in most of the bread price cases. They can not touch intra-state trade, such as most of the baking businesses are.

The agricultural adjustment act, which started the price increases by its processing tax, gives the government right only to investigate and publicize price rises. It appeared tonight that this would have to be the extent of the government's action and that a dangerous hole through which the consumer might be squeezed had been exposed in the recovery program.

Chicago was the only city in Illinois from which the department reported a complaint on bread prices and in which an investigation will be started. The other 39 cities on the department's list were scattered over 21 states and the District of Columbia.

ASK SMALLER CORN CROP

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Des Moines, Ia., July 18.—[Special.]—The federal government today was urged by farm organization leaders of ten corn belt states to take immediate steps to raise the price of hogs by utilizing the powers given the department of agriculture under the farm adjustment act to curtail production of corn and live stock.

The demand was voiced in a resolution adopted by the conference at the Hotel Kirkwood of picked delegates from each of the states where corn and hogs are main sources of revenue. The conference was called at the instance of Secretary Wallace, following preliminary state meetings.

Other Grains Near Parity.

The demands were made because prices of corn and other grains have advanced in recent weeks to almost the point of "parity with the pre-war period" named in the federal farm act as that to which farm prices must be boosted. Meanwhile, they maintained, hogs and cattle have failed to rise in prices, forcing "distressed sales" of meat animals because farmers were either unable to buy high priced feeds or had no crops to feed because of the drought over the Mississippi valley.

Confer in Chicago Tomorrow.

The producers' conference here today named a committee to speak for farmers in a second conference which has been called by the federal farm administrators with the nation's meat packers in Chicago Thursday.

A trade agreement drafted by the packers has been under consideration by Secretary Wallace and Guy S. Shepard, his administrator of the meat packing industry, for some time.

There were dissenting delegations at today's meeting. John D. Jones, chairman of the Wisconsin delegation, said Wisconsin farmers were opposed to artificial attempts to control farm production.

The Nebraska delegation, as well as those from Ohio, went on record as opposed to a processing tax on meat, favoring a trade agreement for the industry.

Couple Live Together in Silence 10 Years, Wife Says

Frank Wach, an engineer in a city pumping station, returned to his home at 2433 Euclid avenue, Berwyn, one day in 1923 carrying a pint of whisky on his hip, and considerably more on his breath. His wife, Rose, took the bottle away from him. Since then he has not spoken to her. She made those charges yesterday in a bill for divorce filed by Attorney Victor Frohlich. The couple was married in 1903 and lived together in silence until last June 26 when they separated, Mrs. Wach stated.

NINE DIVISIONS OF GOVERNMENT STAY IN BUDGET

Fiscal Report Shows 149 Millions Saved.

Washington, D. C., July 18.—[Special.]—Nine out of the fifteen major divisions of the federal government kept their expenditures for the fiscal year which ended two weeks ago under the official budget estimates laid down for them, the treasury department announced today.

Estimated to cost the taxpayers 2 billion 505 million dollars in the 12 months of the fiscal year which closed June 30, the 15 departments actually spent only 2 billion 356 millions, a saving under the estimates of 149 millions, the final check-up shows.

Save on Other Departments.

Savings on other nondepartmental items such as public debt interest, postal deficit and refunds of receipts brought the total reduction under budget estimates to 246 million dollars. All expenditures were 3 billion 866 million dollars compared with the estimate of 4 billion 112 million made six months ago by the treasury.

The only departments to exceed their budget estimates were the state, interior, war, commerce, and labor departments and the White House establishment. Their total excess over estimates was 19 million dollars. Gross savings by other departments amounted to 168 millions, leaving a net saving of 149 millions on departmental items.

Table of Results.

The departments, their expenditures and their reductions under or excesses over budget estimates, are:

White House	$ 369,112	+$ 15,000
Capitol	21,477,373	—3,200,000
State department	15,225,569	+1,100,000

Justice departmnt	44,088,327	—1,300,000
Postoffice	57,883	—17,000

Independent of'ces	45,237,467	—700,000

Among the non-departmental items, interest on the public debt was $5,600,000 lower than had been anticipated, the postal deficit was $16,600,000 smaller, public debt sinking fund was $34,600,000 smaller, and refunds of receipts were $16,900,000 larger.

Judge Frees Defendant Held in Liquor Death

Judge Harry H. Porter in the Evanston Municipal court yesterday dismissed a charge of selling liquor against Joseph Bladorski, 1608 Greenleaf avenue, Evanston. Bladorski was arrested after the death of Elof Ekman, 31 years old, 1229 Chicago avenue, Evanston on April 10. Ekman's roommate, Gust Akeson, had testified before a coroner's jury that he and Ekman had purchased moonshine from Bladorski. Judge Porter held that there were insufficient grounds for conviction.

FARMERS WANT BASE PRICE OF MILK RAISED 43%

Crop Failure in Chicago Area Given as Cause.

Representatives of 139 branches of the Pure Milk association, an organization of 18,000 dairy farmers in the Chicago milk shed, yesterday instructed their board of directors to begin negotiations of a 43 per cent increase in the base price of milk, from $1.75 to $2.50 a hundredweight. The action was taken at the quarterly educational meeting of the association, held in the Auditorium hotel.

Reports on crop conditions in the association territory indicate that this year's harvest will be about 40 per cent of normal because of prolonged drouths and hailstorms. The crops of 2,200 farmers in seven counties of northeastern Illinois were destroyed by hail, speakers declared.

Bran Prices Go Up.

Because of poor crops and the increase in the price of wheat, which affects the price of bran used to feed dairy cattle, the farmers declared, it is imperative that the price paid them for milk be increased.

The association adopted a resolution expressing confidence in Don N. Geyer, general manager and secretary, reversing the stand of some of the farmers several weeks ago when, by an informal vote, they demanded his resignation because of the delay in obtaining federal approval of a milk trade agreement.

The farmers were fearful that the milk industry was to be placed under the control of the industrial recovery administration, instead of the secretary of agriculture under the farm adjustment act. However, it has been decided in Washington that the milk industry is to be controlled by the agricultural department and receive the benefits to agriculture proposed by President Roosevelt in the farm adjustment act.

Expect Early Ratification.

These matters were explained by Mr. Geyer, who said the the trade agreement would be ratified formally by Secretary Wallace within a few days. After this agreement, which was reached by the producers and distributors on May 11, the directors of the Pure Milk association will begin negotiations with Secretary Wallace for an amendment to the price schedules. The proposed increase would result in higher retail prices for milk in Chicago. The present retail price is 10 cents a quart.

DIES AS RESULT OF FALL.

James Felix, 38 years old, colored, 3484 Archer avenue, died yesterday at the county hospital of injuries incurred when he fell down a flight of stairs in the rear of 2939 South Dearborn street on Sunday.

KILLS WOMAN, HER DAUGHTER, HIMSELF; WAS SPURNED SUITOR

Pontiac, Mich., July 18.—[Special.]—Mrs. Rose Gaylock, 22 years old, and her 4 year old daughter were dead here today, and Charles King, 32 years old, who fatally wounded them when Mrs. Gaylock resisted his attentions last night, committed suicide as the police came to arrest him. King shot and killed the mother and crushed the child's head with a blow.

Mrs. Gaylock's husband, who was at work when the tragedy occurred, said King had been annoying his wife. The police found Mrs. Gaylock dead and the child dying after neighbors had reported hearing shots. Gaylock told the police to search for King.

When the police went to the home where King lived with his parents they heard a shot upstairs and found him dying of a bullet wound in the head. King also bore wounds in the knee and hand. The police said that they were inflicted by Mrs. Gaylock as she fought for her life.

Chicagoan Named Clerk of State Supreme Court

Springfield, Ill., July 18.—[Special.]—Adam F. Bloch, clerk of the state Supreme court, today announced the appointment of A. B. Urbanek of Chicago as his chief clerk. He succeeds Robert L. Conn of Springfield, who has been in the office for two years. The appointment is effective Aug. 1. Urbanek has been Mr. Bloch's associate in the publishing business in Chicago.

WARN CHICAGO TO GO SLOWLY IN SEEKING U. S. AID

Chicago officials were advised, out of regard for overburdened taxpayers, to go slowly in seeking funds from the federal public works appropriations for various improvements in the city. The warning was contained in a report made public yesterday by the Civic Federation and Bureau of Public Efficiency.

The report points out that of approximately $1,400,000,000 made available under the national recovery act to finance local improvements by states and municipalities, only 30 per cent is to be an outright gift from the federal government. The remaining 70 per cent of the funds will be in the form of loans at 4 per cent interest, which can be repaid only by increasing local or state taxes.

Ask Money for Canal Work.

The federation made one exception to its general warning when the report stated:

"We think it extremely important to secure all the federal credit requisite for the financing of our schools and our other essential public agencies, and also to supply money for the construction work which the Supreme court has required the sanitary district to undertake."

As to other projects, the report urges that officials proceed with "utmost caution." The assertion is made that the benefit from increased employment arising from the federally financed projects "would be too slight to count as a benefit when compared with the damage of increased taxes."

Points to City Tax Rates.

"Tax rates for the city of Chicago for 1931, the last to be extended," the report points out, "ranged from $7.18 per $100 taxable value of property on the west side, to $7.56 in the Lincoln park district. Probable reduction in assessments will prevent much, if any, lessening of these rates for 1932 taxes, the next to be billed. Rates for 1933, in spite of governmental economies, are not unlikely to be still higher.

"This will be due to unavoidable refinancing measures necessitated in part by the tax strike, in part by delayed tax collections, and in part by the fact that much money reserved against delayed tax bills was lost during the period of bank failures.

"As a result, it is difficult to collect the taxes that are now due. To add appreciably to the amount of these current tax bills will render tax collections still more difficult and add further to the embarrassments, curtailment of services, and ultimate costs of local government."

Holds My FALSE TEETH Tighter and Longer

I've tried several kinds of powders to hold my false teeth. When I tried FASTEETH I found the one powder that does not thin out or wash away, but "stays put" all day. It gives a most pleasant feeling, a real sense of security, and holds and holds and holds. Breath is always pleasant. If any one with loose-fitting false teeth wants all-day comfort and a real stay there fit, insist upon FASTEETH at Walgreen's or any good drug store.

"The newspaper is an institution developed by civilization to present the news of the day, to foster commerce and industry, to inform and mold public opinion, and to furnish that check upon government which no constitution has ever been able to provide."

THE STRANGE CASE OF THE CITIZEN AND HIS GOVERNMENT.

Recent news revealed that about forty citizens of the Chicago district have provided themselves with bodyguards for security against gangsters who might run off with them and hold them for ransom. Another bit of news concerned a place which had been held up twice in two weeks and which had prepared for a third visit. Two bandits were killed when they attempted another robbery. A bank which had been similarly prepared for self-protection was the scene of another such successful resistance in which bandits were killed.

It was the old conception of government that authority protected the individual in his life and property, and with the assurance that this could be relied upon the citizen went about his business and supported himself and family. Government was organized to afford him security and he felt that his own efforts were free to provide his subsistence. His security was the government's business. His business was his own.

Now his security is his own business and his other enterprises are the government's business. If a citizen can employ his own police force or if he is a good shot prepared and entrenched for emergencies he may be able to beat off the attack of criminals. Meanwhile the government agent will enter his counting room and examine his books to supervise the management of his affairs.

It is observable that as the new government functions increase the old functions are less considered and less relied upon. The individual cannot trust his authorities to protect his life and property, but he may expect them to enter his private undertakings and inform him how they shall be carried on, except that he will not be told how they may be protected from acts of violence. The individual must do what the government should, the government will do what should be intrusted to the individual. So extraordinary an inversion must be regarded with increasing interest.

DETROIT'S NEW BANKS.

The outlines of the new banking structure in Detroit are now becoming visible. The moratorium there was one of the incidents, and probably the chief one, which precipitated the national banking holiday in March. The efforts in the intervening months by depositors, industrialists, government officials, and others seem to have resulted in the creation of two important banks, the one controlled by General Motors, Walter Chrysler, and the R. F. C., and the other controlled by Henry Ford.

Whether this was the best possible solution or the only possible solution are questions which can hardly be answered on the basis of available evidence. It is curious, however, that the new setup which is to be achieved with the help of the government is one which many students of banking and finance will regard with disfavor. The record of banks which are the handmaidens of particular industries and particular corporations is not wholly reassuring. Banks so constituted have often been more concerned to finance the industries which control them than to protect depositors and serve the broader community interests. In theory the ideal banker is one who not only knows all that can be known about the business of those applying for loans but also examines the accounts of applicants with a cold and impartial eye. It is in the second of these conditions that the Detroit setup seems weak.

This is not said in derogation of those who have subscribed capital for the new banks. A city of the size and importance of Detroit must have adequate banking services if the business of the entire nation is not to suffer. As no one else seemed able or willing to undertake the task, the duty of organizing banks fell to the industrialists. It is curious, nevertheless, that the government, represented by the R. F. C., has accepted a solution which runs counter to sound theory and practice.

ALIMONY AND EQUITY.

The first applications of the reciprocal alimony act, under which two women have been ordered to contribute to the support of their former marital partners, no doubt are equitable, but it is to be hoped the new law will not operate to multiply the victims of alimony rackets. It certainly was not the intention of the supporters of the act to extend the opportunities of blackmail and extortion, hitherto open only to designing women and their legal aids, to designing men and their lawyers. There are no doubt cases in which alimony may be as justly required of the woman as of the man, but they must be exceptional, and justice probably, as well as public morals, calls for a reduction of alimony decrees rather than an increase of them.

The real cure of the alimony racket lies with the judges rather than in any statute. Chancellors guided by a true sense of equity and alert to discover fraud will not impose alimony, much less harsh penalties, where conditions do not justify. This may be a truism, but a survey of alimony cases not only in this jurisdiction but in many others reveals an astonishing number of orders for alimony and for enforcement of payments which show a lack of equity and even a lack of common sense. The alimony racket has thrived mainly because too many justices in equity have shown little sense of equity.

CHANGING CHARACTERS OF THE SHIFTING SCENE.

The permutations of personnel in Washington may not be the most significant phenomenon there, but they are at least interesting. The shifts and recombinations may only indicate special opportunities seized by special individuals and reported by a somewhat dazed journalism, but the appearance and disappearance of persons in authority is like the filling and busting of bubbles.

Two months ago one would have thought that Miss Frances Perkins, secretary of labor, decidedly dominated the stage. She was front and center and it seemed that the industrial recovery was to be at her determination and manipulation. Suddenly Miss Perkins retires into the routine of her department and Gen. Hugh Johnson is to the fore, although with equal suddenness, Donald Richberg, known only as a rather acidulous labor lawyer, was laying down the law in tones more vehement than any which had been in Gen. Johnson's voice.

There was a time when the principal personages seemed to be Profs. Mordecai Ezekiel, Rexford Tugwell, and Raymond Moley. Mr. Ezekiel disappeared from the news with a dispatch which would indicate the springing of a trapdoor. Mr. Tugwell remains Mr. Wallace's alter ego in the agricultural readjustments, but Mr. Moley as the inner voice of Secretary of State Cordell Hull may be headed for the depths into which Mr. Ezekiel disappeared.

Mr. Moley as the inner voice of Mr. Hull needed an inner voice of his own and selected Mr. Herbert Bayard Swope. These two voices in London run up a $2,000 transoceanic telephone bill in a few days and then came home.

The mystery of their appearance in London remains a mystery in spite of this expensive talking, and, although Mr. Hull may have been very glad on their return to these shores to have some of the complications removed from his much complicated life in London, he has refused to pay the bills Mr. Moley and Mr. Swope left behind them. Mr. Moley shares the general perplexity regarding his journey to the conference and it may be that he will be lost in the labyrinth of changes in which the new bureaucracy is involved.

At first there was nothing to indicate that Mr. Ickes would be anything more than secretary of the interior, but with control of the public works program in his hands he has become the outstanding figure in Washington, with the largest domain at present being administered. Two rising figures are unquestionably Arthur E. Morgan, the chairman of the board of the Tennessee Valley Authority, and Joseph B. Eastman, the federal railroad coördinator. The rise and fall of personages probably indicates only the rapidity with which the new deal deals. But it has become almost impossible for the Washington correspondents, for whom no thirty hour week can possibly be proposed, to predict who will be next to appear with thirteen trumps in his hand.

DARIUS AND GIRENAS.

Admiration for the daring and skill of the Lithuanian flyers mingles with the sorrow felt in the city of their adoption for their tragic end. Although they met fatal accident four hundred miles from their objective, the Lithuanian capital, their navigation had been astonishingly true, and had it not been for the failure of their plane they would have achieved a most brilliant flight. Their feat, therefore, notwithstanding its unhappy ending, will have a high place in the records of long flight pioneering and their names will be cherished among the tragic heroes of man's unceasing war with nature.

CASH AND CARRY.

The objection of independent milk distributors to a rate which charges the same price for milk taken on a cash and carry basis as for milk delivered will have the support of the consumer. Certainly it seems reasonable that a citizen, if he wishes to save the expense of delivery by going to a shop and taking his purchase home with him, should have that choice open to him. It is to be hoped the department of agriculture will reconsider, if its intention, as reported, is to impose a rate which would permit no allowance for self-service.

Editorial of the Day

THE SURE WAY TO GET RID OF LOBBYISTS.

[Detroit News.]

Texas has an anti-lobbying act which makes it unlawful for a paid agent to solicit privately the vote of a member of the legislature or to endeavor privately to influence him regarding any measure before that body. That it hasn't stopped lobbying was revealed by a recent decision of the Texas Supreme court. An agent hired by a farm bureau association to appeal to individual legislators was unpaid and sued for his money. The court held that the contract was illegal under the law. The lobbyist went unpaid, but according to his claim he had delivered the goods and was entitled to the money.

There never was an anti-lobbying act passed that the lobbyists and their employers couldn't find means of circumventing. If a member of the legislature sits in a poker game with a lobbyist who time after time throws in his hand, allowing the member to win, he must be a pretty dumb boy not to realize that he is being paid for value hoped to be received. If he wakes up in the morning and finds a package of money on the floor of his room he may appear surprised, but he has a pretty keen suspicion of its source. But in neither case is there any evidence to implicate the lobbyist. The legislator who is given the key to a room in which he can get a drink at any hour of the day or night must know that he is being shown a favor for a particular purpose, even if he doesn't grasp the idea that his host thinks him very cheap.

Such being the methods of the astute lobbyists, there remains only one sure protection of the public interest against these gentry. That is to send to the legislature men who cannot be corrupted and are above suspicion of giving their votes for money, favor, or any consideration outside the public weal. There are tens of thousands of such men in every state out of whom any wide awake community can make an intelligent selection. The district that holds back and refuses to act until it has merely a choice between spoiled apples has only itself to blame if it discovers after the legislature meets that lobbies are numerous and busy, and are getting what they want.

It is political inertia at home that sends to our law-making bodies men who are susceptible to influence by lobbyists. Elect only the other kind and the lobbyist would pass out of existence, for no one will continue to employ a man who can't deliver the goods. That is the way to get rid of lobbyists, and the sure way.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

Hew to the Line, let the quips fall where they may.

THE WORLD MUST BE much kinder and more appreciative of its great men than it used to be. Look at Christopher Columbus, the first intrepid adventurer to come to this country. He wrote one of the greatest pages in history and for a reward was thrown into a dungeon and sent home in chains. But Gen. Balbo, no less daring than Columbus, is dined (and in spite of the sacred 18th probably wined), hurrahed to the echo, and for practically three long days has had salvos of after-dinner speeches shot, broadside after broadside, straight at his head. Fortunately the general does not speak English (I hope), so he still survives. I admire both Columbus and Balbo, but probably I feel a greater affection for Leif Ericson, who shares with Columbus the honor of discovery. Columbus discovered America and then told the cock-eyed world. Ericson discovered America and went back home and forgot about it. If Columbus had been as discreet as Ericson we wouldn't be having all these income taxes and farm problems and sales taxes and racketeers and kidnapers and hijackers and bandits. Nor would we have had the radio, Mr. Moley, the drys, and jazz and the movies. Christopher Columbus was undoubtedly a great man, but he talked too much. Mr. Ericson knew how to keep his mouth shut. But Gen. Balbo can talk all he likes when he goes home; he doesn't have to follow Leif Ericson's example and say nothing to nobody. It doesn't make any difference now. The mischief's done. But just the same I'm strong for Leif Ericson. He could discover a new world and not write home about it. No, he didn't even add a P. S.—"I have just found America." He just forgot it. Noble old Leif!

MY CREED.

My creed is: stars,
And wild birds flying;
October winds
And hills low-lying;

The late March snows
And April's waking,
With orchard trees
Their pink wealth shaking;

A red-brown road
From towns far leading
Through vistas wide—
Old cares unheeding;

A plain, sweet hut
By meadows waiting
For hearts grown tired
Of human hating;

Old-fashioned flowers,
And rains light-tapping;
Wide, sandy shores
And bright waves flapping.

So here's my creed—
And how I love it!—
Beauty in earth,
And God above it!

THOMAS CURTIS CLARK.

IT IS SAID there is a town somewhere out west that not only has declined to ask funds from the Reconstruction Finance corporation, but when their congressman offered them a nice hunk of government money they refused it. The name of the town is being kept secret in Washington until the citizens can be rounded up and taken to the psychopathic hospital for examination.

I AM SLOWLY being convinced that Mr. John Factor, whose presence in England is most urgently desired, is also known as Jake the Barber. Or is Jake the Barber two other fellows?

ODE TO MY VENERABLE TYPEWRITER.

Tinny tintophony, cursed cacophony,
Pandemoniacal clink
Onomatopical, kaleidoscopical
Clinkety, clang ka-tink!

H. ELTON PEASE' ASSISTANT.

DURING THE CIVIL WAR and long afterwards, even to this day, a style of whiskers on the face resembling lace curtains parted in the middle was called burnsides after Gen. Burnside, who was one of the finest growers of whiskers and the rottenest generals who ever lived. Now chin whiskers are going to be known, in fact are being known, as Balbos in honor of Gen. Balbo, who has as fine a set as ever adorned a human countenance. And, in striking contrast to Gen. Burnside, Gen. Balbo also possesses a splendid set of brains. It will be a great relief to the wearers of chin whiskers to have themselves and their whiskers referred to as Balbos. Too often they have suffered in the past from being called Airedales. It made the real Airedales feel bad, too, because they are a proud, sensitive race of dogs and they hated to have their family name used in derision. But now it will be an honor to have a beard that can be called a Balbo, and everybody will be happier.

EXIGENT.

Lady, love a little;
Life is short, you know,
If along its pathway
Roses bud and blow.

Yet you must remember
Suns grow cold, and then
All love's-blossoms wither,
Come not back again.

So now, while we tarry
Beside the garden gate,
Lady, love a little
Before it is too late.

ACALCULIA AND WHAT IT IS.

PHYSICIANS report a quality of mind—perhaps some would call it a mental disease—as having followed in the wake of poisoning by carbon monoxide. It is called acalculia and its only known symptom is an inability to do sums in arithmetic or to make mathematical calculations. If a person previously able to add, subtract, multiply, and divide finds himself unable to figure he is said to have acalculia. If he acquires this quality of mind after having been poisoned by carbon monoxide gas the condition is called acalculia as an after-effect of this poison.

Minds vary normally in their mathematical ability. This difference by no means follows variation in other mental qualities. Some able men can never learn to figure beyond "the rule of three," which Abraham Lincoln gave as the limit of his formal education. On the other hand, some with subnormal mentalities can add three columns simultaneously and do other mathematical stunts.

The adding machine industry is based principally upon the inability of educated white-collar men to add accurately and rapidly. Most of the persons who operate these machines write good hands, spell correctly, and read understandingly. Some who are geniuses in invention, in painting, or in writing cannot figure. Then, again, mathematical marvels and masters in higher mathematics have been deficient in other mental qualities. These facts must not be lost sight of in estimating people.

Another basic point in trying to understand acalculia is that mathematical ability is an acquired quality. It is claimed for some trained animals that they can count, say, up to ten. This is disputed, the supposed ability being called a trick. Even though the ability be genuine it is very limited and has resulted from patient training. A baby has to be taught to count his ten toes and this ability is considered by the fond parent as her greatest educational achievement.

It is not strange that so artificial and uneven a mental quality as mathematical ability should be rather readily lost as a result of apoplexy, brain tumor, encephalitis, and other causes. It is not to be wondered at that it could result from carbon monoxide poisoning. That it is found to be present in the wake of this or any other cause does not necessarily imply that the general quality of the brain has been greatly impaired. It does not necessarily mean that the mind will lose other desirable qualities.

Nor can broad conclusions be drawn in other directions. For instance, if a man has been tinkering around his car while the engine is running and then drives to a filling station, purchases gas, and shortchanges the attendant, he cannot offer acalculia due to monoxide poisoning as an excuse.

POISON IVY.

H. O. H. writes: I am sensitive to poison ivy and am suffering now from my second attack this year.

1. Will this reappear each year without exposure to the ivy?
2. Is the serum given for such poisoning effective in most cases?
3. When a blister breaks, will the fluid spread the poisoning if it touches new areas of skin?
4. If the blisters are opened and drained, will that hasten the cure?
5. Please give some references to read on this subject.

REPLY.

1. No.
2. No.
3. McNair says the blister fluid will not spread the disease.
4. I don't think so.
5. The best book is "Rhus Dermatitis," by James B. McNair [University of Chicago Press]. Our book on first aid procedures has a page on poison ivy. This booklet you can get by sending 10 cents and stamped, addressed envelope.

BRITTLE NAILS.

M. F. writes: What causes brittle nails?

REPLY.

Senility is one cause. Deficient ductless glands are another. Most cases are due to repeated exposure of the nails to harmful experiences. Among the harmful exposures are to dish water, soap and laundry water, chemicals, as in developing pictures; antiseptics, as in cleaning the hands for surgical operations.

TAX SALE.

Streator, Ill., July 14.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—I purchased a piece of property for taxes and since have remodeled the place considerably. How long does it take before this place is safe from being redeemed for the amount of taxes I paid for it? In other words, how many years before this place is really mine?

It is decidedly unwise to incur expense merely on the basis of having purchased at a tax sale. Even the tax deed which issues two years later is merely a cloud on the title rather than a good title for you. If, after securing your tax deed, you go into possession and pay the taxes for seven years, then it would subsequently be safe for you to make improvements.

LOAN TO HEIR.

Waukegan, Ill., July 14.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—Would it be safe to loan money to a man who is heir to an estate which is in probate? The property referred to is not sold yet nor may not be for some time on account of the depression. Can he turn over part of his legal claim to me for rent or otherwise as security? Would it be proper to draw a note and agreement and file with probate judge? J. M. S.

If you are dealing at arm's length, we would advise you not to lend on such security without employing an attorney. It seems probable that your attorney will arrange to enter his appearance in the probate proceedings and secure an order that notice of material motions be served upon him.

16 YEARS AGO TODAY

JULY 19, 1917.

WASHINGTON. — Although the northern senators and representatives continued yesterday to assail the administration for exacting larger quotas from the north than from the south for the conscription army, Provost Marshal Crowder announced last night that the draft drawing will proceed, as originally contemplated, probably tomorrow morning. The uproar over the inflated population estimates for northern states and cities, which will cause a larger proportion of men to be drafted from the north than from the south, has placed the administration on the defensive and the explanation of the process of arriving at this basis for the draft will be presented to the senate today by Director of the Census Rogers, a North Carolina man.

PARIS.—A dispatch to the Temps from Geneva says the German government, according to reliable information, meditates the dramatic proposal to its enemies and to the world of a complete disarmament, except for sufficient forces to maintain compulsory peace by compulsory arbitration.

PETROGRAD.—With the dead officially announced as six and the wounded 238 as the result of a new "revolution" which began shortly after midnight July 16, the city was again as normal today as if nothing had happened. The chief agitators involved were the bolsheviks, as the majority of the Social Democrats are called. The bolsheviki revolution, however, is likely to prove a boomerang, for yesterday a resolution was adopted by the central committee of the national council of soldiers and workmen by which they joined the permanent committee of peasants, who took the government into their hands and issued a proclamation denouncing the disorders as the acts of traitors.

WAR SUMMARY.—Berlin admits that the trenches recently captured by the Germans near Malancourt wood and on both sides of the Malancourt-Esnes road were penetrated by the French. On the northern part of the French front, from the Yser to the Lys, the artillery fighting increased. Berlin reports the capture by Austro-German troops of heights east of Novica in eastern Galicia. Increased activity on the Rumanian front is reported in the Berlin official announcement.

WASHINGTON. — Revival of the rank of general, which lapsed with the death of Sheridan, and promotion of several major generals to the rank of lieutenant general will be recommended to congress as war measures by the administration soon. If congress acts favorably on the request, Maj. Gen. John J. Pershing will be the first promoted to the restored grade of lieutenant general.

WORLD'S FAIR QUESTION BOX

Requests for information concerning A Century of Progress will be answered in this column. It is urged that questions be stated briefly.

QUESTION—Are there any restrictions on the use of cameras by visitors to the Fair?

ANSWER—Amateurs may use still or motion cameras in any area where the public is admitted.

QUESTION—Why have the three fountains in the southwest end of the lagoon been inactive since opening night and are they expected to resume?

ANSWER — The fountains operate every day from noon to 9 p. m. without lights, and from 9 to 11 p. m. with lights. When there is enough wind to blow the spray on the people on shore they are turned off.

QUESTION—Is it true that visitors to the Fair are entitled to a long distance call without charge?

ANSWER—The Bell Telephone exhibit in the Electrical building is permitting visitors to make free calls to certain cities designated on a map in the exhibit.

QUESTION—Has the World's Fair any old time logging wheels used in hauling logs out of the woods for lumbering?

ANSWER—There are no logging wheels of this kind at this Exposition.

CHICAGO AND WASHINGTON.

Chicago, July 12.—Several of THE TRIBUNE'S editorials during the last months have stated that due to corruption in the federal government, waste of money on Boulder dam and elsewhere, Chicago has been bled so white by federal taxation that it hasn't enough left to pay its own employés.

Thinking people are tired of reading such absurd statements, knowing too well that local, not federal, corruption, waste, graft, and unfair taxation, placed Chicago on the verge of bankruptcy, with unpaid school teachers and employés.

Only a small percentage of Chicago citizens have paid a federal tax; and even if Boulder dam has been a so-called "rat hole" for the draining of the United States treasury, a little arithmetic will show that Chicago has not been the "forgotten city." A few examples are listed—Reconstruction Finance corporation loans to Chicago banks; over $4,000,000 for purchases of a postoffice site, later abandoned; $21,000,000 for site and construction of the new postoffice; over $1,000,000 for a new appraiser's stores building; over $500,000 for remodeling the old Federal building; $500,000 for a marine hospital, the millions loaned [or given] for the relief of Chicago's unemployed; inland waterways projects, river and harbor improvements, and numerous other projects of direct benefit to Chicago. In addition, the federal government has paid annually over $200,000 in rental, not including postoffice station rentals, which would more than double this figure.

Further, although you are opposed to the federal bureaucracy, and consider the majority of the agencies and employés worthless—it is to be remembered that employés of the federal government in Chicago live in Chicago, spend their moderate salaries here, pay their share of both local and federal taxes, and do their part toward supporting the unemployed, last year donating more than $210,000 for the purpose. Also a considerable amount of money spent by the veterans' administration, has gone to Chicago, through the two hospitals—one at Hines and one at North Chicago—the supply depot, and in compensation paid to Chicago veterans. Then Chicago has derived some benefit from federal appropriations spent for the naval training station at Great Lakes, Fort Sheridan, the Chicago quartermaster depot, and others too numerous to mention.

B. Y. D.

SHOCKING.

Chicago, July 14.—Something must be done to stop girls and young women from promenading on our streets as far as a half mile from the beach clad in costumes that are even shocking in their own environment at the beach. J. C. A.

THE TAXPAYER'S SIDE.

Chicago, July 14.—Ask a little boy about the middle of November what he thinks of Thanksgiving, and then put the same question to the turkey, and you will very likely receive conflicting answers. Now let the school teachers discuss their problems with the impoverished taxpayers, and the same difference of opinion will at once manifest itself. I am not prepared to judge to hat extent this vigorous protest of the teachers is attributable to pure and unselfish motives or to the humanly justifiable desire to retain their jobs, but as one of the much harassed taxpayers I cannot help feeling that the action of the school board leading to the balancing of the budget was inevitable if future embarrassing demonstrations and ultimate complete breakdowns were to be avoided. It is a problem of sound economy, not one of pedagogy. THEODORE KOHN.

FRIENDLY POLICE.

Chicago, July 13.—Just recently my 7 year old son rode his tricycle to Lincoln park, a distance of four miles, without my being aware of it. One of the park policemen noticed him, and being suspicious of his actions, began to question him. Upon hearing the facts, he phoned me and in a very obliging and courteous manner volunteered to send the boy home safely.

The entire matter was handled very efficiently, and assuming that the officer in question is representative of the force, speaks well for the personnel.

[MRS.] MARTHA RAUSCHENFELS.

BEAUTY.

Wilmette, Ill., July 14.—Can any reader of THE TRIBUNE explain the reason why the jury of beauty contests selecting the queens among the fairest should choose one with slim, well proportioned body and head, while our representative modern artists insist on representing women with hips like a cow and peanut shaped head?

Won't our beauty contest juries ever learn?

Did they not see, at the present art exhibition, the pictures of Picasso, Matise and Modigliani, with giraffe necks, crooked eyes and minus noses?

D. M. C.

YES.

Chicago, July 16.—May I use your column to thank the four young men who pulled me out of the lake off Calvary beach yesterday? At the time I was too exhausted to thank them properly, but my gratitude is none the less sincere, though a bit late. MRS. T. N. HORGH.

WOTTA LIFE! WOTTA LIFE!

Last year the big blizzard caught the W.'s without fuel. Mr. W. and Jr. caught cold. Result—doctor's bills, absence from office and school—more work for Mrs. W. This year—the W. home is heated by gas that never runs out, and inside they're snug and warm.

This is a picture of what used to be the coal bin in the C. home since they put in clean automatic gas heat. The youngsters play here on rainy days and the grown-ups on Saturday nights. And Mrs. C.'s house is now always spic and span as a result.

Poor Jones! He still thinks he's saving money spending his spare time shoveling fuel and cleaning out ashes. Too bad he doesn't know he could have gas heat for a few cents a day more and be rid of shoveling and the nuisance of ashes forever.

This is a picture of a woman taking care of the furnace in a gas-heated home. She used to shovel—shake the furnace—clean out ashes—on occasion split kindling and build a fire. Now she sets the thermostat—gas heat does all the rest.

Mrs. B. used to worry every minute she was out of the house about the fire going out or getting too hot. Since they put in gas heat—she stays out all day if she wants to and never gives it a thought. Gas heat automatically regulates itself—day and night.

1 A. M. surprises in the suburbs. Mr. and Mrs. D. worried all evening about the fire going out. Now Mr. D. will change his clothes and build a fire and Mrs. D. will rush upstairs to put extra blankets over the children. And some day soon the D.'s will have gas heat—and an end to this nuisance.

NOW...Low Cost Home-heating with Gas

a totally new low rate

a complete new plan . . . a "new deal"

An invisible servant does all your dirty work

The fire went out at 10 below and doctor says that Mary T. will have to stay in bed for a week. And Mrs. T. will be down cellar every half hour watching and shoveling. "Figure up the cost Mr. T.—and you'll put in gas heat—that never goes out."

The H's fuel tank would be empty just during a blizzard like this, and it looks as if the H's will have to freeze for a while or move to a friend's home. And when the snow is gone, and Mr. H. finds another big rut across his lawn where a fuel delivery truck ran over his grass—there'll be another gas-heated home.

PAY NOTHING DOWN

Without ONE CENT of investment by you, we install the most modern burner in your furnace or boiler. If you are satisfied it stays. If it does not prove every claim—and you are the sole judge—out it comes and your former heating system is re-installed — AT OUR EXPENSE. No other fuel for house heating dares make such an offer. Why? Because none except gas has the confidence of perfection.

WITH the price of gas heat reduced to one-half the rate of 1930-31, gas for home heating comes into its own. Today—with new low gas-heating rates, gas, the luxury heat, is priced for the majority. And thrown into the bargain you get an invisible servant who gives White House service.

Gas does all the work

The advantages of heating with gas have long been recognized. A single match represents your kindling pile . . . days and nights of back-breaking coal shoveling . . . dirty hours of hauling ashes . . . weeks of seasonal house cleaning . . . the wear and tear and expense of reconditioning your home and its furnishings.

No matter what fuel you now use that fuel must be reduced to gas before it will burn. With all forms of heating save gas you are dependent on a motor or some manual operation to make gas—in your own home—before you can burn the fuel you are using. This is an added expense, labor and waste. When you use gas piped into your home you are freed of all care and worry. Your gas-making plant is far away from your home where it should be.

Gas is the clean, healthful, only truly automatic fuel, as everyone, even its competition, must concede. When you use gas, a match lights your furnace in the Fall and a turn of your fingers extinguishes it in the Spring. Whenever you want the house warmer or cooler—just set the thermostat. THAT'S ALL!

A servant that never sleeps

You never have to climb down and up the cellar stairs . . . soil your clothes cutting kindling . . . starting fires . . . shaking grates . . . stoking the furnace . . . hauling ashes. The small gas pipe we install in furnace or boiler does all of that work for you. The phantom servant works twenty-four hours a day for you. The servant that never sleeps.

Tell us you want to try gas heating. Using your present heating apparatus, we will install the necessary equipment within four or five hours—ENTIRELY AT OUR OWN EXPENSE. If at any time during the first year you are not content, we will remove the equipment—WITHOUT FURTHER COST TO YOU—and replace your former heating equipment in as good or better condition than it was the day we removed it. And anytime during the first year means during the first, second, twelfth or any other month.

Let gas sell itself

During the nine heating months of the first year you pay $3 a month rental on the equipment we install in the average home—you pay nothing during the three summer months, when the heating system is idle. This rental charge will be sent along with your bill for the gas you use. But if, anytime during the first year, you are not satisfied with gas heating, all you do is order it out. Out it goes. And the rental stops immediately.

Certainly it is a daring offer. One no form of fuel used through the centuries has ever dared make. Why? Because gas has the qualities which set it apart—and above—all other fuels. Even those who in the past paid twice as much as you will pay today for gas heating found it the perfect fuel.

Let the small gas pipe—running into your furnace—help keep your home, your yard and your entire neighborhood clean and healthful. Yes—there's a "new deal" in house heating.

RAINEY VISIONS U. S. VICTORY IN LONDON PARLEY

Speaks at International Women's Congress.

Speaker Henry T. Rainey interpreted the London economic conference yesterday in an address before the International Congress of Women at the Palmer house. His prediction of ultimate American success at the parley brought enthusiastic applause from his audience of women at one of the largest round tables. Earlier in the day another round table heard Dr. Marianne Beth of Austria deplore the failure of the conference.

"It has been said about us," Speaker Rainey told the group of 200 women present in the Red Lacquer room, "that we win every war we enter and lose every conference. This is one we are not going to lose. We have it won right now, because the other nations have found out where we stand on these things that are under consideration.

Sees Reopening in Fall.

"From every tariff wall in the world there floats now the white flag of a tariff truce. I predict that the economic conference will adjourn this month to meet again in the fall. And by the time it convenes once more it may be that we will have the dollar stabilized back to its purchasing power of 1926. I don't say of 1929 because that is a little too soon to expect such a change. It will be time enough then to talk about an international standard of exchange.

"It took us two weeks after that conference at Lausanne when the other nations got together and decided to cancel their debts to each other to find out that it didn't really mean anything because it was dependent on whether we canceled the debts they owed us. It took them two weeks at London to understand that—we are not going to cancel those debts."

Pessimistic on Conference.

Dr. Beth, who is an attorney in Austria, gave a far different view of the London conference. She said:

"The world was never in a worse situation than it is now. I knew the tension and the emotion during July, 1914. The emotional nervousness now is far worse. The disarmament conference has failed. The London economic conference has failed. Everybody knew that before it was opened. We may deem us very lucky if it will be closed without causing harm.

"I should not like to say, however, that democracy is a failure in the economic field. The world had a war and it must pay for the war. The whole situation of Europe, socially, economically, morally, psychologically, as it was settled by peace treaties, was made on the basis of wanting the cake and eating it too."

"The women's movement is neither won nor is it faltering. Women have gained what they wanted, only they have not known how to use it. The women's movement has had its day and now women must take up the burden of responsibility and leadership for the major affairs of politics. We must make the world realize that civilization is a common cause."

Defends Fascism, Communism.

Miss Margaret Bondfield, British cabinet member, speaking at an evening session of the congress, defended Russian communism and Italian Fascism, saying that both systems have much that could well be studied and adapted by democratic countries. Both, she said, represent a tremendously important experiment in government.

"Nevertheless," she added, "I predict that if those countries have the seed of growth in them they will end up in some form of democracy. I believe that Russia in the future will move into a healthier state, where it will accept criticism without resentment, that the cinema and the wireless are the educators that will correct these weaknesses.

Earlier in the day Miss Bondfield spoke at the Illinois Host building at A Century of Progress.

LONDON PARLEY LAYS FINAL PLANS FOR BREAKING UP

Committee Reports Near Completion.

BY JOHN STEELE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, July 18.—Like the old soldier, the world economic conference is not dying. It is just fading away.

Every day brings the news that another important delegate has left for home. With the exception of the British and the Americans, most of the delegations are now represented by "second stringers."

The conference's steering committee met today and agreed upon the final arrangements for the adjournment of the parley. There will be a public plenary session of the economic commission on Friday and a similar meeting of the monetary commission on Monday.

Final Meeting July 27.

Next Tuesday the steering committee will meet and decide on the form of adjournment which will take place at a plenary session of the entire conference on Thursday, July 27. At this time speeches will be delivered by six members of the leading delegations.

The committee on subsidies and bounties concluded its report. It is to the effect that subsidies are bad for trade, but that nothing can be done until monetary stability is restored.

The committee on indebtedness also finished its report, which says that a reasonable degree of freedom in the movement of goods and service would be of great advantage in procuring resources to carry on the payments of external debts in the present circumstances. In some cases a "solution" of the problem of indebtedness may be necessary, but in all cases such a solution should be such as would not impair the creditor or shake confidence.

Regarding state loans, it is said it would be unjustifiable to attempt any permanent reorganization at the present time.

Announce Wheat Agreement.

LONDON, July 18.—(AP)—An agreement by which the Danubian countries would restrict their wheat exports this year to 54,000,000 bushels and next year to 50,000,000 bushels was announced today by Henry Morgenthau, American delegate, on behalf of the big four wheat countries, the United States, Canada, Argentina and Australia.

Rumania, Bulgaria, Hungary and Jugo-Slavia gave their approval to this arrangement, Mr. Morgenthau said, and the representative of Czechoslovakia asked 24 hours for communication with his government with a view to final acceptance.

Danubian restriction of exports is of great importance because it represents the principal condition set up by Australia for its participation in a world wide scheme for limiting the acreage sown to wheat.

Two more important factors remained to be adjusted before a world wheat agreement attains its objective. Russia, a large scale producer, and the European importing countries—France, Germany and Italy—must be fitted into the arrangement. A wide divergence continues to exist between the Russians and the big four as to the figure at which Russian exports should be limited. The importing countries insist upon retaining quotas and other import restrictions.

Honor Two Germans Who Shot Jewish Foreign Chief

HAMMELBURG, Germany, July 18.—(AP)—A memorial tablet was unveiled today at Castle Saaleck near here for Lieutenants Erwin Kern and Hermann Fischer, who shot Walther Rathenau, a Jew, who became one of the most noted of Germany's foreign ministers June 24, 1922, and later committed suicide at Saaleck to escape capture. Several Bavarian Nazi leaders attended the unveiling ceremonies.

PARIS, July 18.—"At my age it is too late to make over one's life." Dr. Freymuth, a refugee from the anti-Semitic campaign in Germany, came to Paris a short time ago.

HENDERSON ASKS HITLER TO MEET FRENCH PREMIER

Briton Urges a "Heart to Heart" Peace Talk.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, July 18.—Arthur Henderson, British statesman and chairman of the world disarmament conference, proposed tonight that Chancellor Hitler of Germany and Premier Daladier of France should meet immediately "to have a heart to heart talk, to remove the suspicions of France."

Mr. Henderson, who is making a tour of European capitals in an effort to save the disarmament conference made his proposal after two days of conferences with officials of the German foreign office, the ministry of war and the chief German delegate to the disarmament conference.

Sees Meeting As Last Hope.

"Only in heart to heart talks will some of the doubts, fears, and suspicions be removed, and until they are removed the full value of the Mussolini four power peace pact cannot be realized," he said. "A friendly understanding between France and Germany is the key to the future relationships in Europe."

The unusual action of a statesman of one country proposing a meeting between the leading statesmen of two other countries was taken by Henderson without consulting Hitler or Daladier. Henderson said he would see Hitler in Munich in a few days after visiting Minister of Foreign Affairs Benes in Czechoslovakia. He said he feared Hitler might resent his having made the suggestion of a Franco-German conference before talking it over with him personally.

Germans Warned to Join Nazis.

The Nazi Labor Front today issued a warning to Germans to quickly join professional associations approved by Hitler lest they might lose their civil rights.

"The rights of citizenship will be granted only to those Germans who cooperate actively in the reconstruction of the reich," the warning said. "Such coöperation is documented by membership in Chancellor Hitler's Nazi party, Nazi storm troops, Hitler guards, Steel Helmet war veterans' association, Nazi labor groups and the Labor Front.

"The Nazi party and the storm troops are refusing to accept new Semitic campaign in Germany, came express their willingness to coöperate only by quickly joining professional associations of the Labor Front."

German City Bans Singing of Hymns in the Streets

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ULM, Germany, July 18.—This city's chief of police today issued an order prohibiting open air services of the Salvation Army. The singing of hymns in the streets was also forbidden because the use of popular tunes as melodies for hymns "is bound to hurt the religious feelings of Ulm's citizens." Members of the Salvation Army may sell newspapers, but are not allowed to carry cups for donations.

Tabor Boy with Crew of Prep School Pupils Sails Into Chicago

Arrives from Academy at Marion, Mass.; Seamen Entertained on Visit to Fair.

BY JUDITH CASS.

LAST NIGHT at the Century club Philip L. Reed was host at a very special dinner party, for his guests were 14 young seamen and their commanders who arrived in Chicago yesterday on the Tabor Boy, an auxiliary schooner from the Atlantic coast. And one 12 year old girl, Jane Lillard, the daughter of Capt. Walter Huston Lillard, headmaster of Tabor academy at Marion, Mass., where the young seamen are preparing for college.

The crew of the Tabor Boy plans to spend 10 days here seeing the Fair, and during that time they will be entertained extensively by alumni and friends of the school. Howard F. Gillette, who is commander of Chicago's Sea Scouts, is planning a party for them, and so are several others. Today there is to be a luncheon for all the Chicago friends of the academy on board the schooner.

Lucius Teter, a trustee of the academy, was the first to reach the schooner with his greetings and hearty welcome. Then came Mr. Reed, another trustee of the school, whose summer home is located at Marion. And after him a dozen more Chicago alumni and friends of the school.

Jane, as the schooner's hostess and cabin "boy," was the first to receive them. Then came hearty handshakes with her father, Capt. Lillard, and Capt. James P. Lewis, who is in command of the ship as director of the school's nautical program, with the assistance of Capt. John A. Carlson.

Boys Prepare Ship for Trip.

A month ago when other schoolboys were packing up to go home for their summer vacations these Tabor boys, all of them from splendid homes, were busy painting, rigging and bending on sails preparatory to their departure. They sailed the Tabor Boy down to New York, and just three weeks ago putt-putted up the Hudson to Albany where the 85 foot masts were unstepped to clear the bridges along the canal to Buffalo and the great lakes. Across Lakes Erie, Huron and Michigan, the sails were stepped again and the Tabor Boy sailed up to Mackinac and down to Chicago.

Chicago marks a new western latitude in the schooner's log. Built 12 years ago she has cruised the Atlantic as far north as Labrador, and she has visited frequently most of the seaports from Eastport to New London as well as West Point and Annapolis.

At the ports of call on the western trip . . . Albany, Buffalo, Cleveland, Detroit, Frankfort, and Milwaukee . . . the ship has been welcomed by alumni of the school and units of Sea Scouts, for all of the boys on board are members of the Tabor Sea Scout unit. They are assigned regular watches . . . four hours on and eight hours off . . . and they are carrying out assignments from able seamen up through bo's'n and quarter master to first mate. Besides this they have with them a library of sea stories and histories of the sections of the country they are visiting so that they can keep a detailed log of their trip.

Academy Reorganized by Capt. Lillard.

Tabor academy, founded back in 1876 in the midst of a half dozen small eastern fishing villages, was reorganized seventeen years ago by Capt. Lillard who is a Dartmouth man, an Oxonian and the former assistant to the headmaster of Andover. His 150 boys sail, row, cruise, and hold cutter drills and every spring they they are taken on a cadet training cruise to Central America.

Edward I. Cudahy is another Chicagoan interested in the school, especially because he has a summer place at Marion. Then there are the Philip K. Wrigleys, Harold H. Swift, and Theodore W. Robinson, who was one of the early Tabor graduates.

The boys on the trip are Edward A. Farnell Jr. of Woonsocket, R. I., W. Freeland Dalzell of Douglaston, Long Island, Philip W. Bliss of Brookline, William B. Canterbury of Hingham, Bernard Carlson of Andover, Donald J. Cushman of Wellesley Hills, Mass., Willard O. Foster of Marion, J. Norton Goeller of New York City, Baster Prescott of Pelham, N. Y., Arthur T. Soule Jr. of Waban, Mass., James E. Stanton III. of New Bedford, Mass., James A. Vaughan Jr. of Minneapolis, and his brother, Wyman Vaughan.

Trevor Stamps Land in New York.

Dr. and Mrs. Trevor Stamp of London arrived in New York yesterday for their first visit in America since their marriage in Evanston in April, 1932. Mrs. Stamp is the former Frances Bosworth, daughter of the Charles H. Bosworths of Evanston. Dr. Stamp is the son of Sir Josiah Stamp, noted English economist and railroad official, and Lady Stamp.

On a train leaving for California today will be Alister H. McCormick and his brother, Edward H. McCormick, and the latter's wife and two sons, Anthony and David, who have been paying Chicago a very quiet visit for the last few days. Mrs. McCormick's health is not as good as it might be, so they did not try to do anything but see the Fair while they were here.

They will stay longer and do more perhaps when they return from California, where they will visit the Alister McCormicks at their beautiful home, El Paraiso, in Santa Barbara. The Edward McCormicks' home is in Weybridge, England. Leander McCormick and his bride of a week are honeymooning in England and France, but will come to this country next month, probably near the end of the month. The parents of these three McCormicks, who lived in Chicago as young men, Mr. and Mrs. L. Hamilton McCormick, are in New York and, as far as we know, they have no plans for returning to Chicago in the near future.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Breasted (Martha Munro Ferguson), who were married last month in New Mexico at the mountain ranch of the bride's mother, Mrs. John C. Greenway of Arizona, are now in Santa Barbara visiting the bride's uncle, Col. Franklin W. M. Cutcheon of Mission Ridge, and Mrs. Cutcheon. Others in the party are the bride's brother and half brother, Robert Munro Ferguson, and Master Jack Greenway, Miss Frances Hand of New York and Woodruff Tappan. Mr. and Mrs. Breasted are expected in Chicago about next Monday.

Thomas L. Kellys On Canadian Trip.

Thomas Lloyd Kelly and his bride, who was Mildred Wetten, daughter of the Albert Hayes Wettens before her marriage Monday afternoon, are on their way to the Canadian Rockies, where they will enjoy a several weeks' honeymoon. Upon their return they are planning to take a house in Winnetka for the late summer and early fall and then come in town for the winter to live in an apartment. The ceremony on Monday at the town apartment of the Wettens at 209 Lake Shore drive was a simple affair with only the immediate families present.

A debutante of the season before last who isn't spending the whole summer having a good time is Miss Phyllis Ferry of Winnetka, who is commuting to the University of Chicago three mornings a week to take a course under Thornton Wilder. Miss Ferry is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Montague Ferry and was introduced to society by her grandmother, the late Mrs. Abby Farwell Ferry, at a reception at the Fortnightly on Jan. 2, 1932.

Mural Artists for Fair Are Guests at Tea

A cool breeze and bright sunshine poured into the Trustees' Lounge yesterday to help make a success of the tea party President and Mrs. Rufus C. Dawes and the art and artists' committee on entertainment of A Century of Progress were giving for the artists who painted the murals at the Fair.

Not that anything more than the artists, the guests and the hosts were needed, but to be comfortably cool and to have brilliant sunshine always makes a party nicer than if the weather is hot or rainy. Mr. and Mrs. Dawes received and Mrs. Chauncey McCormick and Mrs. Robert R. McCormick poured. Mrs. Dawes was charming in a chiffon dress of flowered blue, and a large soft hat to match. Mrs. Chauncey McCormick wore a red and white printed gown and a large white hat, and Mrs. Robert R. McCormick also had chosen a red and white print and a large hat as her costume for the occasion.

The tea table was stunning, all in white and silver, the cloth and a pyramid of daisies and baby's breath in white and the tea and coffee services and two ornamental globes of silver. Mr. and Mrs. Frank G. Logan drank their tea with Mr. and Mrs. Dawes and were interrupted pleasantly several times by Shepard Vogelgesang's bringing up artists to be introduced. One of these was Leo Katz, here from New York university and the Metropolitan museum in New York to tell visitors to the Fair about the mural he has painted in the Johns-Manville building.

Mr. and Mrs. Dudley Crafts Watson were among the guests and several of Mr. Watson's pupils at the Art institute who have helped with the murals, including Miss Louise Netz, Miss Marion Butterwick, Miss Catherine O'Brien and Miss Mildred Waltrip. Mr. and Mrs. Rudolph Weisenborn were there, also Mrs. Frederic C. Bartlett Jr., Miss Frances Badger and Mrs. Helen Walker Szukalska, who did three of the murals in the Trustees' Lounge.

Daniel Rich, William Schwartz, George Melville Smith, Mr. and Mrs. A. Raymond Katz, Mrs. Kellogg Fairbank, Miss Janet Fairbank, Mrs. Martin D. Schutze, Mrs. Tiffany Blake, Mrs. Arthur D. Bissell and the latter's father-in-law, Arthur Bissell, were others who enjoyed the party.

Chic Costumes, Gowns Not a Case of Money

System of Buying, Beauty Care Important.

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

"If you can't be pretty and can't be chic—what then?" asks "Bee."

"Bee" says she never was called pretty, never will be called pretty, and no one would accuse her of being chic. She just can't get the hang of the last named asset.

The answer appears to be, if you can't be pretty, be as pretty as you can—and learn to be as chic as possible, too. We grant that some women are born with that flair for clothes and personal gift that makes them a challenge to othe rwomen. They are smart from the angle at which the hat is worn to the cut of the pump! Others do cultivate the challenging finish. Not all succeed, true, as a Lady Abdy or a Pricess Murat, but they manage a degree of chic clothes and grooming that serves their purpose sufficiently well.

Back of the women of international or national fame as outstandingly chic are dress houses and famous designers upon whose success turning out these particular women depends. Even hair artists contribute to them the best they have to offer. And there's money, and lots of it, with which to keep up the standard.

So we do not believe the average woman is doing herself any particular favor hitching her wagon to such star material. Instead, she might take a woman in her own setting who manages to maintain a continuously high standard of appearance on comparatively little per month. Ask how she does it rather than how the moneyed one does! There are any number of women and girls in this class who are remarkably effective without large money expenditure.

If you analyze their particular gift you'll find that where they aren't outstandingly pretty they realize certain advantages they have. They play these heavily. And there is a system to their clothes, a smart budgeting of dress and accessories, not just willy-nilly buying. More important—there is a system to their personal upkeep: regularity of hairdress, complexion care, manicure; regularity about figure upkeep. And these attentions show in poise, sureness of self, grace, and charm enough, I claim, for the working purposes of the average of us.

Fair Venetian Night Pleases Eye and Ear

BY EDWARD MOORE.

Venetian Night at A Century of Progress was celebrated last night by an uncommonly pleasant concert on the Floating theater and was greeted by one of the largest audiences that has yet assembled on the embankment on the lagoon. And with the help of decorated gondolas, launches and motor boats, it was as pleasant for the eye as for the ear.

The program was presented by Frida Savini, soprano; Ada Paggi, contralto; Mario Fiorella, baritone; the chorus of the Civic Opera Chorus school under the direction of Attico Bernabini, and Nina Mesirow Minchin, pianist and accompanist. It consisted, as might be expected, of Italian music, but covering a range from folk songs to an entire operatic scene. For instance, Miss Savini, Miss Paggi, and the chorus gave the second scene of the second act of "Aïda" in its entirety except for the ballet number, for which no provision had been made.

These are three extremely capable solo artists, competent in aria, song, and concerted number, and each made an individual hit. By no means the least worthy items on the program were furnished by Mr. Bernabini's chorus, a group of fresh young voices with both quality and training.

Glenn Dillard Gunn's piano recital in the summer artist series of the Chicago Musical college at the Punch and Judy theater yesterday was an all-Beethoven program, and therefore rather more specialized than previous events in the series. In matter and manner it was an excellent model of what specialized programs should be. It began with one of the late sonatas, that in E major, opus 109, and ended with an earlier one, C sharp minor, opus 27, No. 2, and frequently miscalled the "Moonlight." Between the two came the Andante Favori, which frequently occurs on recital programs.

Mr. Gunn is a profound student of all phases and schools of the piano and is a first rate interpreter of most of them. In Beethoven he is at his best, having found the secret of being authoritative without dryness, and emotionally attractive without lightmindedness. He was applauded at considerable length.

Alice Mock, soprano, and Forrest Lamont, tenor, will be the soloists with Victor Grabel's Chicago Concert band on the Floating theater at the Fair tonight. The concert will be in two parts, from 7 to 8 o'clock and from 9 to 10 o'clock, with an hour's intermission between. In the first part Mr. Lamont will sing "Ah, si ben mio" from "Il Trovatore," and Miss Mock "Caro Nome" from "Rigoletto." In the second part they will appear in the duet, "Verrano a te sull' aure" from "Lucia di Lammermoor."

Mr. Grabel will begin and end with overtures "William Tell" at the start and "Rienzi" at the finish, and the program will include ballet music, waltzes, Liszt's Sixth Hungarian Rhapsody, some Sousa compositions, and selections from light opera.

Sally's Guests Enjoy Perfect Movie Program

BY SALLY JOY BROWN.

If you think there's no such thing as a perfect movie program for children, you should have attended Warner's Orpheum theater with me yesterday afternoon!

The program was joyfully started by Mickey Mouse and his girl friend, Minnie. After watching their antics, and roaring with delight when the mean old cat-villain got his, we saw a news reel featuring President Roosevelt, and had glimpses of various countries via an instructive Newman travelogue.

Then a version of "Madamoiselle Modiste" with much of the tuneful Victor Herbert music sung by Vivienne Segal.

The feature film, "Zoo in Budapest," was realy swell, my boys and girls agreed. All the animals you can think of were in the picture . . . tawny tigers, roaring lions, giraffes, seals, porcupines, zebras—just all kinds of birds and beasts! The action all takes place in the beautiful spacious zoo, and the photography was breath takingly beautiful at times. And Wally Albright was so little and forlorn as the little boy who was lost all night in the park!

There was a terrifically exciting climax to the picture, when the animals went on a rampage, but everything was happily taken care of by the time the last foot of film was unreeled. I think a small monkey made the biggest hit of the afternoon—any one of us would have been delighted to have him perch on our shoulders and come home with us.

My thanks to Warner Brothers for a very excellent program for young and old, and a particularly happy afternoon for my 100 temporarily adopted children!

I hope all you aspiring pitchers, first basemen, etc., have your letters in today, because Wednesday is the day your fate is settled, you know!

Too Much Leisure Menace to Marriage, Says Norma Shearer

New York, July 18.—(AP)—Too much leisure and too many absences, Norma Shearer said today, are menaces to married life.

The motion picture actress commented on the wave of Hollywood separations as she returned from Europe with her husband, Irving Thalberg, and their 3 year old son, Irving Jr.

"For a couple to stay happily married," she said, "they must have some work which keeps them so busy and excited that they have no time to think of pretty things.

"Also, there must not be unnecessary separations. They make couples believe they can get along without each other."

She and her husband were in Europe for four months, but for most of her clothes, she said, she sent to New York.

"I am completely lost when I shop over there," she explained.

Hats of Satin Are Styled in Small Models

Proper Accessories for New Ensembles.

BY RHEA SEEGER.

Since every shopper seems a bit fed up with frills and ruffles of early summer cotton models, the satin suits and ensembles are sliding into circulation as fast as they can be wrapped. Consequently, proper costume accessories for these slick new satins are disappearing almost as soon as the new dresses.

You can buy lots of smart satin hats—tricky little trifles that are stitched and cross stitched . . . skittery, very flat numbers that anchor on your head with an old fashioned rubber elastic . . . brimmed sailors with flattering wide brims that shadow the eyes even though you wear them tilted rakishly like a Spanish señorita.

Some of the newest satin brevities in the way of headgear are new square cut affairs that look like boxes till you pull them over your hair at the correct angle and squash them down at the best corner. They are conspicuously new because of the utter lack of ornamentation, with the exception of a few flat narrow bows of the satin. Many of them have narrow straps that hold them in place and you still wear your hats at the dizziest angle you can manage. The hats practically hang, defying all laws of gravity, over the very outside edge of your ear.

Sleek, shining, patent leather pumps seem to be the answer as to what to wear as foot contrast . . . the smooth classic models of opera pumps, or some novelty satins with self-striped pattern are interesting alternatives.

Dull silk crêpe can be used effectively as a good contrast for all this new shimmering, sleek satin glory. Your hat can be small, chic, and fashioned of dull silk crêpe . . . match it with a dull silk crêpe handbag made with a shiny black clasp, and trim slim opera pumps also of crêpe complete the accessories.

Old silver is a new way to contrast satin. Instead of the more obvious and much used chalk white . . . lovely bracelets, earrings, and even necklaces of cool, frosty old silver are particularly effective. Try them and see!

BY ROY VICKERS

SYNOPSIS.

Swell Garrick—the World's Perfect Tailor's Dummy—is the label given him by those who didn't know that his well molded body had been created by athletic training, rather than tailoring skill. Maitland, a crooked gambler, is the purported guardian of lovely Rhoda Fairclough. He and Schewan, his chief, plot to trick Rhoda out of a fortune. Maitland has Rhoda adjudged insane. She has been administered a drug which will produce temporary madness. Having no proof of guilt, Garrick determines to settle the matter in his own way. His solicitor tells him that if Rhoda can gain and maintain her liberty for twenty-eight days she will be considered legally sane. Garrick undertakes a bold rescue. He escapes to London with Rhoda. At night they burgle their way into a private boathouse on the Thames. Garrick hires Alf, a farm hand out of work, as a helper and buys his silence. One of the gang is shot during an encounter in Garrick's home and the police suspect Garrick. Garrick obtains a covered van and equipment and buys a controlling interest in "Jelks' World Famous Fair." They travel about for a week when the gang overtakes them. Rhoda and Alf escape in the van. The car in which Garrick is being taken for a ride meets with an accident.

INSTALLMENT XXXIII.

SEPARATION.

In a moment of utter stillness Garrick seriously thought that he must be dead. Then the chill of the water roused him to reality.

The car lay right side up—unevenly on the muddy bed of the river, into which it was rapidly sinking. The battery was intact and the dome light flickered, showing the water above the steering wheel.

"Get the doors open on the near side—the current will turn her over in a minute!" shouted Shewan.

It was good advice and Garrick took it. He was the first to scramble out—and he was the only one who did not make directly for the bank—for his first thought was to get away.

The gang would not dare to shoot now—for with the wreckage of the car and their own dripping clothes, discovery of his body would inevitably lead to their arrest. But there was nothing to prevent them from calling the police and handing him over as the man wanted on suspicion of murdering Archie Lawson—the very man they had killed themselves.

The Wey, like most shallow rivers, has a strong current. Garrick took full advantage of it by keeping in midstream. In a dozen strokes he had reached the first bend and fifty yards beyond that he clambered out through a formidable tangle of weeds into a meadow.

He stood still, dripping from head to foot, and listened. There was no sign of pursuit—but he knew that this would only be a very short respite.

In a few minutes the gang would have trudged the quarter of a mile or so to Godalming. They could afford to give a more or less truthful account of the "accident"—and invite the police to look for a man, one Swell Garrick, who must be very near the town and who could be identified by the fact that he would be wearing mechanic's overalls that had recently been in the river.

Presently, in spite of his anxiety, fatigue asserted itself and he fell asleep in the chair.

The first glow had left him and he shivered. His position, he began to realize, was somewhat precarious. On the one hand he had over 3,000 pounds, which never left his person, as he knew that at any time he might have to run. On the other hand, it was not easy to see how the money would help him to get a dry rigout of clothing and a lodging for the night. It was nearly 11 o'clock and there would be no shops open in Godalming.

He was, in fact, very much in the position of a convict on Dartmoor who has dashed away in a fog. He could keep dodging for a bit but the moment he showed himself he was certain to be captured. Moreover, to try and spend the October night in the open in sodden clothing would be suicide.

There were, on reflection, only two ways out of his difficulty. To enter some house burglariously—which was full of uncertainties—or to find a temporary lodging in somebody else's car. A closed car for preference.

He crossed the meadow and circled round the outskirts of the town. With the utmost caution he edged towards the more prosperous quarter and almost immediately found what he wanted. An automobile parked in the drive of a prosperous middle class house. The blinds of the drawing room had not been drawn and Garrick could see the probable owner of the car.

Garrick's conscience did not trouble him. The young man would walk home—at worst, hire a car if he lived at a distance—and Garrick intended to pay liberally for the use of the car for one night.

It was, as near as he could calculate, some twenty minutes since he had crawled out of the river. If they had been quick about it the gang would perhaps have had time to tell their tale to the police—but the police would hardly have had time to draw a cordon around the town.

He decided to take a chance—drove through the town and emerged, unmolested, the other side.

The most he could get out of the little car was about forty-five miles an hour. He could not hope to overtake the van as long as Alf kept going. But there was just the remote chance that the petrol might have given out. And anyhow, he had nowhere in particular to go.

Three miles out of Godalming, parked in a deserted stretch, he came upon the van. There was no one in sight—no trace of the police.

He drove right up to it—got out and shouted. There was no answer. A moment later he knew that the van had been abandoned.

"Alf has done the best thing possible—for the police are probably looking for this van by now. But the question is"—and he faced it with considerable misgiving— "how on earth am I going to get in touch with Rhoda again?"

He got back into the car, drove on to Hindhead, then turned north and swung round in the direction of London. As he drove his thoughts were concentrated on Rhoda. They were separated now and there seemed no possible means of communicating. And where was she at the moment? Probably hiding in a wood with Alf?

"Alf will try to get in touch with me—and he won't know how to do it. . . . Yes, he will!"

Suddenly he saw that the problem was, after all, quite a simple one. They would think of some place where they had all met before without being molested by the police. The empty house on the river!

Even if Alf did not think of it, Rhoda would be sure to do so.

He turned off in the direction of Richmond and, keeping to side streets, drove to a piece of waste land within a quarter of a mile of the house. He ran the car on to the waste land and continued his journey on foot.

He had little hope that they could have arrived there as yet, even if they had made straight for the house.

The blankets which Alf had fixed over the dining room window were still in place. Within a few minutes Garrick had made a fire, after which he wrapped himself in a blanket and dried his clothes.

Presently, in spite of his anxiety, fatigue asserted itself and he fell asleep in the chair. He awoke with a start an hour before dawn.

He slipped into his dry clothes, for he was in a hurry to get away before it was light. He stirred the dying fire to give him sufficient light to write a message. Groping in the darkness, he could find no writing paper. But the blotting pad was sufficient. He scrawled across it: "Will come back here every night. L. G." Then set it on the mantlepiece.

There was little fear of meeting a patrolling policeman, for few of the houses in the road were inhabited during the winter. He made his way back to the waste ground, then drove in the borrowed automobile through London to the East End—the poorest part of London, with a big foreign population, whose ways are not as the ways of the Englishman.

He abandoned the car in a side street after taking its number. Later in the day he sent the owner of the car [using the number, care of Scotland Yard] a 10 pound note, for use of petrol and oil [about 6 shillings], balance to compensate for the inconvenience of reclaiming the car.

But before this he had a busy time. First, from a Yiddish speaking street merchant he bought a shoddy suit with a villainous looking cap.

He wanted a shave and decided not to have one. The more unlike his normal self he could contrive to look, the better!

The advertisement of a cheap optician caught his eye. "Sight tested free." Garrick went in and had his sight tested. Although it was quite perfect the optician did not tell him so but sold him a pair of plain glass spectacles with horn rims.

Garrick came out looking like an East End hooligan under hospital treatment for his eyes, which for the present was just what he wanted.

"I shall have to loaf about here all day—it's no good making any plans until I know whether Rhoda is all right."

As soon as it was dark he intended to go back to the house on the river. And for that purpose he would again borrow Richard's motorcycle.

About the time when Garrick was coming out of the optician's, Detective Inspector Lanport, in a small motorboat with two of the river police and two of his own men, was examining the doors of the boathouse in which Garrick had spent the night in the Leprecaun.

"We've been pretty well from end to end of the river, Mr. Lanport, and this is the only likely spot. You can see that the door fastenings have been forced. And besides, it's near where we found them."

Make Summer Yield Health and Pleasure

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

Snatch from summer every advantage you can for the children. Squeeze out of each golden summer day for them all the good you can, all that your circumstances make possible. Soak up the sunshine and air!

If you live in the city and can get the children away where they have the utter physical freedom that country or seashore life means, do so. If you live in the city and can't go away, try to get a vacation angle on life.

Stop being such a good housewife, for instance; you need a change yourself. Ease up on details and go for jaunts and picnickings just as often as you can. If you must mend or do hand sewing, or go over your bills and accounts, bundle the chore into one of those big pretty soft bags that are so cheap, and hie yourself off with the children where you can sit under a tree, or near water, and work in leisurely fashion while they frisk and frolic around. Better still, take a book and read or dream, as you please.

Don't always make your trips elaborate. Go for the day and pack a lunch sometimes. At other times go just for the morning or afternoon without the luncheon.

Don't dress the children up to go. White is lovely, but lots of work, whether in clothes or shoes. Save on labor during the hot weather.

Save for yourself in other ways, too. Use paper napkins and even if you love nice linen, try some of that pretty, dull, silky looking, glorified edition of oilcloth for breakfast and lunch. Don't make lots of cooked desserts. Pack away as much of your bric a brac as you can; that much dusting saved.

Simplify things for the summer and ease up a little. With the children, spend every minute outdoors that you can.

"The Young Nationalists' Booklist" contains information about books on the outdoor world. It will be sent on receipt of a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

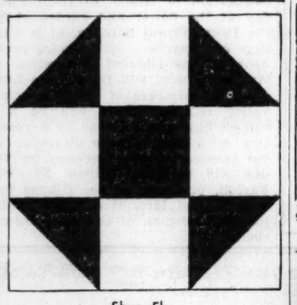
"Shoo-Fly" Dates Back to Early Colonial Days



Shoo Fly.

BY NANCY CABOT.

This pattern with the amusing name, "Shoo-Fly," is one of the earliest designed in colonial America. It would be interesting to know just how it got the name, but its history is obscure. It's a simple geometrical pattern, well suited to use in modern quilts.

For a quilt pattern of this design send 5 cents in stamps or coin to Nancy Cabot, Chicago Tribune, printing your name and address clearly. Or call at the Tribune Public Service Office, One South Dearborn street.

Get Away from Job for Once, Sound Advice

BY DORIS BLAKE.

"Sometimes it is extremely good for you to forget that there is anything in the world that needs to be done, and to do some particular thing that you want to do," says Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, writing in a current monthly.

Mrs. Roosevelt tells of a recent day when she had 200 letters waiting and any amount of work to be done. "I deliberately went out for the afternoon and spent two hours reading poetry," she confesses.

This was not according to the busy woman's schedule, she admits. "But I believe in the end it makes for better quality of work."

Every human being needs a certain amount of time in which he can be peaceful, Mrs. Roosevelt argues. Peace may take the form of exercise, or reading, or any congenial occupation. Your purpose is defeated, however, according to our adviser, if you let a sense of obligation to do some particular thing at some particular time rule.

How applicable is this suggestion of Mrs. Roosevelt's to women in the home! Women who are really occupied with their home affairs—not the type who are more concerned with what they want to do than with what should be done.

Let's take the woman who does her housework, all the cooking, cleaning, washing, sewing, mending. Work piles up in front of her. To get the decks cleared completely of today's jobs often results in such nervous frenzy as to induce grouchiness or downright crossness.

Just to be able to say, "To the dickens with it for today! I'm going to do what I want to do for once!" And then make good on the threat. The woman is happier; her family is bound to be, for the breakaway from the sometimes souring hectic pursuit of duty.

Try the recipe one of these days, as offered by our admirable First Lady. Run out on the job for a couple of hours! See, too, if you do not come back with renewed zest and energy.

Woman's Role in Literature Told in Book

Exhibit Shows Best Works of Century.

BY FANNY BUTCHER.

A hundred years ago it was not considered one of the functions of womankind to write books. Old Samuel Johnson might have been discussing women as authors of books when he said, only a little more than a century ago: "Sir, a woman preaching is like a dog's walking on his hind legs. It is not done well; but you are surprised to find it done at all."

INEZ IRWIN.

What the last century has meant to women's part in the creative arts and sciences is the theme of Inez Haynes Irwin's "Angels and Amazons" [Doubleday-Doran], an almost encyclopedic survey of the progress which the emancipation of women has made.

Mrs. Irwin tells the story of the charting of the ways of feminism with thoroughness in "Angels and Amazons."

In "Women in the Twentieth Century: A Study of Their Political, Social, and Economic Activities," by Sophonisba P. Breckinridge [McGraw-Hill], invaluable statistical information has been assembled in a source book which no student of the status of woman can be without.

Today it is not only possible to assemble an International Council of Women, which is meeting this week in Chicago, without there being in the mind of any civilized human being anything comic associated with the idea of women as artists, scientists, legislators, business women, aviators . . . taking an active part in all human activity . . . but the work of women in social and creative fields has no longer even a taint of the antics of the performing trick dog about it.

To those interested in the writing of books (as I presume the readers of this column to be or they wouldn't be its readers) there is something especially significant in the exhibit of the 100 books written by American women during the last century which is part of the international exhibit of books by women on view now at the Palmer house in connection with the International Council of Women. The exhibit was arranged with the help of a council of twenty-four well known American novelists, historians, essayists, and writers on social subjects, among them such divergent minds as Stephen Vincent Benet, Ida M. Tarbell, Louis Bromfield, Robert Frost, Zona Gale, Hendrik William Van Loon, Julia Peterkin, Charles Edward Russell . . .

MINUTE MYSTERY

By H. A. RIPLEY

[Copyright: 1933: By The Chicago Tribune.]

THE PROFESSOR STOPS A BLUNDER.

At four o'clock Thursday afternoon, Louis Mundy unexpectedly received a telegram requesting him to return home immediately, as his brother was ill.

At eight that evening, he alighted from the plane in Washington. He had not been in the city during the past two months. Hurrying to his suburban home, he found his brother greatly improved. At ten o'clock he set out on a hike through the country, returning at midnight.

These facts were all verified. Between eleven and twelve o'clock that night, John Skidder was murdered, and the only thing missing from his house was a note for $10,000 signed by Mundy.

Skidder's secretary said the note was habitually kept at the office and that she was very surprised when he took it home that evening.

Mundy declared he saw or passed no one on his hike, but under severe questioning admitted having been near Skidder's house shortly after eleven o'clock.

A thorough investigation revealed that Skidder had no known enemies and no one, other than Mundy, had the slightest reason for wishing him dead.

Mundy was consequently arrested. As he knew Skidder lived with only an old man servant (who was out until after twelve that night), the police believed he had gone unobserved to the house, demanded the note, and, when refused, had murdered Skidder. No one but Mundy could possibly profit by the disappearance of the note. As it was due in ten days and he was in no position to meet it, they anticipated little difficulty in obtaining a conviction due to the strong motive and weak alibi.

Asked his opinion, Prof. Fordney surprisingly said he didn't believe any American jury would convict Mundy.

HE WAS RIGHT . . . WHY?

Potato Salads Popular During Warm Weather

Are Extra Delicious with Pecans or Almonds.

BY MARY MEADE.

If your potato salad doesn't taste like that of your next door neighbor's don't let that worry you. Potato salads probably vary more than any of other salads, both in dressings and ingredients, and there is none that can lay claim to being the best. Since these salads improve on standing for several hours in the refrigerator, they are especially popular in the summer.

Dressings for potato salad are many. We may use mayonnaise, French dressing, boiled dressing. Or we may add vinegar, oil, and seasonings directly to the potatoes, or vinegar, cream, and seasonings. All are equally delicious.

As for ingredients, they're legion. As supporters for potatoes in salads we find celery, olives, pickles, radishes, hard cooked eggs, onions, chives, chopped parsley, diced cucumbers, chopped green pepper, or chopped pimento. Less common additions are: Diced apples, pecans, almonds, sardines, cubed tomatoes, fried bacon, caraway seeds, truffles, horseradish, piccalilli, capers, mushrooms, and anchovies. Don't try to add all of these ingredients. The combination of four or five is sufficient.

POTATO AND HORSERADISH SALAD.

1 cup sliced boiled potatoes
1 tablespoon prepared horseradish
3 tablespoons chopped celery
1 tablespoon chopped parsley
1 tablespoon chopped olives
1-3 cup mayonnaise
¼ teaspoon salt

Toss the ingredients together and chill several hours in the refrigerator. Serve garnished with sliced tomatoes or radishes.

Vegetables, fresh or cooked, are often combined in small quantities with potatoes in salad. Cooked string beans, diced cooked carrots, or green peas add color to potato salads. And here is a recipe roping in tomatoes and cucumbers.

POTATO SALAD WITH TOMATOES AND CUCUMBERS.

4 or 5 medium sized potatoes
2 tablespoons finely chopped green pepper
1 large tomato, cubed
1 cucumber, cubed
1-3 cup finely chopped celery
1 tablespoon grated onion
1-3 cup boiled dressing
¼ teaspoon salt

Cook the potatoes until tender. Peel and cool. Slice the potatoes and combine all the ingredients carefully so that the tomato does not become mashed. Let the salad marinate several hours and serve garnished with paprika.

Potato salads containing nuts are not so common, so are extra delicious. Several tablespoons of broken pecan meats or sliced blanched almonds and an equal amount of chopped parsley do the trick. Diced apples and chopped celery combined with potato salad furnish us with another palate tickler.

Or add diced cooked meat for a dinner salad:

SALMAGUNDI.

1 cup diced boiled potatoes
1½ cups diced boiled ham or pork
1-3 cup cooked peas
2 tablespoons chopped pimento
1-3 cup diced celery
¼ cup watercress, broken into one inch pieces
½ cup mayonnaise
½ teaspoon salt

Toss the ingredients together lightly. Place in lettuce cups and garnish with slices of red radish.

BY SUZETTE BARILLET.

PARIS.—[Special.]—After a practically unlimited variety of transformation jackets, capelets, tie-in sleeves, etc., would seem to have strained human invention to the limit, along comes Maggy Rouff with another new idea—a choice of superimposed bodices to change the end-of-day frock from one sartorial hour to the other.

Anyway, the ensemble, called "Surprise," starts out as the all-black crêpe frock shown in the foreground of our drawing, with a rippling skirt, made full from the hips by inset front and back panels curving in at the top, and a draped bodice, with short sleeves edged in long black silk fringe over pale blue fringe.

But presto! this bodice unbuttons under the left arm and slips off over the head, disclosing the fact that the pale blue fringe is really attached to the pale blue satin bodice underneath [sketched in the background]. It's fitted by a shaped, incrusted front panel that becomes sash ends in back to cross and tie it on round the waist. A huge strasse brooch set in crystal holds the long, narrow oval décolleté in shape.

The skirt is eight inches off the floor, the accepted level for end-of-day frocks next fall.

I. C. C. SLASHES LIGHT RATES IN DOWNSTATE AREA

The Illinois Commerce commission yesterday ordered rate reductions in electricity for downstate consumers which is expected to save them approximately $750,000 a year.

This is the biggest slash in rates downstate made by the commission since it began a rate leveling campaign some time ago. It is believed to presage further reductions in other parts of the state.

The greater part of the expected savings hits the Illinois Power and Light company. This utility serves 367 Illinois communities, including Bloomington, Jacksonville, Champaign, Urbana, Danville, Decatur, Belleville, and Edwardsville. The rate cut demanded of this company will work a saving of half a million dollars to its consumers, according to estimates.

Saving of $250,000.

Peoria, Pekin, and four other sizeable towns will be saved an estimated $250,000 by the reduction demand made on the Central Illinois Light company.

The rate slash on the Illinois Power and Light company amounts to 10 per cent and on the Central Illinois Light company 15 per cent. The reductions are effective Aug. 15 and will cut present rates between 1 and 3.1 cents per kilowatt hour.

The commerce commission in additional action directed the Chicago Produce Terminal company to assume the 3 per cent federal tax on electricity. This, it is believed, will mean a saving to consumers of about $5,080 a year. The Illinois Power and Light company and the Central Illinois company in this connection must assume the 3 per cent tax beginning Sept. 1.

CUBS WIN, 4 TO 1; WARNEKE'S 12TH VICTORY

IRISH BOXERS ARRIVE IN U. S. FOR CHICAGO BOUTS

EIGHT CHAMPS DOCK LOOKING FOR A FIGHT

Team Starts West Today.

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, July 18.—Eight young Irishmen came off the steamship Majestic in New York today, each of them looking for a fight. They will be accommodated in the great arena of Soldiers' field, Chicago, on the night of Aug. 2 in a card of bouts with the Chicago Golden Gloves team.

This is the third invasion of this kind in the international Golden Gloves series. The French began it in 1931, losing to the Chicago team of that year, five bouts to three, and the Germans were the guest gladiators last summer. They held the Chicago young men to a draw.

After an afternoon and evening, followed by a morning, of sightseeing, the Irish squad will leave New York on the Pennsylvania railroad at 3:30 o'clock tomorrow afternoon and will land in Chicago amid a hulaballoo of hospitality having an official civic tone at 11:50, Chicago time, Thursday morning.

What! Nary a Mike?

Four of the fighters and the coach are named Patrick or Paddy, but there is nobody in the party by the name of Mike.

Reading up from the flyweight, Paddy Connolly, a soldier in the Free State army, the fighters are as follows: Frank Kerr, bantam; Paddy Hughes, featherweight; Ernie Smith, lightweight; John Kennedy, welterweight; Paddy Hennelly, middleweight; Dick Hearns, light heavyweight, and Paddy Mulligan, heavyweight.

Sergt. Paddy Dwyer is the coach, a veteran of the first Irish Olympic team which fought in 1924. He fought as a welterweight and afterward turned professional. How did he do as a professional?

"O, I won a few fights," says he.

The bearing of the Irish fighters was distinctly different from that of the French and the Germans as they landed in New York. They seemed much more at home and much more casual about it all. The French youths were very wide eyed and, regarding themselves as not quite up to international competition and with no real notion that they might win, they were well pleased to have just missed a draw when it was all over.

They Act Like Champions.

The Germans wore Olympic uniforms and were held under top sergeant discipline during most of their time in the United States. They peered out windows and touched things wonderingly, much impressed by the strangeness of it all. Then, too, neither the French nor the Germans could ask the time of day in the language of the country, a fact which tended to drive them into a huddle.

The young Irishmen could talk their way around and, anyway, three of them had been over this way before as competing athletes, Hughes, the featherweight, and Smith, the lightweight, as boxers with the Irish Olympic team of 1932, and Hearns, the light heavyweight, with the County Mayo football team.

They relaxed in the hotel after the bother of inspections and landing was over.

Smith, who is tall for a lightweight, a kid with light fluffy hair, was told that his opponent would be a colored boy named Eddie Ward.

"A dark man?" said Smith, raising his head from the pillow. "That's fine. Then I can see him better."

Smith Doesn't Worry.

Last year Erich Campe, a little German police cadet from some barracks around Berlin, had been visibly upset when they told him he was to fight a Negro boy named Johnny Phagan. He had never seen many colored men and his hearsay about them was not comforting. And in the first round of the fight Phagan hit him one well timed clip on the chin which knocked him out of the ring and laid him among the typewriters while the referee counted 20 over him.

The anxious fighter is likely to ask

Ross, Rogers Visit Camp at Grand Beach.

BY WILFRID SMITH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Grand Beach, Mich., July 18.—Chicago's Golden Gloves squad swung into action this afternoon after a morning's labor setting up the boxing ring and gymnasium equipment. The day also included golf, swimming and indoor baseball and visits to the camp by celebrities and sight seers.

Barney Ross, lightweight champion of the world, who four years ago was a Golden Glove intercity winner and is as proud of this honor as he is of his professional title, reached here this morning. He was accompanied by the traveling member of his managerial firm, Art Winch, and by Trainer Izzy Kline. Barney arrived at noon, shortly after the boys had finished luncheon.

Impressed by Camp.

Ross took one look at Lake Michigan, with its long white capped waves marching one after another to iron themselves flat on the sandy beach, at the red tiled roof of the hotel perched sentinel like over the lake and woody ravine and remarked:

"If the Chicago boys can't lick the Irish after training down here for two weeks, they should quit in disgrace."

Ross shared the spotlight today with Buddy Rogers, orchestra leader and movie actor. Buddy likes boxing. He was the middleweight champion while attending Kansas university and almost any time he'd travel across the country to see a rousing fight. In this case, however, Buddy will have the Irish-Chicago fights on the night of Aug. 2 almost on his door step, and he expects to be at ringside rooting for the Golden Glovers.

Ross Boxes Four Rounds.

Rogers took a preview of the amateurs in training and watched Ross box four rounds, one each with four of the Golden Glovers. Buddy then put on his ring clothes for a couple of rounds.

Dr. Thomas L. Dwyer, team physician, examined the 15 amateurs this afternoon before they put on their ring clothes. After a series of tests he gave the boys an o. k. with the exception of Johnny Baltzer, flyweight champion. Baltzer reported with a foot infection. The other boys, some of whom are several pounds overweight—and in this catagory Henry Rothier leads—are ready for work.

Johnny Behr, with assistance of the boys and Jabber Young, put up the ring after breakfast. Heavy bags were swung from the ceiling of the gymnasium and by tomorrow the punching bags will be ready. Several blisters and a broken crystal on Johnny Pacek's wrist watch are evidences of the manual labor.

The four boys who boxed with Ross today got the start in conditioning, for the others confined their work to rope skipping and hitting the bags. Billy Celebron, Henry Rothler, Johnny Dobler, and Walter Matthys boxed with Barney Matthys came last to put some speed into the drill. Ross boxed carefully, for when he lashes out with his gloves it's no slap on the wrist. Tony Canzoneri can testify to that.

WELCOME TO AMERICA—CHICAGO NEXT STOP

IN the WAKE of the NEWS

WITH THE BOXERS.

GRAND BEACH, Mich., July 18.—Chicagoland's International Golden Gloves boxers begin tomorrow on the training routine planned to produce the best physical results for their encounter with the Irish team at Soldiers' field on Aug. 2.

If an outsider had been here for dinner last night or tonight and had seen the boys with huge pieces of berry or fluffy cream pies before them for dessert and occasionally a second helping, he might have wondered what kind of training food that is. Trainer Johnny Behr noticed this violation of the accepted code, but professed not to see what was going on over at the big table in the special dining room facing Lake Michigan. But from the smaller table, at which sit Behr, Jabber Young, his assistant, and the newspaper men, nothing escapes him.

The Illinois Athletic club trainer, from his long association with athletes, realizes that the problem of a two weeks' training period is to build up the boys gradually to reach a climax for the night of Aug. 2, but at no time during those two weeks to have their conditioning seem a grind, monotonous. Therefore, he allowed them two days of play after arrival.

Boys between 18 and 22 years old naturally are in pretty good shape, and there really is more danger of their overtraining in athletic activity than danger of their shirking.

Regular hours, however, begin tomorrow with meals at 8 o'clock, 12 o'clock, and 6 o'clock. Rising time is 6 o'clock in the morning, followed by road work before breakfast. It is cooler then than later in the day. Boxing, shadow boxing, punching the bag, are held at 2:30 in the afternoon at the indoor gymnasium, where a regulation ring with padded floor has been erected.

In the unscheduled time all day and before taps at 10 o'clock at night the fifteen candidates for the eight positions on the international team may do pretty much as they please.

For their choice are offered swimming in Lake Michigan, which will be eliminated the last few days before the bouts, horseback riding, golf, baseball with a soft ball, tennis, and ping pong. Experience of other years has proved that about one horseback ride is the limit for boys not accustomed to that form of exercise.

When Izzy Goldstein, featherweight, said this morning, "I want a horse," Manager Wilfrid Smith replied, "Do you want to ride one or to play one? We don't wish our boys to do any gambling while here." "I want to ride one," Goldstein retorted emphatically. "I don't know anything about playing them."

Possibly he did not know so much about riding them, either, for tonight he sidled up to Smith and said a bit confidentially, "Never mind about ordering that horse again tomorrow."

Dempsey Weds Miss Williams in Elko, Nev.

Justice of the Peace Alvin McFarlane united the couple, who had motored across the desert from Salt Lake City during the night and registered at a local hotel as "Mike Costello" and "Jane Gray." Previously they had indicated they would be married in Reno tonight.

Jack Calls Reno Home.

The former champion has called Reno his home since he established residence there in 1931 to obtain a divorce from Estelle Taylor, motion picture actress.

In Hollywood, Miss Taylor offered her congratulations.

"Jack's marriage is perhaps the best thing that has happened to me," the brunette film actress said. "In spite of our divorce I never was able to shake off the feeling I was tied to Jack by some indefinable bond. Now that he is married, all the responsibility for his welfare belongs to another woman. I wish them luck."

No. 3 for Both.

It was Dempsey's third marriage and the third for Miss Williams, whose first marital venture with Charles Kaley, an actor and musician, ended in annulment in Cook county, Illinois, June 30, 1927. After a year's marriage, Dempsey and his first wife, Maxine, separated in 1917.

Miss Williams and Kahn lived together only a short time. She said they separated principally because of quarrels over her desire to establish a home of her own, "while Roger insisted that we live with his parents."

The bride, who has been on the stage since the age of 9, is 22. Dempsey is 38. Both gave their ages as "over 21" in obtaining the license.

They are expected to go to California on a honeymoon before returning to New York where Dempsey will continue his fight promotions.

YANKS GET ONLY ONE HOMER, BUT WHIP SOX, 9-4

Champions Give Lyons 6th Straight Beating.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, July 18.—The mauling Yankees were considerate enough today to restrict themselves to one home run. The result was the same, however. Instead of homers they concentrated on singles and doubles, thereby taking another slap at their cousins, the White Sox from Chicago, and at the same time stretching their winning streak to nine games. The score was 9 to 4 and it was doubly tough because it slapped another defeat on the one time sterling Ted Lyons. The Louisiana bachelor now has lost six starts in a row since June 6.

The Yanks didn't lose any time showing 10,000 customers today that the highly valuable winning streak with which they have lifted themselves back in the pennant fight was in no danger. They hammered Lyons for five runs in the first three innings. Two of these might have been avoided if Charley Berry hadn't blundered a couple of times. During the remainder of his tenure Lyons, while shaky, kept them away from the plate except in the seventh. Then Paul Gregory was summoned for a workout, and the last three Yank tallies popped up on the board when Dixie Walker supplied the lone homer of the matinee.

Allen Has Some Fun.

The one thing that can be said for the Sox is that they gave Johnny Allen a scare. But it didn't come until two were out in the ninth and three men had scored. However, even with the five run lead which remained Allen vanished at the request of Manager Joe McCarthy, who has become overcautious by recent experiences. But while he was in there Allen had more than a full day of fun. He fanned nine men, the last being the first out in the ninth, and in eight innings he kept the Chicagoans well nigh helpless on eight hits.

Jinx Makes Good.

Lyons defied the jinx by fanning the lead off man in the first inning, so what followed was not exactly a surprise. Sewell poked a low liner back of third and Simmons, who was playing well over toward center, had to hustle to hold the veteran to two bases. Ruth whistled one into the right field corner for a double and Sewell scored. Berry committed a passed ball on a perfect pitch and Ruth reached third, whence he scored on Gehrig's fly to deep center. Appling threw out Lightning Heels Chapman to end the bad start.

The trouble in the second was brought on by a pass to Lazzeri, who opened the attack. Dickey bounced a single between Kress and Hayes. The two men were moved up on Farrell's sacrifice bunt. When Allen popped to Dykes it appeared as if Lyons might avert trouble, but Walker doubled to center to score Lazzeri and

BY EDWARD BURNS.

Lon Warneke yesterday made it an even dozen in his 1933 win ledger when he took the Boston Braves to town, 4 to 1, in the final of the series. The Cubs won the series, four games to one.

The victory was the third Lonnie has won during the Cubs' current home stand. Previously he had beaten the Giants, 4 to 0, and the Dodgers, 4 to 1. The Brooklyn run, like Boston's yesterday, was an unearned counter. Obviously, Lon, with errorless support, would have had three 4 to 0 shutouts. As it stands, however, the young man hasn't felt the urge to kick over a stove for almost a month and part of his brilliance yesterday was credited as revenge for the $25 the Boston club charged him for the last stove he kicked over.

Bunch Hits in Two Innings.

Except for outbursts in the second and third innings the Cubs showed symptoms of resuming the hitless policy which characterized their support of Warneke during the stretch when Lon lost five games on a grand total of nine enemy runs. The Cubs made only seven hits, but, happily, they concentrated five of them in two innings for enough runs to make it a breeze for the Arkansan.

The first run was Gabby Hartnett's No. 12 homer, knocked with two down in the second inning. Two doubles and two singles accounted for three runs in the third inning. Jurges led off with a double and Warneke and Koenig followed with singles to produce the winning run. Then Cuyler drove in Warneke and Koenig with a double.

No Passes Issued.

The way Warneke was going these runs seemed as good as a million just as soon as they were registered. While Lon allowed as many hits as the Boston pitchers, he kept them well scattered, excepting two infield safeties which helped prevent his shutout in the eighth. Lon did not walk or hit a batsman, but he had no edge there, because Cantwell and Mangum didn't either.

Pinch Batter Mowry, who scored the Bostons' only run, was one of two men who reached third and one of four who reached second.

The day's doings gave the Cubs a record of 12 victories in 15 games since they returned home on July 4. They continued 3½ games back of the leading Giants and failed to increase their lead of a half game over the third place Pirates.

Homer First Cub Hit.

That No. 12 homer of Hartnett's was the first Cub hit. It came with two out in the second inning and enthused the Cubs to the extent that they stepped out for three more runs in the next inning.

Jurges opened the third with the first of his extra base hits, a double to left, and stopped on third when Warneke cracked a single to left. Koenig singled to center, Jurges scoring, and Warneke stopping at second. Warneke and Koenig moved up on Herman's sacrifice. Cuyler doubled over Berger's head, scoring Warneke and Koenig. Stephenson and Demaree were easy outs.

The remainder of the Cubs' offensive consisted of a triple by Jurges with two out in the fourth, and a single by Cuyler with two out in the fifth.

How Lon Lost Shutout.

And here's the way Lon again lost a shutout: Mowry batted for Cantwell with one out in the eighth and beat out a bunt toward third. He went to second while Jurges was throwing out Urbanski and to third while Jordan was beating out a grounder to Herman. Berger grounded to Jurges and Mowry scored when Jurges made a low throw to second in an attempt to force Jordan.

The Cubs today will enjoy the second of the week's three days off, the game scheduled for today having been moved up for last Sunday's double header. The Phillies will be here tomorrow to play the first of a four game series and it will be a rubber game for each team has won four contests in the season series.

Bud Tinning will go after his No. 8 victory in tomorrow's contest. It will be recalled that Bud lost his last time out, suffering his second setback of the year after a string of seven straight wins.

CAMBRIDGESHIRE RUNS FOURTH IN CHICAGO DEBUT

Snapback Defeats Chilean Horse at Arlington.

BY FRENCH LANE.

The South Americans, Señores de la Cerda and Santiago, who shipped the Chilean horse, Cambridgeshire, to this country for a few betting cleanups, ran squarely into a stone wall at Arlington Park yesterday afternoon.

They started their big bay 5 year old in the Articulate purse at a mile. They bet plenty on their steed and why shouldn't they? They were at Arlington fresh from two big killings at Latonia, in which they got odds of 21 to 1 the first time and a little better than even money the next time they sent him out to win.

The report went around that here was another Tutti Frutti coming along to clean up all the great horses in the United States. After the two Latonia triumphs the logical thing to do seemed to be to come on to Arlington, where they could win more fame and fortune.

He's Great for a While.

He got into the race favorably weighted at 108 pounds. He was in a contending position most of the way around. At the head of the stretch his rivals started running too fast for him. He dropped back until he was out of the money.

The Brookmeade stable's Snapback, after running a mile in 1:36 3-5, was the winner by a head after enjoying the lead most of the way. He withstood Big Beau's final desperate challenge and won by a head. The favorite, Watch Him, from Mrs. John Hertz's stable, finished third, beating Cambridgeshire out of the slim end of the purse in the final strides.

Snapback had been slightly neglected in the betting, due to the plunge on Watch Him, and paid $8.98 to win. A short time ago he had been beaten a head by Watch Him in a mile race which was run in 1:36.

Hadagal Wins Easily.

A crowd of the leading candidates for the rich Futurity events coming along later in the season clashed in the Glengowrie purse, a dash at 5½ furlongs.

When it was all over there was considerable cheering by the Chicagoans in the crowd. Warren Wright's juvenile, Hadagal, a good looking son of Sir Gallahad III-Erne, turned up as the easiest kind of a winner. It was the most impressive victory he has scored this year and he turned in the kind of a run down the stretch, where he gradually pulled away from his field, that stamps him as a possible champion.

Hadagal beat the highly regarded easterner, Discovery, by three lengths. Spy Hill, from Mrs. Helen Hay Whitney's Greentree stable, was third.

The crowd had been sold on Hadagal's running ability, so it went to the post as an odds on favorite, paying $3.32, in the betting. He reeled off the five and one-half furlongs in 1:05 3-5, which was the fastest race of the afternoon.

There was also a thrilling 3 year old battle on the program—the Hickory Hills purse—and it brought one of the infrequent triumphs for the rich Three D's stable of Texas when Strideway came from behind to beat Clarify and Boilermaker by three lengths. Strideaway was the favorite at a little better than even money.

BRITISH BRIDGE TEAM LEADS U.S. BY 1,400 POINTS

LONDON, July 18.—(AP)—The British team, after having its lead whittled down below the 1,000 mark, came back to lead the American team by 1,400 points when the second day of the Anglo-American contract bridge match was concluded tonight on the ninety-sixth hand. The score stood: England, 30,550; United States, 29,150.

Firpo Disappears After Release on Bail; Sought

BUENOS AIRES, July 18.—(AP)—The arrest of Luis Angel Firpo, former heavyweight prize fighter, who disappeared and failed to report to police after release on bail April 25 pending trial on charges of conspiring to acquire farm property fraudulently, was ordered today by the courts.

Head Play Out of Racing Until Late in Fall

Head Play, which only a little more than two months ago threatened to become one of the most sensational 3 year olds in many seasons, is through with the race tracks for some time.

An examination of his bruised foot yesterday revealed his injuries are more severe than at first indicated. As a result he will be thrown out of training until fall.

Horse against horse bets—Equipoise against Gallant Sir—were being made at Arlington yesterday. The early wagers revealed that the backers of Equipoise were offering $120 to $100. The handicappers at Arlington were of the opinion that Equipoise will be about 7 to 5 at post time on Saturday with the Church entry of Gallant Sir and Plucky Play at 11 to 5.

Hawthorne will make no change in its admission prices for the 30 day meeting which opens a week from Monday, it was announced yesterday. On all complimentary badges there will be a service charge of 50 cents, which will include state and federal taxes. As was the policy last year, there will be no club house badges of any character and the admission there will be 50 cents additional. Thus a race patron wishing club house accommodations will find the total costs $1.80.

Hawthorne officials are satisfied they struck a popular chord with their announcement of the revival of the Chicago Derby as a means of unscrambling the muddled three year old championship. Not only have many owners expressed themselves as pleased with the chance to crown a king, but many patrons as well have congratulated west side officials. The race probably will be run Sept. 20. Several of the owners of leading 3 year olds requested the date.

The entry of Resubmission will be refused at Arlington Park henceforth. Dr. McKillip reported the horse is having greatly impaired vision. His behavior in the first race yesterday showed that he is a menace to other horses and their riders.

Old Pigeon Hole, backed stoutly to win the second race yesterday, but which raced far back all the way, came out of the race limping badly. His injuries appeared so severe that horsemen thought he might be nearing the end of his racing career.

"There was one Irishman of color in the army, a lad named Washington," said Liam O'Brien, a captain in the Free State army, who came along in charge of the party as representative of the Irish Boxing association. "He came from Mullingar. He did box a little."

"An Irishman?"

"O, yes, an Irishman," Capt. O'Brien said.

"I don't think he was born in Ireland," Sergt. Dwyer suggested.

"Yes," the captain insisted. "The whole family of them live in Mullingar. Then we have a fellow around Dublin named Cyclone Billy Warren, a dark man. He is an American, I think. But he is all through now."

Two Are Pro Prospects.

Had he seen the famous fight between Mike McTigue and Battling Siki in Dublin, in which Michael won the light heavyweight championship that Siki had lately taken from Georges Carpentier?

"Yes, I saw that one. That was just about the beginning of the civil war. It was on St. Patrick's day in Dublin. But McTigue won fairly all right. He gave Siki a boxing lesson."

Fortunately, there were no professional halter men hanging around the pier as the Irish fighters came ashore. Otherwise, the young Hibernians might have had to go into action prematurely to beat the piece workers off two very impressive young fighters who might be brought along to very profitable operations in the prizefight business in this country. These two would be Dick Hearns, the light heavyweight, who has the look of a good fighter in every line and move, and Paddy Mulligan, the heavyweight, who stretches six feet seven and weighs about 225 pounds.

With none of the monstrousness of Primo Carnera, who was worth a nickel a peek even to the frugal French before he ever started to fight, Mulligan is about as tall as Primo and a bigger man than any of the prominent professionals who will be asked to fight him in the next year or two.

They Bring Mayor Present.

He is bigger than Sharkey, Baer and Schmeling and yet in Chicago he is fighting a little heavyweight of exactly the type which is usually recommended for cutting down the big, tall people. His opponent will be John Pacek, five feet, about eleven, who weighs no more than 185 and might be able to come in under and then up, throwing presents at Mulligan's chin.

Capt. O'Brien brought a token of peace and amity from Alfred Byrne, the lord mayor of Dublin, to Edward J. Kelly, the mayor of Chicago.

It was a blackthorn stick, containing a plate engraved with the lord mayor's compliments and suitable for walking purposes but, with its nice balance and the thorns, easily adaptable to other uses which might occur.

HUGE RECEPTION AWAITS CHAMPS OF IRELAND HERE

Chicago to Roar Welcome to Invaders Tomorrow.

BY HOWARD BARRY.

Chicago will roar an enthusiastic welcome to the amateur boxing champions of Ireland when the boys arrive at the Union station tomorrow at 11:50 a. m. They are coming here to meet the Chicago Golden Gloves team in an international match Aug. 2 at Soldiers' field.

When the visitors step from the train they will be greeted by Peter M. Kelly, Al Horan, and James Whalen, representing Mayor Kelly, and will be surrounded by an army of Chicagoans of Irish ancestry. Before going a dozen paces from the railroad coach, they will hear the familiar brogue of Cork, or Kerry, or Galway, or Athlone assuring them that they are among friends. Then there will be a parade to the city hall, where Mayor Kelly will extend a personal welcome.

Later the boys will go to the Midwest Athletic club, which will be their home during their visit, and after they have had time to catch their breath there will be a series of receptions and entertainments in their honor.

Irish Societies Participate.

On Friday the west side will fete the boxers at a banquet in the Midwest Athletic club and an outdoor festival in Garfield park. On Monday a similar celebration is planned by the people of the south side.

Many organizations which are Irish in character or which have large Irish elements in their memberships, will be represented in the crowd at the Union station tomorrow morning. The Knights of Columbus, the Holy Name society, the Ancient Order of Hibernians, the Clann a Gael, and the American Association for the Recognition of the Irish Republic will have delegations on hand.

Patrick W. Barrett, who is in charge of arrangements for the south side reception, will head a committee of welcome from his section of the city, and William Druley will be at the depot with a delegation from the west side.

Parade to City Hall.

Maj. John Bauder of the Chicago police department has made all traffic arrangements for the parade. Cars which are to participate will park on Canal street between Adams and Jackson, facing south.

When the fighters arrive the parade will move east in Jackson boulevard to La Salle street, with a police escort clearing the way. The marchers will go north in La Salle street to the city hall, where they will be escorted to the mayor's office.

Mr. Druley, who is president of the Garfield Park Business Men's club, reports that Friday's reception is receiving hearty support from prominent residents of the west side. Hundreds of reservations for the banquet have been made and thousands are expected to attend the outdoor festival in the park. The banquet is open to the public, a charge of $1.50 a plate being made. The outdoor festival, which will consist of entertainment and dancing, will be free of charge.

SECLUDED, away fast and having speed, was forced wide by RESUBMISSION when leaving the back stretch, came away fast at stretch turn and, continuing well, won easily. LITTLE PATRIOT, away slowly and on outside throughout, closed with a rush. GREYHIP, a strong factor throughout, weakened in closing stages.

Parke. Went to post at 2:46½. At post ½ minute. Start good from gate. Won driving; second and third same.

STREET SINGER away fast but strongly restrained for three-eighths, moved up easily when leaving the back stretch, came away fast as VOTAN weakened when entering final quarter, and weakened but lasted. TACK began well, but was taken back repeatedly under a poorly judged ride and, closing strong, was wearing down the winner. VOTAN had speed under hustling tactics, saved ground, and faltered in final three-sixteenths.

Went to post at 3:14. At post ½ minute. Start good from gate. Won ridden out; second and third driving.

CLEAR bettered his position fast when saving ground and, under strong pressure at the turn, easily disposed of VOLTA MAID, and was vigorously ridden out. GRAND PRINCE lost much ground and closed with fine speed in a good effort. VOLTA MAID had speed from the start, saved ground, and weakened in final eighth.

HADAGAL began swiftly and was in clear command before going an eighth, saved ground while under strong restraint when rounding the turn and, coming away in the stretch, won with speed in reserve. DISCOVERY, under strong riding throughout, weakened in final sixteenth, but outstayed SPY HILL. Latter had speed from the start, lost ground, and tired near end.

STRIDEAWAY, allowed to remain out of it for the first five-eighths, began making up ground thereafter and, closing with fine belated speed, won easily. CLARIFY, under restraint for three-quarters, held on well, but was no match for winner. BOILERMAKER displayed fine speed in the early pacemaking, but weakened in the last three-sixteenths.

SNAPBACK, improved and having fine speed, made the early pace under good rating and, holding on stubbornly, outstayed BIG BEAU. Cincinnati, O., July 18.—(AP)—The New York Giants hit almost everything the Reds' pitchers sent their way today and defeated Cincinnati, 14 to 1.

Johnny Vergez settled the game in in the first inning when he walloped one of Larry Benton's pitches over the left field wall for his tenth home run of the season with the bases filled. Benny Frey and Eppa Rixey followed and the three pitchers yielded 19 hits. Score:

NO CHANGE IN CONDITION OF INJURED POLOIST

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Green Bay, Wis., July 18.—The condition of Lieut. Gordon Watrous of Chicago, who was seriously injured in a polo match here Sunday, was unchanged tonight, according to his physician, Dr. J. P. Lenfesty. Lieut. Watrous, suffering from a fracture at the base of the skull, is still unconscious, as he has been since the mishap, which resulted when he was struck by a horse's hoof during a spill. He is at the St. Vincent's hospital.

A crisis is expected in his condition within the next 48 hours by Dr. Lenfesty. Lieut. Watrous' parents, as well as a brother, all of Chicago, are at his bedside.

Phagan Fights Purvis Tonight for Fourth Time

Johnny Phagan, 1932 International Golden Gloves welterweight champion, will meet Jackie Purvis of Indianapolis, Ind., for the fourth time tonight in an eight round bout at Northwest stadium, 4848 Irving Park boulevard. Two weeks ago Phagan was awarded his second decision over Jackie, much to the displeasure of the crowd, which thought Purvis was entitled to the match. Purvis won their first meeting several months ago on the southwest side.

Phagan will be going after his 11th professional victory in 15 starts.

Bob Stone, north side heavyweight, and Moss T. Brawner will clash in the six round semi-final. Phil Pernice and Popeye Huber of Philadelphia are paired at four rounds. Eddie Leonard will substitute for George Engel against Izzy Lubansky in another match at four rounds. Joe Freeman, south side lightweight, will make a comeback against Al De Rose in the opening contest.

Yanks Whip Sox and Lyons Again, 9 to 4

Lyon's bad third inning would have been averted if Berry had not perpetrated another passed ball. The inning opened with a walk to Ruth. The next two fellows hoisted to Simmons and then Babe went to second on Berry's blunder. That put him in position to score when Lazzeri slapped a single straight past Lyons into center.

Simmons Cracks One.

Simmons was the big factor in promoting the lone Sox run in the fourth. He led off with a two base drive that lacked only a couple of feet of clearing the barrier in right field. He received no encouragement from Appling, who flied to center, or Dykes, who fanned. Hayes, however, singled to left, and Simmons, with the aid of a neat bit of sliding at the plate, managed to score despite Chapman's perfect throw in. Then Berry singled to center and Lyons hit one squarely, but Lazzeri leaped up and speared it.

The Yanks poured out another batch of trouble for Lyons in the home fourth, and there is no telling how extensive the damage might have grown if it hadn't been for Appling. Allen doubled to right with one out. Walker singled to the same spot and went to second on the throw in which held Allen at third. The infield drew in and Sewell cracked a wicked bounder toward second, but Appling dove to get it and righted himself in time to peg to the plate to stop Allen. Then Ruth sailed one far into right, but it was just a few feet too short to keep Swanson from making the catch.

Another Yank run scored in the seventh, making the count 6 to 1. Sewell opened with a single to right. Ruth walked after Ump Van Graflan appeared to have mistaken a third strike for a third ball. Then both Gehrig and Chapman grounded into force plays, enabling Sewell to work his way around to the plate by easy stages.

Gregory Meets Trouble.

When Gregory arrived in the eighth he did well enough by fanning Lazzeri. Trouble popped up immediately, however. Dickey singled to right and took third when Farrell pushed a single through short on a hit and run play. Allen fanned, but not Mr. Walker. He took hold of the first pitch and steered it into the right field seats for his ninth homer. That made the score 9 to 1. Then Sewell walked, thus providing Ruth another chance. But he hoisted to Simmons.

Webb, batting for Gregory, contributed a single to open the ninth. Swanson fanned, but Haas doubled, scoring Webb. Haas scored on a single by Kress. Simmons walked and along with Kress moved up on a wild pitch. After Appling had fouled to Dickey, Allen was withdrawn. Moore stepped in and ended the game after Kress had scored on a dinky single by Dykes.

Senators Lose, 4 to 3; Drop Into 2d Place

Washington, D. C., July 18.—(AP)—A 4 to 3 defeat administered by the St. Louis Browns today removed the Washington Senators from top position in the American league and placed them a full game behind the New York Yankees.

The Senators outhit the last place Browns, 10 to 9, but two errors behind Jack Russell, Washington pitcher, gave the visitors three runs in the first inning. The Senators never gained the lead.

Goslin knocked his seventh homer of the season for Washington in the sixth and got two other hits. Joe Cronin, Washington manager, also made three hits, one a triple. Score:

Rena Nelson Sets Course Record in Golf Victory

A new course record of 40—37—77 by Rena Nelson featured the first round of match play in the Chicago Women's District golf tournament at Skokie yesterday. Five matches decided by wide margins and three by close figures also lent interest to the play.

Miss Nelson defeated Mildred Hackl of Midlothian, 3 and 2, in establishing her new record. Both girls had 40 going out, one over par, and stood even. After the turn Miss Hackl did not win a hole, although her card had a birdie and four pars on it. Miss Nelson played the incoming nine in 37, two under par, won the 10th with an eagle by sinking a 50 yard approach, the 15th and 16th in par and the 17th in a birdie 4.

Jean Armstrong, the defending champion, defeated Jane Weiller, former titleholder, 2 up, after turning all square. They see-sawed to the 16th where Miss Weiller drove into the woods. With a chance to get a half at the 18th, Miss Weiller overshot the green, and then Jean sank a 15 foot putt for a birdie.

Medalist Loses, 6 and 5.

Helen MacMorran of Indian Hill had an easy time defeating Mrs. Harry Langer, the medalist, 6 and 5. Mrs. Langer simply could not shoot straight, much in contrast to her game in the qualifying round. She had 48 going out, nine over par, and was 3 down. Coming in, Miss MacMorran won three in a row and ended it at the 13th with a half.

June Beebe, women's open and medal play champion, entered the second round with an 8 and 6 victory over Mrs. Lillian Zech of Tam O'Shanter, for the largest margin of the day. June was even par for the 12 holes played. She shot the first nine in 38, one under perfection.

Mrs. Melvin Jones, Lincolnshire champion and six times holder of the city title, went out in even par 39 and finished one over par at the 15th to win, 4 and 3, from Mrs. Charles Dennehy of Onwentsia.

Match Between Sisters.

The match between the two sisters, Mrs. H. Austin Pardue and Mrs. Robert C. Bennett, formerly Dorothy and Elizabeth Klotz, ended at the 14th, where Mrs. Pardue won, 5 and 4.

Mrs. Pearl Indig of Mohawk won, 6 and 5, from Mrs. W. W. Hodgeson, Oak Park, after turning 5 up. They traded two holes on the way in, Mrs. Indig winning the 13th to end the match.

The last match in the championship flight saw Mrs. Harold Foreman of Lake Shore win, 2 and 1, from Mrs. W. W. Haerther of Exmoor.

Results in the other flights:

FIRST FLIGHT.

Mrs. David M. Norton, Glen View, defeated Mrs. Norman Anderson, Olympia Fields, 4 and 3.

LAX ENFORCING OF AUTO THEFT LAWS REVEALED

Light Sentences Imposed on First Offenders.

Chicago courts in which defendants charged with automobile theft are tried operate generally on the principal that "every person should be given the right to steal at least one motor vehicle before punishment is administered." Judges and prosecutors are reluctant to administer the law as the statute provides and seek to turn an automobile theft into a misdemeanor which can be punished with a light sentence.

These facts and others concerning lax administration of Illinois laws placed on the state books to curb the theft and stripping of motor vehicles, were made public yesterday by Henry Barrett Chamberlin, director of the Chicago Crime commission. The information was made available to the city council committee investigating the racket which now exacts a daily toll of 100 stolen cars and maintains a force of 200,000 thieves, fences and other crooks on the profits.

18 Sent to Prison.

A survey of automobile theft cases placed on the Criminal court dockets in January, February and March of this year when 6,852 automobiles valued at $3,426,000 were stolen, discloses that of 229 defendants only 18 were sent to the penitentiary or to the reformatory for the full term provided by law.

From this group of cases 47 defendants were charged with a misdemeanor when the courts arbitrarily fixed the value of the stolen automobile at less than $15. This was done in the face of insurance company records which place the average value of cars stolen in Chicago at $500.

In 34 other cases the judges changed the charge from larceny of an automobile to one of "failure to obtain the consent of the owner to drive away his automobile," which is a second method of changing the serious theft charge to a misdemeanor.

Where Money Could Be Saved.

Eighty-one defendants, most of them youths held to the grand jury from the Boy's court, were convicted only of misdemeanors. These cases were considered by the Boys' court as too serious to be considered misdemeanors, but the crime commission pointed out that it would have been a saving of time and money to the state had their sentences been pronounced in that court.

The last 49 of the defendants were released on probation, without punishment other than the necessity of reporting over a period of months to a probation officer.

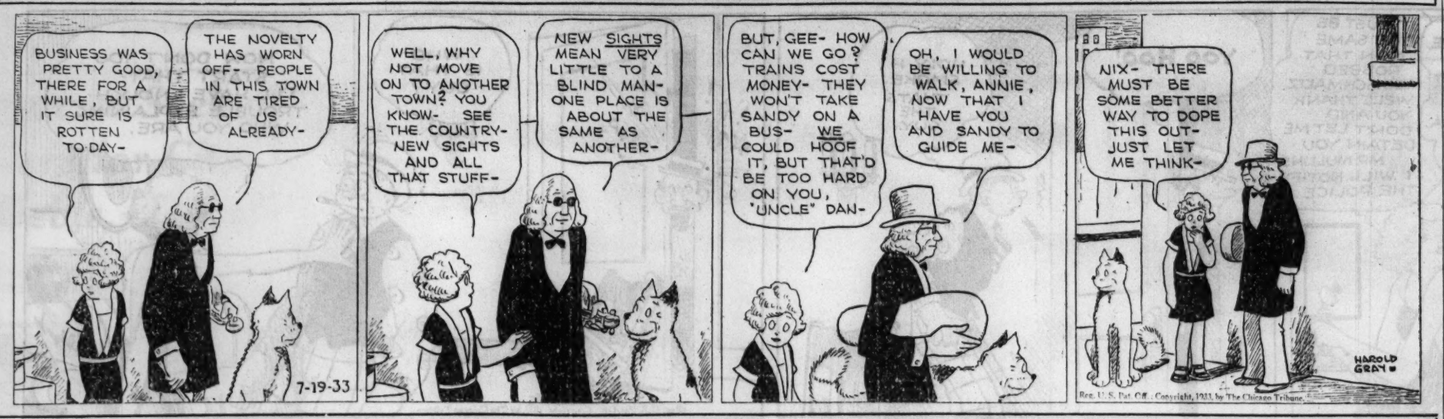
Larceny of an automobile is punishable by sentence of one to ten years in the penitentiary and the charge of tampering with a motor vehicle is punishable by a sentence of one year in the bridewell.

The misdemeanor of theft of an article of less than $15 in value can be punished by a maximum sentence of six months in the county jail as can the misdemeanor of "driving away without the owner's consent."

In the Municipal Court.

During the first quarter of this year there were 515 men and boys charged with automobile theft and related cases in the Municipal court. A summary of the dispositions shows that 193 were held to the grand jury, 167 received no punishment at all, in 97 cases the defendants were found guilty but placed under supervision, which is a loose form of probation, and 58 received some sort of punishment.

LITTLE ORPHAN ANNIE: Time to Move On



HAROLD TEEN—CUPID'S MESSENGER

HAUGEN OF IOWA, MEMBER OF HOUSE FOR 34 YEARS, DIES

Northwood, Ia., July 18.—(AP)—Gilbert N. Haugen, 74, former congressman from Iowa, died at his home here tonight. He had been suffering from heart disease and complications brought on by an attack of influenza last winter.

When he left office March 4 the coauthor of the McNary-Haugen bill and militant farm leader had completed 34 years continuous service in the house of representatives, the longest record of any national congressman.

Haugen won the Republican nomination a year ago after a close race with former State Senator C. A. Benson of Elkader, but was defeated in the Democratic landslide in November by Representative Fred Biermann of Decorah.

Haugen had been in poor health since his return from Washington in March, and his son, Lars G. Haugen, an officer of the National City bank of New York, was called here two weeks ago. He and Haugen's daughter, Mrs. Joe Johnson of Northwood, were at the bedside.

Mr. Haugen's wife died 40 years ago, and he never remarried.

Funeral services and burial will be held here Friday afternoon.

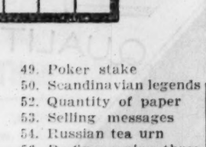
YESTERDAY'S PUZZLE SOLVED.



LEMONADE STAND SPONSORS ASSIST FREE ICE FUND

Two contributions from children reached the free ice fund yesterday, one raised by a lemonade stand benefit and the other a gift offering in a Sunday school.

Those who sent the receipts from the lemonade stand were Grace Barker and Orelle and Anita Schwaba, the latter two are daughters of Judge Peter H. Schwaba. They earned $2.10. The other gift of $2 was from the primary department of the Rogers Park Presbyterian church. With these gifts the ice fund was brought to a grand total of $1,027.81.

A $25 gift reached the Camp Algonquin fund from an anonymous contributor. This will be sufficient to send three persons to the camp for a two weeks' vacation. The camp fund now has a total of $1,461.49.

Contributions are needed now for both funds. Many youngsters in the congested areas will be sorely disappointed if the two week vacations at the Fox river valley camp aren't forthcoming. Mothers who can't go to camp with their children hope that they will continue to get free ice tickets.

Gifts to both funds should be sent to the cashier of THE TRIBUNE, Tribune Tower.

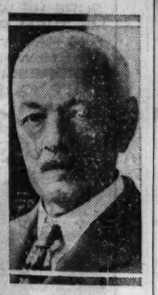
EDWARD MORSE, CHICAGO SCHOOL VETERAN, IS DEAD



E. L. C. MORSE.

Edward Leland Clark Morse, who for 37 years was principal of the Phil Sheridan school in South Chicago, died in Long Beach, Cal., on Monday evening, it was learned from dispatches received here yesterday. Mr. Morse was 78 years old, having retired from active teaching in 1926 under the emeritus service rule when he reached the age of 70. He had made his home in Long Beach for the last five years.

His widow, Mrs. Louisa Weaver Morse, and a daughter, Mrs. Alice Morse O'Bryan, were at the bedside when the end came. Another daughter, Miss Alice D. Morse, is a resident of Chicago. Funeral ceremonies will be held in Long Beach today.

Mr. Morse was the author of three text books extensively used in schools and colleges and was also an attorney, being holder of a certificate to practice law in the Supreme court. He was a scholar of the Romance languages and at one time was a lecturer on these languages at Harvard university. He was born at Dover, N. H., in June, 1855; studied at Harvard and Lake Forest universities, and completed his post-graduate work at the University of Chicago.

DIES OF BULLET WOUND.

William Lewis, 32 years old, an unemployed salesman, who shot himself Monday night while lying in bed in his home at 4458 Addison street, died of his wound yesterday in the county hospital.

TOO late Dot realized the handicap that excess, unlovely fat puts on even beautiful women. Too late she realized the havoc that billowing flesh works on lovely features and youthful figures. Are you, too, putting up with abnormal, unsightly fat? Then learn the method multitudes have turned to, when too much food goes to fat and too little goes to energy. Doctors trace this common condition to "low metabolism." Ever since 1907 a wonderful prescription has been used to counteract this frequent cause of abnormal weight. No starvation diets. Simply avoid fattening foods. Its 19 ingredients include important vegetable, organic and other factors, which physicians the world over prescribe regularly. It is called Marmola. Since 1907, 20 million boxes have been bought by people who have grown tired of embarrassing fat—and tired of ineffective remedies. Now it is asked for by the thousands, in leading style and beauty centers—sold in 48 states, and in many foreign lands. Ask for it today—every druggist has Marmola, at only $1.

WHEAT CANCELS EARLY UPTURN; IMPORTS FEARED

Price Off About One Cent; Barley Soars.

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

Wheat prices in the United States are so high that they are said to be approaching an import level with Argentine wheat. B. W. Snow, the Bartlett, Frazier company statistician, says the rapid advance in wheat, particularly the last few days, has so widened the difference between domestic and world prices that the possibility of laying down Argentine wheat in New York, duty paid, does not appear to be far removed.

Before that could be done to any extent, however, action would undoubtedly be taken by our government under the power it has in connection with a processing tax to prevent importation. With the United States full of wheat, it is merely a matter of prices in the different countries as to importations.

There has seldom been a time when it was possible to bring wheat on a long haul from any other country than Canada.

All Grains Gyrate.

All the grain markets were unusually wild yesterday with wide fluctuations. The public are in the market to a heavy extent, either buying in expectation of an advance or taking profits on previous purchases. The trade was so big and the fluctuations so rapid that traders were bewildered and it was impossible to keep track of the changes.

At the high point July wheat was $1.17½; September, $1.20; December, $1.24, and May $1.28, showing advances of 1 to over 3 cents above the previous day's finish. Breaks of 3 to 4 cents were made from the high point on profit taking sales, but in spite of the heavy selling there was also a steady run of buying.

At the close July wheat was $1.14⅞; September, $1.17⅝ to $1.17⅜; December, $1.20⅞ to $1.20⅝, and May, $1.25¼ to $1.25, with net losses of 1¼ cents for the day on the near and ¾ cent on deferred deliveries.

Sentiment Is Mixed.

Local sentiment on the exchange floor was more mixed and the market responded more readily to the news as it sifted in during the day. In addition to the heavy selling for profits by previous buyers, there was liberal hedging pressure on every bulge in a way that frequently stopped upward price swings.

Barley attracted attention more from its wide change of prices on light trading than any other factor. Sellers early in the day were scarce and the market was unable to open until a leading trader had sold 400,000 bushels at $1. A few minutes later the price was down to 85 cents, and the close was at 90¾ cents, or 7¾ cents net gain for the day. July fluctuated between 81½ cents and 90 cents, with the finish at 85⅞ cents, a difference of 7½ cents. September jumped from 74 to 90 cents and closed at 80 cents, a gain of 7¼ cents.

Rye was less sensational, although price fluctuations were numerous and wide. The close was at $1.05 for September. December fluctuated 3 cents and closed $1.10⅞ to $1.10¾, a gain of 2¼ cents.

Large Trade in Corn.

Nervousness with active trading featured the corn market. Buying was scattered but of liberal volume on all weak spots, being influenced by the action of other grains. The range was around 2 cents, and the finish was at net losses of 1¼ to 2¼ cents, July being 63⅞ cents, September, 69⅝ to 69⅝ cents; December, 74⅝ to 74½ cents; and May, 80½ to 79⅞ cents.

Scattered commission house buying of oats failed to carry prices to new high levels. Profit taking featured the market most of the day and the close was on a basis of 48¼ to 48⅜ cents for September, 51½ to 51¾ cents for December, and 54¼ cents for May, losses being ¼ to ⅜ cent.

Experts Seek Cure for City Debts, Taxes

Fifty leading authorities of the country on municipal finance will open a three day conference Friday at Judson court of the University of Chicago. The conference will seek practical solution for the problem of municipal debt and tax delinquency.

DR. C. E. MERRIAM. [De Haven Photo.]

"This is likely to be the most important conference on the subject of municipal finance ever held," Prof. C. E. Merriman, chairman of the university's department of political science, stated yesterday. "Cities face acute financial problems today and a program of prompt and intelligent action is needed.

"Leading governmental administrators will meet with leading investment bankers to work out such a program. I believe that the group will be able to arrive at some understanding as to what ought to be done."

Cites Many Defaults.

Louis Brownlow, director of the Public Administration Clearing house, one of the organizations sponsoring the meeting, said:

"More than 1,500 cities, school districts, and other local governmental units have already defaulted on their obligations. While there have been defaults in all states, the situation has been especially acute in Florida, North Carolina, Ohio, and Michigan. Many more are threatened.

"It is imperative that ways and means be devised to ease the burden of funded debt on local governments."

Three Principal Topics.

The three main subjects listed for discussion are:

1. Municipal debt problems.
2. Tax delinquency.
3. Distribution of revenues and functions of government.

The conference is expected to throw some light on the extent and probable duration of municipal defaults. In this connection, J. Mark Wilcox, Florida congressman and author of the federal municipal refinancing bill, is to participate in the discussion.

Causes and remedies for tax delinquency will be discussed and the extent to which real estate development contributed to tax delinquency will be appraised.

BOARD OF TRADE LIMITS BARLEY'S RANGE TO 10 CTS.

Fluctuations of 10 to 20 cents a bushel in trading in barley futures on the Chicago Board of Trade the last few days has induced the board's directors to take action to prevent their repetition in the belief they are injurious to barley interests and also the trade in other grains.

The order issued by the directors late yesterday said there should be no trading in barley at prices more than 5 cents a bushel above or below the closing price of the previous business day. The ruling is effective at once and is to hold until further notice.

OFFICERS NAMED OF NEW BOOTH FISHERIES CO.

Robert P. Fletcher Jr. was elected president of the Booth Fisheries' corporation at the first meeting of the board of directors of the corporation held here yesterday. The corporation was formed under a reorganization of the old Booth Fisheries' company, which filed a voluntary petition in bankruptcy last October.

The sale of the assets of the old company in Wilmington, Del., last Saturday marked the consumation of the reorganization plan.

PLANT LIMITS MACHINES TO USE MORE MEN

The Educator company, biscuit manufacturer, which recently opened a plant in the Clearing industrial district, is now operating at capacity, according to George M. Burry, vice president. More than 100 workers, both men and women, are now employed.

Mr. Burry said that many packaging operations, which could readily be done by machinery, have been maintained by hand in order that the maximum number of wage earners could be retained.

WORLD'S WHEAT CROP EXPECTED TO BE 19% LESS THAN LAST YEAR

Foreign Agricultural service at Washington, D. C., says that due largely to prospects of an exceptionally small wheat crop in the United States, production for 1933 in the twelve countries reported is 19.1 per cent under the comparable 1932 figures.

Outside of Russia, indications are for a European wheat crop smaller than the 1932 crop despite some increases in acreage. It is too early to judge probable production in the important southern hemisphere, but reports suggest that the crops were planted under favorable conditions. Detailed statement of production follows, last three ciphers omitted:

Palmer Tells Insurance Aim for Illinois

Ernest Palmer, director of insurance for Illinois, issued a statement yesterday in which he gave an accounting of his action since taking over this work. Hitherto, supervision of insurance was handled as an activity of the department of trade and commerce. Now it is vested in an independent department of insurance.

Insurance leaders in the state long sought a special department, holding that a system of dual control lessened the efficiency of the supervision. Under the new setup the superintendent of insurance is answerable only to the governor.

Tells Three Objectives.

Mr. Palmer sets forth in his statement three objectives which his department will seek to attain:

1. "To see that Illinois insurance companies of every kind are sound and honestly managed and, further, that no company of another state which does not meet the same requirements shall be admitted to sell insurance to our people.

2. "To see that any policy contract which is sold to our citizens shall be fair and reasonable, and that they get what they pay for in that contract.

3. "To see to it that everyone who sells or seeks to sell insurance to the people of this state shall be honest, competent, well qualified and licensed by the state."

Department Is Reorganized.

Mr. Palmer states that the department has been entirely reorganized in the interest of efficiency and economy.

The examination department, which is charged with the responsibility of learning the condition of all companies organized under Illinois laws and which participates in convention examinations of companies in other states, is under the direction of the chief examiner and a staff of 24 examiners. Mr. Palmer says it will "not be very long before the department will be able to correct weak and improper management or investment policy, and safeguard the policyholders."

Plans Separate Divisions.

Each type of insurance, such as fraternal beneficiary societies, life insurance companies, fire, casualty, etc., will have its own division in the state department, each under the direction of a supervisor and assistant supervisor.

A branch of the department handling the licensing of brokers will be maintained in the Insurance Exchange building in Chicago.

Mr. Palmer remarked yesterday that the sharp advances in farm produce prices, with the resultant increasss in the value of farm lands and mortgages, have materially improved the financial position of Illinois insurance companies.

GEN. ELECTRIC SECOND QUARTER ORDERS OVER '32

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, July 18.—The General Electric company received orders of $35,539,858 in the second quarter of 1933, comparing with $35,304,070 in the same period of 1932, a gain of nearly one per cent, Gerard Swope, president, announced today. This is the first time since early 1930 that there has been an increase in any quarter over the same period the year before.

GOVERNMENT REPORTS FIRST PROCESSING TAX COLLECTED—45 CENTS

Washington, D. C., July 18.—(AP)—The government collected its first income from the wheat processing tax on July 15.

The statement for that day made public today carried this line under receipts:

"Processing tax on farm products —$0.45."

Treasury officials said they did not know what caused such a small payment. It was in the Second New York district, which comprises part of New York City.

The statement showed that for the first 15 days of the 1934 fiscal year the government had spent $27,495,359 on its emergency program. This money was distributed with $9,707,574 to the federal emergency administration of public works, $19,324 to the administration for industrial recovery, $11,718 for the agricultural adjustment administration, $8,983,994 to the administration of emergency conservation work, $8,770,856 to the Reconstruction Finance corporation, and $1,890 to the Tennessee valley authority.

In that same time the ordinary expenditures of the government amounted to $168,644,537, while receipts from all sources totaled $85,971,324.

So at the end of the first half month the government had piled up a total deficit from general and emergency expenditures of $110,168,571.

That made the public debt on July 15 amount to $22,617,772,366.

CHICAGO FIRMS JOIN OTHERS IN RAISING WAGES

The Victor Manufacturing and Gasket company, 5750 Roosevelt road, employing approximately 1,000 persons, has increased salaries and wages 10 per cent. The number of employés is 36 per cent ahead of July, 1932, and 22 per cent more than in May, 1933.

The Excel Auto Radiator company yesterday announced a 5 per cent increase in wages and salaries, effective as of July 15 and affecting several hundred employés. The company operates six plants located at Chicago, Dallas, Tex., Kansas City, Mo., Oakland, Cal., Minneapolis, Minn., and Philadelphia.

Irving Sobel & Co., 2300-10 Armitagé avenue, manufacturers of wash dresses, announced a 20 per cent wage increase for 250 employés. The advance will more than compensate for the previous reduction.

H. Smoler, salesmanager of Boris Smoler & Sons, 3021 North Crawford avenue, manufacturers of wash dresses, states that wages of the 400 employés were raised 10 per cent yesterday. About eight weeks ago wages were increased 10 per cent. Working time has been reduced to 8 hours daily. Mr. Smoler said the wage increase will more than offset the pay resulting from reduction of time to eight hours a day.

Tennessee Governor Signs $10,000,000 Bond Issue

Gov. Hill McAlister of Tennessee and Secretary of State Ernest N. Haston arrived in Chicago yesterday to sign a $10,000,000 bond issue which the state has sold to finance school and charity appropriations. The officials, who are staying at the Palmer house, came here to use a machine at the offices of the Columbian Banknote company, which enabled them to sign 10,000 $1,000 bonds in two hours.

Eastern Plungers Turn from Wall Street to Grain Market

Speculative groups which confined themselves to heavy trading in stocks in Wall street during 1929 and 1930 have been attracted to grain, particularly wheat, in the last two months, it is understood. Their trading is said to have been especially heavy in the last 30 days.

These houses, enjoying private wire facilities and a close if obscure connection with Washington, have been able, it is said, to get information before the official announcements were made, and have traded on it to an extent markedly influential on the market.

There are New York houses which start buying heavily whenever the price of wheat or other grains advance into new ground.

In the most surprising grain market the trade has ever seen, the volume of business on the Chicago Board of Trade handled by individual commission houses during the current movement has frequently surpassed 20 million bushels a day, and on some days the volume has approximated 25 million.

The present vigorous trading exceeds that in 1895, when Europe had a short wheat crop and the grain sold above $2 in Chicago. At the time commission houses were averaging around 20 million bushels daily, and occasionally as high a total as 23,500,000 bushels was recorded.

Barley has returned as an object of speculation in the last few days. Trading in it was strong fifty or sixty years ago, and especially tempting to brewers and maltsters. Manipulation was so frequent that the speculative activity was killed. Later it was revived, and again stifled by strong interests which cornered the market. Barley in Chicago sold at 43 cents on June 30; yesterday September was 90 cents.

Protest Filed on Illinois Life Reinsurance

Objections to the proposed reinsurance of the 70,000 policy holders of the Illinois Life Insurance company with the Central Life Assurance society [mutual] of Iowa were filed in the federal court yesterday by three committees, two of policy holders and one of former agents of the Illinois Life.

The recommendation of the Iowa company as the best in which to merge the interests of the Illinois concern, now in receivership, was made last Saturday by an advisory board of three attorneys appointed by Federal Judge Wilkerson. Judge Wilkerson set a hearing on objections for today.

Question Financial Strength.

One of the three objecting committees, known as the policy holders' protective, of which James M. Crume is secretary, asserted the financial condition of the Central Life of Iowa was not favorable enough to warrant the reinsurance. The claim was advanced that of $17,198,000 in mortgages held by the company, $4,700,000 were in default and that of $7,932,000 in bonds, $775,000 were in default.

This same committee declared the opinion that Central Life of Iowa had made excessive mortgage loans. Another objection was that there is no provision in the proposed contract to prohibit saddling the cost of reinsurance on the Illinois Life policy holders and that the Lake Shore drive offices of the latter company and its personal property would be almost a total loss in the event the reinsurance goes through.

Object to Installment Payments.

Another point objected to was the proposed granting to the Iowa company of 30 months in which to pay up existing death claims in installments, while it was asserted that under the contract the present receiver is relieved of personal liabilities growing out of his conduct of the company for the last nine months.

The second group filing objections was designated the policy holders' reorganization committee and the third was composed of thirty agents formerly representing the Illinois Life.

POWER OUTPUT OF SHAWINIGAN RISES 12 PER CENT

Power output of the Shawinigan Water and Power company for the first six months of 1933 showed an increase of 12 per cent over that in the like period of 1932, according to Julian C. Smith, vice president and managing director. The total amount generated and sold for the half year ended June 30, 1933, was 1,819,646,003 kilowatt hours, against 1,623,344,248 in the same period last year.

Net operating revenue for the six months ended June 30 was reported at $3,279,728, against $3,676,970 in the parallel period of 1932. Surplus before depreciation and income tax was $1,223,330 for the recent period, compared with $1,670,573 in the comparable period a year ago.

For the three months ended June 30, 1933, net operating revenue was $1,658,681 and surplus before depreciation and income tax $630,384, in comparison with $1,621,047 and $692,945 for the first quarter of this year.

CHEVROLET CUTS WORK WEEK TO 37½ HOURS; EMPLOYS 4,000 MORE

Detroit, Mich., July 18.—[Special.]—The Chevrolet Motor company has adopted a five day week with 7½ hours work per day, making possible the employment of an additional 4,000 men between now and Aug. 1, W. S. Knudsen, president and general manager of the company, said today. The present pay roll numbers about 41,000 men. This, he added, is the Chevrolet's contribution to national industrial recovery.

Old employés are being given preference, Knudsen announced.

"As for new applications," he continued, "we will give preference to married men with dependent children. All applicants, however, must be residents of the communities in which the plants are located, and all must at least have taken out their first citizenship papers."

Knudsen is the first major automobile executive to outline the effect of the administration's recovery program on the industry. He believes that it will roughly mean a gain of 25 per cent in auto factory employment, manufacturing costs will climb and business, already accelerated, will continue to improve.

STOCKS GYRATE, END IRREGULAR IN HEAVY TRADE

Gold Mines Are Up; "Wet" Issues Off.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, July 18.—Buying, prompted by further cheapening of the dollar, hoisted a wide assortment of stocks to new price peaks on the New York share exchange today.

Gold mining issues featured the rise. Homestake, the leader of the group, soared 18 points to a new high of 270. Alaska Juneau gained 5¾ and Dome Mines made a net gain of 4½ points.

Trading was again at a furious pace with the turnover mounting to around 6,600,000 shares—a good quarter of a million in excess of yesterday's heavy volume. Tickers worked overtime in a vain effort to keep pace with operations on the floor.

In spite of the tremendous activity and the spectacular show of enthusiam in certain directions, the advance was far from being the whole-hearted affair it appeared superficially to be. Rallies were followed by heavy selling movements throughout the day.

Prices Veer Up and Down.

At least three such back-and-forth movements of sustained volume developed during the course of the five hour session, and in some groups prices jumped all over the board, with changes in the trend developing about every hour.

A few departments stuck rather persistently to the downside. One of these was the "repeal" group, which finished showing net losses on the day anywhere from 1 to more than 4 points despite a late rally.

The cause for the heavy selling in this quarter was not immediately apparent. Some brokers thought it represented profit taking on yesterday's sharp runup, being based on the theory that the vote for repeal in Alabama and Arkansas today was a foregone conclusion and that any majority the "wets" might roll up had been sufficiently discounted.

Another school of experts thought the rush to sell was prompted by fears that the two "dry south" states might upset the applecart by voting to stick to the error of their ways.

Liquor Shares Are Sold.

At any rate, the offerings in such issues as Commercial Alcohol, National Distillers, Industrial Alcohol, Owens Glass, and others awaiting their rewards in the great day of repeal were kept on the auction block after the first few minutes of trading and drifted downward without much show of spunk.

The rails gave a good account of themselves, being aided by some refreshing earning figures. Union Pacific shot up more than 4 points, but later gave up about half its newly gained ground. Wheat carried the farm stocks down with it and many of the recognized market leaders like United States Steel, Western Union, General Electric, Johns-Manville, Consolidated Gas and the like had a difficult time keeping up appearances. Coppers, motors, utilities, and tobaccos were able to look no better than firm.

Wilfred H. Bell Is Elected Officer of Northern Trust

Wilfred H. Bell was elected assistant secretary of the Northern Trust company yesterday, it was announced. Mr. Bell is at present in the corporate division of the trust department.

Elastic Money No New Idea; Never Tried

BY REUBEN CAHN.

After the civil war two economic periods ensued which correspond with what has happened since 1918. First came inflation, prosperity, widespread speculation, skyrocketing prices, and then deflation, general adversity, widespread bankruptcy, and collapsing prices.

A great astronomer, Simon Newcomb [1835-1909], observing these wild swings in business and prices during the sixties and seventies, proposed in 1879 the adoption of a new monetary system, subsequently called the compensated or commodity dollar by its friends and the rubber dollar by its enemies. Newcomb was a great astronomer, a great mathematician, and a pretty good economist, but he had no influence at Washington comparable with that of the administration professors of today. His proposition survived only as an article in the back pages of a magazine.

Never Put into Use.

Somewhat later several foreign economists took up the commodity dollar, but no government ever put it into practice. Its greatest popularity was in the United States, where it has been espoused for a number of years by Irving Fisher, Yale professor and persistent campaigner for the causes he embraces. He has written prolifically and, being well fixed himself, has financed an organization known as the Stable Money association, to propagandize for compensated dollars. Prof. Fisher has won many converts, but none of them ever got into the treasury building or the White House or had influential standing in either of those structures. That is, not until recently.

As a matter of fact, it is not Prof. Fisher, but Prof. George Warren of Cornell, who is responsible for making the compensated dollar what it apparently is about to become, the coin of the realm.

Prices Set by Gold.

Warren with a colleague, Prof. Pearson, late last year brought to completion a study of the fluctuations of commodity prices on which they had been engaged for some years. They arrived at the conclusion that prices are very largely governed by conditions affecting gold. Since, said they, the fluctuating price of gold causes such derangement of prices, the thing to do was to counteract these fluctuations by varying the size of the gold piece that is called a dollar. They specifically urged immediate revaluation of gold and with some slight amendment endorsed the compensated dollar.

Newcomb's treatise appeared fourteen years after the close of the civil war. Warren and Pearson's treatise appeared fourteen years after the world war. Their proposal was virtually the same for a similar situation. Newcomb's piece was ignored. But Warren and Pearson's was not. Why success in the one case and not in the other?

Business Men Ban Plan.

For one thing the later opus was much larger and more convincing. But even so, the Cornell professors' influence would have been confined to academic circles, had it not been for the fact that the committee for the nation had just been formed. This was an organization of several hundred business men, including some of the best known names whose purpose was to bring about business recovery through inflation.

The Warren and Pearson study supplied what the committee of the nation was looking for—a rational and scientific justification for inflation. Warren was adopted by the business men's organization. He appeared at a number of meetings, one of them in Chicago, and presented his study in chart form to selected groups of business men about the country. He was convincing to many of the business men, and what was more important he fully convinced the Washington professoriate.

Point to Commodity Dollar.

Three bits of evidence indicate that it is the compensated dollar plan which is to be followed by the administration. Firstly, Prof. Fisher described President Roosevelt's message to the world conference as follows: "It was the most important Presidential decision since Lincoln's proclamation." Recall in that connection that Fisher's life work has been propagandizing for the commodity dollar plan for years.

Secondly, the steps of the inflationary program so far put into effect by the administration have been those proposed by Prof. Warren and the committee for the nation.

Thirdly, Prof. Warren has just been DOLLAR SLUMPS TO NEW LOW OF 68.7 CENTS GOLD

Export of Capital Is Believed Cause.

BY HOWARD WOOD.

The American dollar yesterday dropped to the lowest level since the United States abandoned the gold standard.

Weakness in the dollar, which had begun to develop late Monday, continued throughout trading hours yesterday. At the close of the American markets the British pound was being quoted at $4.85, the highest since Great Britain abandoned the gold standard in September, 1931. The previous high for the pound was $4.84 on July 10.

Against the franc, which is still on the gold basis, the dollar was similarly weak. The franc closed at 5.70½ cents, compared with the previous high of 5.68 cents on July 10. Thus, the American dollar was worth 68.67 cents in terms of French gold.

Fireworks Come Late.

Despite the fact that the heaviest volume of trading in foreign exchange occurs during the period when the London and continental markets are open, much of yesterday's fireworks occurred in the later trading in the American exchange markets which are open six hours after the European markets' close.

In Paris the dollar had closed at 17.67 francs [5.65 cents to the franc]. This compared with 17.85 francs to the dollar at Monday's close.

In the London market the pound opened at $4.79½ in American funds. Then as the dollar weakened the pound gradually approached its old parity of $4.8665, closing at $4.83¾.

When the trading shifted to New York and Chicago the dollar promptly slumped to its new low as dullness of the last few days gave way to much greater activity in foreign exchange trading. The pound touched the $4.85 mark shortly after noon, reacted slightly and then rose to $4.85.

Laid to Export of Funds.

Bankers and dealers in Chicago and New York expressed the opinion that the revival of activity in foreign exchange was due to increased speculative operations. Some of them said they believed that the exportation of capital funds has been renewed, although whether this represented withdrawal of funds by Europeans or a transfer abroad by Americans they were unable to say.

Some observers suggested that a renewal of capital exports was resulting from reports from Washington of the administration's intention to redouble efforts to force higher wages, shorten working hours, and in general to make use of most of the emergency powers conferred upon the President.

In this connection it was pointed out that if there is a substantial flight from the dollar it is being done with the knowledge and approval of the federal reserve officials, who, in turn, take their orders from the treasury department. Under the restrictions imposed when the United States abandoned the gold standard the treasury and reserve officials are endowed with almost complete control over transactions in foreign exchange.

Treasury Smiles on Decline.

The conclusion that was drawn yesterday, therefore, is that the renewal of foreign exchange purchases resulting in a further decline of the dollar was being smiled upon by the treasury. Inasmuch as a declining dollar has come to be accepted as a signal for higher stock and commodity prices many market observers were inclined to regard yesterday's decline in the dollar as a sign from Washington for a further advance in stocks and commodities.

There is, however, one means of exporting capital—or "fleeing from the dollar"—over which the treasury has little control. Many American producers exporting goods to European or other nations can—and do—keep the proceeds of their sales abroad in francs or other currencies while they wait for the money situation at home to become clarified.

United Air Lines Award Oil Contract to Pennzoil

United Air Lines has awarded an order for approximately 300,000 gallons of lubricating oils, or a year's supply to the Pennzoil company, whose main offices are in Oil City, Pa. One of the three-mile-a-minute United Air Lines' planes requires 1,200 gallons of gasoline and 30 gallons of oil for a 20 hour coast to coast flight.

COFFEE PRICES JOIN IN UPTURN; TRADE EXPANDS

Expert Assigns Advance to Other Commodities.

BY PHILIP HAMPSON.

Marked activity has developed in the coffee market within the last week, resulting in substantial increases in prices. Hitherto, coffee has been one of the few articles which failed to react to the general increases in commodity prices.

Walter T. Bown, coffee broker, in a discussion of the action in the market yesterday, attributed the advance to a sympathetic movement with other commodities. He said he could see nothing in the technical position of coffee to warrant price increases other than that the prices of almost all other articles of trade are climbing.

A week ago Santos No. 4, a standard grade of Brazilian coffee, closed at 7.90 cents a pound, compared with the close yesterday of 9.15 cents a pound for cash coffee, Mr. Bown said.

Advance Starts in July.

Since July 13 the D contract has advanced from 77 to 138 points, with the big advances being in March and May deliveries. The Rio A contract has advanced from 110 to 160 points, with the heaviest advance of 160 points in the December delivery.

"There is now a general feeling in the coffee trade that the price should advance and apparently that is what is taking place," Mr. Bown asserted. "A few days ago the market was very narrow and it was impossible to sell 12 lots of coffee, or 3,000 bags, without breaking the market. In the present active trading 111,750 bags of the Rio contract and 146,750 bags of the Santos contract are being sold without the market declining.

Public Gets Into Market.

"The start of the action in the coffee market was due to foreign buying, but now the American public is in it.

"Another strengthening factor in the coffee situation is the code adopted by the coffee roasters, one of the provisions being that they sell their product on a profitable basis. If the roasters sell their products at a profit naturally they would be willing to pay more for the green coffee.

"If there is a substantial rise in coffee Brazil will be able to buy more of our automobiles, shoes, and other manufactured goods, thereby contributing to our prosperity.

"Another factor contributing to stronger coffee prices is the fact that the last of the coffee to be delivered under the wheat deal with the United States will be cleared up shortly."

Federal Motor Truck.

Investors' Guide: Will you please give me what information you can on Federal Motor Truck?—B. F. G.

Answer: Federal Motor Truck company is one of the smaller manufacturers of commercial vehicles. It is equipped to turn out four and six cylinder trucks, ranging from one to eight tons.

During recent years the company has had to contend with increased competition from larger producers, lower prices for its product, and lessened demand. Foreign business, which formerly accounted for about one-third of total, has been curtailed as the result of higher tariffs, unsettled economic conditions abroad, and fluctuating currencies.

The recent upturn in industrial activities has had a beneficial effect on the company. Shipments in June, 1933, were approximately 250 units, against 179 in May and 171 in June, 1932. The schedule calls for an output of about 360 units for July.

Earnings have shown a generally downward trend since 1925. Loss for 1932 was $631,000, against loss of $462,000 for 1931. Net income for 1930 was $153,000, or 31 cents per share, against net of $592,000 for 1929. Net income for 1928 was $551,000.

On Jan. 1, 1933, current assets (including marketable securities at cost, $92,000 above market) totaled $2,735,000 and current liabilities amounted to $166,000. Cash alone was $733,000. Working capital was $2,569,000, against $2,142,000 the year before.

There is no funded debt. Capitalization consists of 483,443 shares of no par capital stock. Nothing has been paid on it since the 5 cent per share payment of Jan. 2, 1932.

The stock is speculative.

PROVISION TRADE ACTIVE; PRICES IN NEW GROUND

Active buying of futures in lard and bellies carried prices into new ground. Nearly all the advance was maintained on most deliveries and prices were a little better on the more deferred months. Profit taking was on a liberal scale despite the advance in hogs.

At the close lard was unchanged to 15 cents higher, the latter on January, while the nearby deliveries were up 2½ to 7½ cents. Cash lard was up 5 cents, with regular at $7.90, loose and leaf unchanged at $7.00, and bellies up 5 to 15 cents, the latter on October, while cash lots were up 12½ cents to $8.37½.

Pork loins were given fair attention at 5½ to 7½ cents. Liverpool lard was 6d to 1s higher.

Prices Up 10 to 20 Cents; Cattle Advance.

Hogs made another long stride toward higher price levels yesterday as supplies continued to drop. The first $5 sales since June 3 appeared in the 210 to 250 pound "premium" class butchers. Hogs have been higher on only twelve days in the last eleven months and current quotations are within 40 to 50 cents of the high point of 1933 and $1.85 to $1.90 above the year's low day.

Yesterday's advances amounted mostly to 10 to 20 cents, with prices 35 to 40 cents higher the first two days of the week. The general average price at $4.70 showed a gain of 15 cents and compared with $4.35 on the corresponding day last year, the first time in ten days that the price has been better than in 1932.

Trade Quiet at Close.

The trade cooled off some at the close yesterday, but bulk of offerings were out of first hands at the upturn and the later weakness was confined mostly to "picked over" stock that failed to get attractive bids at any time.

Hog receipts at twenty leading markets for the first two days of this week show a decrease of 40,000 head, or 16 per cent, compared with a week ago. The fact that farmers are cutting and threshing grain in most parts of the corn belt is responsible for some of the decrease in the movement of hogs.

Cattle receipts fell off yesterday and prices ruled strong to 25 cents higher, medium and heavy steers leading the rise.

Wholesale Beef Trade Better.

Cheerful reports from the wholesale beef trade stimulated buying of live steers. Swift paid the top of $7.50, which was within 10 cents of the 1933 high mark. Prime 1,300 to 1,450 pound weighty beeves made this figure, while more cattle sold at $7 and above than on any other day this year. Comparatively little sold below $5.50, with inferior thin kinds at $4.00 to $4.50.

Lamb prices soared 50 to 75 cents after a steady to strong opening, with top sales of natives to all interests at $8 and westerns at $8.25. Offerings were light and buying orders were liberal on all sides.
